Promoting Pork Helps Farmer Win National Recognition

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Monday, market pigs. Tuesday, breed pigs. Wednesday, wean pigs. Thursday, do general maintenance. Friday, move pigs out of the nursery and start all over again.

Saturday and Sunday, feed, breed, and "crop dust" the little pigs born over the weekend.

Does work never cease?

You'd think this kind of hectic schedule alone would have netted a Manheim hog, poultry, and beef cattle farmer the coveted National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) Pork All-American Award. Combine managing all that with growing tobacco and a cash vegetable crop every year and you have an honest hard worker.

(Turn to Page A28)

In partnership with his father Jay, Kevin Rohrer helps raise about 270 sows, 200 beef cattle, and 50,000-60,000 broiler chickens per year at his farm in Manheim. The hogs, a combination of York and York/Hampshire crosses, are contracted through Pennfield Corporation. Rohrer was honored for his extensive involvement with the local council and for his time working with local producers in promoting what NPPC dubs "Pork: The Other White Meat."

Pennmarva Dairymen Recognize Members

Maryland Correspondent
HAGERSTOWN, Md. — The 20th annual banquet of Pennmarva Dairymen's Federation Inc. was held at the Sheraton in Hagerstown to conclude two days of seminars and competition among young cooperators.

Each co-op's winners were announced during the banquet.

Atlantic Dairy Cooperative contestants were Tom and Miriam Swartley, Robert and Cindi Fulper, Sonny and Terri Snow, Lynn and Julie Knepper, Duane and Linda Biddle, Jeffrey and Christine Hinkel, Tom and Deb Innerst, Vic and Cheryl Barrick, Joel and Ronda Rotz, Duane and Marilyn Hershey, Jack and Donna Coleman, David and Robbin Martin.

Atlantic winners, David and Robin Martin live on a 160-acre farm near Manheim in a partnership operation with David's parents. They have 120 Holsteins with a milking herd average of 16,125 pounds of milk and 621 pounds of fat from 59 cows. They also raise 50,000 broiler chickens.

Bedford Girl National Guernsey Queen

LINDA WILLIAMS

Bedford Co. Correspondent
BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Beth Clark remembered the question she answered that helped get her the State Guernsey Queen title and used it in pursuit of the national crown.

Beth was crowned National Guernsey Queen at a three-day event held in Evansville, Ind., June 15 through the 18th.

She was asked to prepare a skit for the national event. "I remembered the question I was asked at states," she said.

"It was, 'What would you do if President Bush felt the same way about dairy products as he does about broccoli?'"

Using that scenario, Beth created a costume that was half cow and half reporter. She became both Walter Croncow and Glenna Guernsey.

The cow was being interviewed by Walter as she protested the fact that President Bush did not like dairy products. "Of course, it was all made up, but a lot of fun," grinned the petite blonde queen.

A 1990 graduate of Bedford High School, Beth has already begun preparing for her pre-med courses at Carlow College in Pittsburgh this fall by enrolling in a summer program at Frostburg

Farmland Preservation Program Gets Last Minute Reprieve

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Farmland preservation got back on track this past week and is up and running due to a series of events that occurred to right the derailed and off-schedule program.

Even more important, permanent regulations outlining the purchase of development rights became effective today with publication in the Pennsylvania Bulletin.

The farmland program had been in limbo since the end of February when the state board ran out of time to create permanent regulations for saving farmland.

Not only did the shutdown of the easement-purchasing process cause delays in counties' efforts, but the counties' ability to secure valuable farmland was put at risk.

As a condition of accepting a portion of the $100 million bond approved for buying development easements, counties must spend the money within a certain time or lose the money. Without a board to approve a county plan or proposed spending, some counties would have been unable to spend the money in time.

During the past 10 days:

- On June 22, state Gov. Robert Casey signed into law amendments to the farmland preservation law that correct the problems and extend the life of the board.
- On Wednesday, the board held an emergency meeting, approving the $160,000 purchase of development rights on a Lancaster County farm and approved the development rights purchasing plan by Montgomery County.

• Today, publication of approved proposed regulations for purchasing development easements makes those regulations legal. Until this week, the regulations were making rounds and were just released by

National Egg Market

June 27, 1990

Prices trended lower in the North Atlantic, New England and Midwest Regions, unchanged elsewhere. Market tone was barely steady to weak. Demand ranged from light to moderate, with scattered retail features. Supplies were at least adequate and in some instances ample. Breakers paid less for raw material; demand was light and unaggressive for shell eggs and finished product.

It's no news that improving forage quality can increase milk production. The problem is finding the time to do it, while tending to all your other farm management responsibilities.

If you're too busy to do it all, your Agway Farm Enterprise Salesperson can help. He has the know how, the products and the services you need to get the most out of new seedings or established stands.

- Planning needs
- Selection of proven varieties

- Plant food recommendations
- Weed and insect control where needed
- Custom application service
- Forage preservatives
- Forage testing
- Feeding programs

In short, he can help you better manage all the complex variables that contribute to higher forage quality and a more profitable dairy operation.

Call your Agway Farm Enterprise Salesperson today. He's someone worth knowing.

If your neighbor has higher forage quality than you, chances are he knows someone you don't.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

JULY 2-8, 1990

July 7, Full Buck Moon.

July 2, 1867, America's first elevated railroad is opened in New York City ... July 4, 1776, John Hancock signs the Declaration of Independence ... July 6, 1885, Louis Pasteur inoculates the first human, a little boy, in Paris ... July 8, 1835, the Liberty Bell cracks while tolling during the funeral of Supreme Court Chief Justice John Marshall ... Make today yesterday's pupil.

Ask the Old Farmer: Is there any way I can kill a patch of poison ivy without using a lot of toxic chemicals? S.S., Ky.
Sure there is — smother it! Wear protective clothing and cut down the biggest branches, then cover the whole area with heavy black plastic. Wait several weeks and check to see that the roots are dead. Pull up the plants and discard safely.

Home Hints: Bigger and better blooms will be produced if pansies are pinched back in July.

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Clear and warm through the Fourth with showers in the north; a couple days of light rain are followed by a couple days of bright sun.

Greater New York-New Jersey: Sunny and warm, showers in the southern regions, changes to rain for the Fourth. Clearing and warmer to end the week.

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Wet all week, starting with thundershowers and diminishing to showers, heavy in the north, and milder temperatures.

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Showers fill the skies, heavy in the west. Then a hot spell, followed by more showers, this time in the east. Finally sunny.

OPINION

Cheers To Everyone Involved

The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program is combating teen drinking and driving with milk beverages. In the recent prom and graduation season, Pennsylvania's dairy farmers joined the fight against teenage alcohol abuse by marketing a special non-alcoholic beverage program to high school students statewide.

"Over the last five years, more than 20,000 Pennsylvania teenagers have been involved in alcohol-related traffic accidents, many during the prom and graduation season," said Donald Duncan, PDPP chairman. "Our Cheers program promotes milk-based beverages as a healthy and safe alternative to alcohol."

According to Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative Association's June producer magazine, more than 50 Pennsylvania high schools participated in the Cheers prom and graduation promotion by ordering free party packs that include supplies, decorations, and recipes for milk-based punches.

Dairy farmers are also taking their case to the public through a satellite video news release. The Cheers video news release will be broadcast to TV stations statewide and include interview segments with Duncan and a representative from Mothers Against Drunk Driving. The dramatic story of one Pennsylvania teen whose life was drastically altered by drinking and driving is also a part of the video.

This milk promotion program has such widespread, redeeming value on both sides of the rural/urban fence, we raise our glass of Cheers to everyone involved.

Farm Forum

Editor:

I am very disappointed in the coverage of Republican gubernatorial candidate Barbara Hafer in the June 23, 1990 issue of Lancaster Farming. While this paper is most certainly an agricultural publication, I am sure a large percentage of its readers are not only farmers, but also Christians. Although the subject was named, Hafer's political position on this subject was not stated.

This is the paragraph I find lacking:

"When asked what issues other than farming she would stress in her campaign, Hafer said the abortion issue was emotional but that there were many other issues that needed to be discussed."

What a cop-out, from Hafer and also this paper! The subject of abortion is an important one to Christians. It is a matter of life and death! Barbara Hafer is pro-abortion! Why was this left unsaid?

Do we need a "friend in agriculture" at the expense of unborn children? Hafer may appeal to our pocketbooks, but does she stand by our morals?

NOW IS THE TIME

To Be Aware Of Feeding New Grain

The barley harvest is nearly completed and some farmers may be considering using this new grain in their feeding program. Feeding new grain to livestock is possible, under very careful management. If fed in too large amounts, digestive disorders such as bloating and scouring may occur. We suggest that the grain be allowed to go through a two-week curing period before being fed. Then it should be included into the grain ration at a slow rate -- 10 to 20%.

Barley is a popular livestock feed and is a good substitute for corn. In a week or two wheat will be ready and may also be fed with care. Again, it should be allowed several weeks to cure before feeding. Wheat is not used as much for feeding purposes because of the digestive problems. Smaller amounts in the ration, compared to barley, are suggested. Barley and wheat can be used as livestock feeds, but need special care when mixing in livestock rations.

To Keep Cows Cool

High producing cows consume a lot of feed and generate a lot of body heat, which can be a problem during the hot days of summer.

To help cows keep cool, give them access to shade and water. Letting cows come into a well ventilated barn during the heat of the afternoon can help.

Breezes help cows dissipate body heat. Therefore open barn doors, windows, hay holes and roof ridges. Remove side wall panels. Use fans to blow air over cows' heads and backs. Use sprinklers at the feed bunk to periodically soak cows to the hide. Then let them stand in breezes, created by fans, to cool off as they dry down.

To Control Canada Thistle

Canada thistles are listed as a noxious weed in Pennsylvania; this means they should be controlled and not allowed to go to seed. I've seen far too many thistles this year and some along our major highways. Too often we see what some people call "summer snowflakes" floating through the air; these are not snowflakes but thistle seeds. We should insist that these be mowed or sprayed to prevent seed formation.

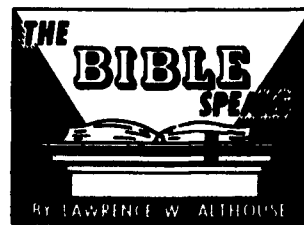

Most townships have noxious weed ordinances to prevent the spread of Canada thistles and other noxious weeds. These ordinances should be enforced for the best interest of all farmers. You can spot spray with Banvel or Roundup for control. Be sure to follow label instructions. We urge everyone to do something about this problem.

To Look For Tobacco Aphids

Ordinarily tobacco aphids do not appear until July 4, but we are already getting reports the red phase of the tobacco aphid are numerous in some tobacco fields. We urge growers to check their fields - even recently transplanted tobacco. If Furadan was applied preplant or Orthene was used in the transplant water, the tobacco should have early aphid protection. We urge inspections of all fields at least once a week -- twice a week would be better. Control is much easier if the number of aphids are not numerous. We recommend control when 1 to 3 plants out of 10 show aphids. Orthene Tobacco Insect Spray at 2/3 to 1 pound per acre of Thiodan 2/3 to 1-1/3 quart per acre are the recommended foliar materials. If aphid pressure is heavy, applications should be made 7 to 14 days apart.

Background Scripture: Proverbs 4.

Devotional Reading: 1 Peter 2:1-5, 9-10.

"Let your heart hold fast my words, keep my commandments, and live" (4:4), says Proverbs. In recent decades we have been learning that words and feelings can harm us physically, as well as emotionally.

Surgeon Bernie S. Siegel, M.D. says: "Feelings are chemical and can kill or cure." We know now that thoughts trigger the release of certain hormones into the body's systems. Often, if there is too much of one of these hormones, it can have a harmful effect upon the physical body. So we can give new appreciation Proverbs says of wise teachings, "For they are life to him who finds them, and healing to all his flesh" (4:22).

EATING YOU ALIVE

Many years ago, while I was a pastor in Pennsylvania, a woman desperately ill with breast cancer came to me for help. It quickly became apparent that the one thing that dominated her thinking was her anger and bitterness with her sister. No matter how many times I tried to change the subject, she would soon bring it back to her sister. Eventually, I told her that although I thought she was perfectly justified in feeling bitter toward her sister, I was afraid that this bitterness would get in the way of her own recovery from cancer. "Your bitterness is figuratively and literally eating you alive."

She agreed, but when she returned the next week, she was still stuck on the subject. I reminded her that she needed to let go of those feelings and again she agreed. But the third week when she returned, she started off again on her favorite subject. Abruptly, I gave her a large lined legal pad and told her I wanted her to write down every mean or thoughtless thing or word her sister had ever done or said to her. "Don't miss a thing!" I instructed her.

UP IN SMOKE

After about an hour of intensive writing she brought the tablet to me, page after page filled with negative feelings. "Now, is that all of it?" I asked. "Yes, I think so," she replied. I took the tablet and lit a match to it and as it burned before our eyes, "Now that's the end of it," I said, "it's all gone up in smoke!" She never mentioned her sister again and we began to concentrate on positive emotions. She continued to take her medical therapy, even though the doctors had told her there was little chance of recovery. But she did recover and every year thereafter, before she would go for her annual check-up, she would call me on the phone for a prayer. When, at last, she died it was at an advanced age and from something quite different.

I cannot say with any definiteness what role our counselling played in her recovery from breast cancer, but in my own heart I believe that her bitterness was "eating her alive" and that when she let go of it, the healing power of her own body was able at last to respond to her medical treatment. As the writer of Proverbs counseled, "Hear, my son, and accept my words, that the years of your life may be many" (4:10), this woman added years to her life by heeding wise counsel.

FOR OUR HOMEWORK ASSIGNMENT, WE HAVE TO LIST OUR MOST FAVORITE DAIRY PRODUCT

WHICH ONE ARE YOU GOING TO LIST?

I'M NOT SURE, BUT I HAVE NARROWED IT DOWN TO ICE CREAM, MILK, BUTTER, CREAM, CHEESE, YOGURT, WHIPPED CREAM, BUTTERMILK, COTTAGE CHEESE, CREAM CHEESE, ICE MILK, AND... ..

AT PLEASANT HILL DAIRY, SOME OF THE NICEST PEAKS ARE THE NEW PEAKS IN HERD AVERAGE SINCE THE FEIDT FAMILY REMODELED THEIR BARN AND SWITCHED TO BROWN'S FEEDS.

Pleasant Hill Dairy

Nestled in the Blue Mountains west of Millersburg, Dauphin County, this farm is the family farm of EUGENE AND DAVID FEIDT and families. It's 250 acres of rolling crop and pasture land produce all the alfalfa, corn silage, barley and most of the ear corn needed to feed the 76 cow home raised herd plus all replacements. Herd size increased when the barn was remodeled and now over 45% of herd is 1st calf heifers.

Reviewing Records

Dave Feidt (right) and his father, Eugene, review DHI records with Brown's Sales Rep. Steve Smelter (left). In spite of expanding the herd and some poor forage years, production has climbed steadily since starting with Brown's. They appreciate the regular visits Steve makes, timely forage testing, and Brown's Flex-Formula method of Ration Balancing.

Cow Longevity Important

Jill freshened on Aug. 19th as a six year old, bred right back to calve again on July 17th and in 243 days has already produced 24,466 lbs. of milk. Ear corn, shelled corn, barley, and Brown's 38 Milkmaster kept Jill milking at 104 lbs. at 200 days. This may not sound like a super "high-tech" "Hi Energy" diet, but the proof is in the results generated by harvesting maximum energy yield from a well balanced rumen of a mature cow.

Young Cows Pushing Hard

Fantasia freshened at 1 yr. 9 mos. in Oct., bred right back to freshen again in Sept., & at 185 days had a projected record of 18,771 of milk and 629 of fat. She peaked at 99 lbs. David credits Brown's Prolac Pellets fed as a topdress to individual high producing cows with helping several heifers approach the 100 lb. mark this winter. Herd reproductive performance and body condition have both improved since switching to BROWN'S FEEDS.

- FAMILY BUSINESSES WORKING TOGETHER -

At Brown's we are proud of customers like Eugene and David Feidt. Since 1871 the Brown's Family and their fine employees have been helping dairy farm families produce milk economically and efficiently.

Viking Ship Calcium Nitrate: vegetable nutrition the way you want it

Viking Ship Calcium Nitrate fertilizer 15.5-0-0 has been earning vegetable grower loyalty for more than forty years. In the field! Under weather conditions that often fail to cooperate! At harvest, when talk time is over and product promises are measured by results! Growers have found that Calcium Nitrate comes through.

Use Calcium Nitrate on your next crop. You will be pleased by the growth, yield and quality you see. The kind of profitable results achieved by vegetable

Nitrate Nitrogen • Fast Response
Early Maturity • Non-Acid
Available Calcium • Precise Timing Controlled Growth • Water Soluble

growers across America, season after season, because of Calcium Nitrate's unique combination of nutrients:

Nitrate nitrogen for fast response. Better timing and control. Calcium Nitrate supplies nitrate, the non-acidifying nitrogen that's readily available for plant uptake. You'll see fast, uniform response with the precise feeding and timing you need for better growth and better crop management.

Earlier, more uniform maturity. Improved yield and quality. Nitrate nitrogen gives the quick optimum response the crop needs and then "runs out." Elimination of residual nitrogen and salt problems promotes better yields, uniform maturity and harvest efficiency. One good thing leads to another when you fertilize with Calcium Nitrate.

Vital calcium: it helps your crop; helps your soil. Calcium Nitrate contains 19% water-soluble calcium. This vital nutrient, combined with nitrate nitrogen, provides crop benefits both above and below the ground. Young leaves, stalks, roots and fruit must have calcium for proper development. Adequate calcium in the fruit markedly improves harvest and shipping quality. This low-salt, non-acid source of nitrate and calcium is unmatched by any other nitrate fertilizer.

Available in bag or bulk. Apply Calcium Nitrate straight or ask your dealer to include it in your vegetable fertilizer. You'll be glad you did!

As with any fertilizer application, consult your extension office or other advisory service for recommended practice that meets local crop and soil conditions.

HORSEHIDE GENUINE HORSEHIDE

AMERICAN MADE

Made of tough, long wearing horsehide, these shoes stand manure, silage, oil and grease better than cowhide. Shoes feature a genuine Goodyear welt, nitro cork sole that will not track, steel shank, padded collar, cushion insole and arch support. Ideal for barn use. Sizes 7-13 including 1/2 sizes. 1st quality. Our experience shows that horsehide outlasts good cowhide by 50% or more for farm use.

PFA Disappointed With Milk Board Budget Cut

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — The state's largest farm organization said today that it was disappointed that the Casey Administration cut $300,000 of general fund appropriations from the budget of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB).

Eith W. Eckel, president of the Pennsylvania Farmer's Association (PFA), urged "reconsideration and restoration of the $300,000 general fund cuts in the PMMB's budget."

In a letter to Governor Robert P. Casey the farm leader wrote that PFA supported an amendment (Act 135) to the Milk Marketing Law in 1988 giving the PMMB authority to increase administrative fees, which can be imposed on all segments of the milk marketing industry. The legislation was introduced and passed at the urging of the Casey Administration.

"We supported that legislation in the face of considerable resistance . . . realizing that it was important for the milk industry to do its fair share to supplement the strong and continued commitment of Commonwealth funds in the administration of the important functions of the Milk Marketing Board."

"At no time during the period of consideration and enactment of Act 135 was there any discussion that the $300,000 raised by fee increases was intended to replace the commitment of monies from the general fund. Nor was there any expression of any intent by your administration to reduce budgetary commitments of general fund monies in response to increases in revenues resulting from (passage of) Act 135."

"In light of this action, we who supported Act 135 feel betrayed by the recent effort by your administration to cut $300,000 of general fund monies from the PMMB

PMMB performs "an integral service to all aspects of milk production, marketing and consumption in Pennsylvania."

"The establishment of over-order producer premiums and other regulatory measures by the board have been hailed by milk marketing experts both within and outside Pennsylvania," Eckel said in his letter.

"If the board is to continue to remain responsive to the needs of the milk industry and to milk marketing conditions existing within our Commonwealth, sufficient funding must continue," he concluded.

Dairyalea Moves Headquarters To Office Park

SYRACUSE, N.Y.— Dairyalea Cooperative Inc. has announced its plans to build a new corporate headquarters at Brittonfield, the 58-acre office park in the town of DeWitt.

Dairyalea is purchasing a 4 1/4-acre lot from the Brittonfield Office Park owner, Buckley Road Properties Inc., according to Dairyalea officials.

The cooperative's 16,000-square-foot, single-story building will be designed by Fuligni-Fragola and constructed by Heuber-Breuer Construction Co., both of Syracuse.

Approximately 40 Dairyalea employees will be involved in the move from their existing offices at 831 James Street in Syracuse. The relocation is expected to be completed by the beginning of 1991.

The 83-year-old cooperative has been located in Syracuse since 1982. It also maintains a member testing laboratory in Syracuse.

"We are excited about the new building and the convenient new location," said Clyde E. Rutherford, president of Dairyalea Cooperative Inc. "Since divesting of our manufacturing operations on late 1988, the cooperative has been more competitive, has established innovative member programs and services, and has generated a strong earnings stream. Moving to our new headquarters complements the cooperative's new focus and will allow us to continue our progress with a streamlined management and support group."

Brittonfield is located immediately west of, and adjacent to,

Interstate 481, just north of New York State Thruway Exit 34A.

Dairyalea Cooperative Inc. is a farmer-owned dairy cooperative with 2,300 farmer members throughout the Northeast. It participates in a milk marketing network stretching from Maine to Pennsylvania and Boston, MA, to Buffalo, NY.

Milk Production Down

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Milk production in Pennsylvania during May totaled 887 million pounds, down 3 percent from May 1989 production, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS).

The number of milk cows in the state during the month averaged 677,000 head, down 3,000 head from April and 18,000 less than the previous May, PASS reported.

Production per cow averaged 1,310 pounds, up 70 pounds from April 1990 but unchanged from May 1989.

In the 21 major producing states, May milk production totaled 11.2 billion pounds, up 2 percent from the same month last year.

The number of milk cows in those 21 states averaged 8.51 million head, 6,000 less than May 1989. Production per cow was 1,317 pounds, 43 pounds more than April and 22 pounds above the previous May.

Robbin said she finds home schooling their six children takes up most of her time.

The judges for the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative contest were Tony Schlisier, cooperative relations manager, David Patrick, director of Dairymen Inc., and Rose Dillner, elementary physical education administrator.

Michael and Deborah Herring from Farmington are Dairymen Inc. winners. Along with Mike's parents, they farm 165 acres and rent 230 acres. They raise 85 percent of the feed for their 140 head of Holsteins and Jerseys. Mike has total responsibility for the breeding program, is a 4-H Dairy Club leader and a member of the Farm City Day Committee. Deb was an outstanding 4-H'er and National Awards Program winner. She now has her own beauty shop. The couple will represent the Mid-Atlantic Division of Dairymen Inc. in the young cooperators contest at their annual meeting in Nashville in December.

Eleven couples competed in the Md.-Va. Milk Producers Cooperative Association Inc. contest. They were Paul and Karen Dotterer, Henry and Patti Elgersma, J. Charles and Barbara Fisher, Michael and Christine Forsythe, Allan and Carrie Heaps, Daniel and Patricia Magness, Neal and Linda McCulloch, Craig and Beverly Mlaker, Ralph and Terrie Shank, Harold and Colleen Smith, Timothy and Denise Wetzel, and Paul and Carla Witter.

Ralph and Terrie Shank, who live near Hagerstown, with their two children, Erin and Ryan, are this year's Md.-Va. Co-op winners.

The Shanks farm 380 acres in partnership with Ralph's father at Palmyra Farm. Ralph is responsible for herd management, including overall health of the animals, feeding and breeding programs. They milk 220 Ayrshire cows with a DHIA average of 13,408 pounds of milk, 528 pounds of fat, and 455 pounds of protein.

The couple is active at the Salem United Church of Christ and said they enjoy being involved in the Maryland/Delaware Ayrshire Breeders and the National Ayrshire Breeders Associations.

Joyce Bupp, director for Dairymen Inc., Carroll Gilbert, director of member relations for Southern States, and John Morris, 4-H dairy judge leader and former secretary of the Maryland Holstein Association, served as judges for the Md.-Va. Milk Producers contest.

Don Shriver, director of member relations and public affairs for Milk Marketing Inc., was the guest speaker. He just returned from a bus trip across New York State with his two sons who toured in a 32-member boys choir. He spoke about the importance of spending more time with family.

In other notable moments during his speech, Shriver quoted Barbara Bush: "Our success depends not on what happens in the White House, but what happens in your house."

Other comments Shriver made were:

- Run your farm as if you were going to farm for 100 years, but live your life as if you were going to die tomorrow.

- Three kinds of people make up the world, he commented. Those who make things happen, those who watch things happen, and those who wonder what's happening.

- A co-op is made up of people taking what each has and working together to help each other to a better way of living. There is satisfaction and pleasure in working together to get things done.

- A recipient of cornea transplants, he encouraged us to share our organs for the good of others.

Winners of the outstanding co-op members for Dairymen Inc. are Michael and Deborah Herring, from Farmington. They were part of a recent competition at the 20th Pennmarva Banquet.

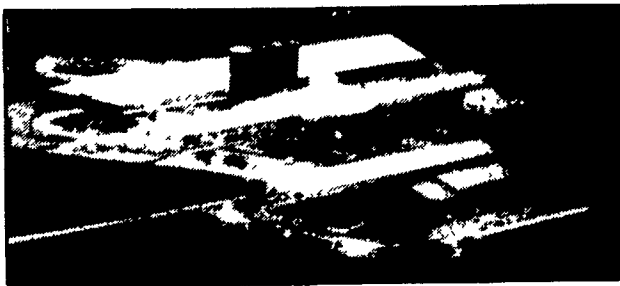

Ralph and Terrie Shank, Hagerstown, Md., are named co-op winners among the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers.

AGA Holds 1990 National Guernsey Convention

EVANSVILLE, IN — The American Guernsey Association (AGA) held its national convention and annual meeting June 15 to 18 in Evansville, IN.

"Evansville Tally-Ho in 1-9-9-0" was the theme for the four day event.

The results of the annual meeting included the election of Donald Peterson of Cashton, WI to the board of directors. He replaces Weldon Peterson Sr. of Malone, WI for District Four.

Robert Holcomb of Greene, NY was re-elected to the board of directors. The officers of the 1990 AGA board of directors are Phil Tennis, Hayward, MN, president; Ralph Turley, Mansfield, OH, vice president and Lee Riggs, Evansville, IN, second vice president.

An important part of the National Convention is the National Convention and Heifer Sales. This year's sale averaged $2,636 on 44 head of registered Guernseys.

Topping the sale was a summer yearling consigned by the Timothy Grove family of Kokomo, IN for $15,500. She was purchased by Ralph Turley and Leroy Lindley of Ohio. Also over the five figure mark was a bull calf consigned by Laurie Wittstruck Askew of Hilmar, CA. The Yes-Man Syndicate and Noba Inc. paid $13,000 for the calf.

Two of the most prestigious national awards presented at the annual meeting were the Master Breeder and Distinguished Service awards. Bernard and Mary Pralle of Onalaska, WI, were the recipients of the Master Breeder Award. Owners of Fauver Hill Farm, the Pralle's were recognized for their contributions to the breed both through their breeding program and their service. The admiration and respect of their fellow breeders was evidenced by the second highest sale average since 1982 at $1,550. Bernard and Mary retained a consistent rolling herd average over 16,000M 700F and 550P, an appraisal average over 81 points and 22 Gold Star Breeder awards.

A lifetime member of the AGA and 50-year showman, Carl Fortkamp of Coldwater, Ohio, was awarded the AGA Distinguished Service Award. Fortkamp, a 77-year-old registered Guernsey breeder has been an active supporter of AGA programs such as appraisal, young sire sampling and contract advertising in the Guernsey Breeders' Journal. His commitment and dedication to the Guernsey cow has been expressed through the years by his involvement with community and youth activities. Fortkamp farms in partnership with his nephew, Carl Harding Jr. at Gold Banner Farm.

Two cows swept the national production awards. Garnering the Liebers Trophy for the second consecutive year and adding the Valley Set Award to her list of accomplishments this year was Rudanks Jay Arnie. The Liebers Trophy is awarded to the top living lifetime milk producer. The Valley Set Award honors the cow with the highest lifetime butterfat record. Rudanks Jay Arnie had lifetime totals of 243,040 pounds of milk and 11,432 pounds of butterfat in 4,561 days. This Very Good, Gold Star Dam is owned by Rudolph Mitchell of Saluda, SC.

A young Washington cow won the other four national production awards. Rozelyn Rons Jocelyn collected the New England Guernsey Breeders' Association award based on the highest 305-day, two-time, mature equivalent (305D-2X-ME) milk record; the Nyala-Bedford trophy given to the two-year-old cow with the highest DHIR, ME milk production; the Tarbell trophy which is awarded to the breed's highest 305D, ME butterfat record producer and the California Protein Award, given in recognition of the highest DHIR, ME lactation for protein production. "Jocelyn" produced an actual record of 2-03 305D 28,090M 4.9% 1,383F 3.8% 1,078P which converts to 31,742M 1,549F and 1,207P ME. This 90-point Idle Neer Rondas Hornet daughter was bred and is owned by Rozelyn Farm, Lynden, WA.

Laeschland Farm of Curtiss, WI, was the recipient of both the high DHIR ME Herd Average for Milk and Protein awards. Phil and Joyce Laesch and family had a herd production of 18,998M 841F and 663P. The award for milk production was sponsored by the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders' Association and the protein award was sponsored by the California Guernsey Cattle Club.

Nells Glow Farm, owned and operated by Dennis and Jeanie Nelson received the high DHIR ME herd average for butterfat production, with a herd production of 18,821M 885F and 657P. They ranked second behind the Laesch's for milk and protein production. The award was sponsored by the Illinois Guernsey Breeders' Association.

Six Guernsey breeders from around the country competed for the National Outstanding Young Guernsey Farmer award. Missouri's Riley and Giselle Stewart were the recipients of this year's honor.

The Stewart's have a 1989 rolling herd average on 63 cows of 12,381M 587F 443P. They are active members of the district and state GBAs. They serve as next year's co-chairpersons for the national convention sale. Their breeding program has resulted in two All-American nominees, premier breeder and exhibitor awards and the 1989 Guernsey Gold Futurity Champion.

John Speerstra of Whitehall, WI was the runner-up in this year's contest. He and his wife Mary have two children, Mandy and Samuel. This year's honorable mention winner was JoJo Miller-Fulton of Los Alamos, California. Other participants were Steven Flohrs of Ormsby, MN; Jacob Roedl from Edgwood, IL and Darrell Robins of Plainfield, Iowa.

Junior members from 11 states participated in this year's National Outstanding Guernsey Youth contest. Anders Pierson of Butterfield, MN, was named the 1990 award winner. The 20-year-old son of Nels and Kathleen Pierson, he is actively involved in the daily responsibilities of the farm and dairy herd. Anders said, "I hope I can continue being a dairy farmer because the challenge of managing a herd of Guernsey cows to become top producers of high quality milk is a challenge that I am ready to accept."

Daniel Ripley of Corland, NY was named the first finalist with Todd Riggs of Evansville, IN named the second runner-up. Dale

State College in Maryland. "It's a course for students who are pursuing health careers," she explained. She will be spending the summer studying biology, chemistry, math and English.

She will still find time to attend state fairs in New York, Ohio, and Maryland as well as dashing home to enter some of her own herd of Guernsey cows in the dairy show at Martinsburg in late July.

"I also plan to participate in the Bedford Fair," she said, "Doing what I can to promote the dairy industry."

Beth has her own herd of 25 Guernseys which she keeps on the 136-acre farm of her grandfather, Robert Smith.

Other duties which come with her new title will include attending state dairy events in Harrisburg; Louisville, Kentucky; and Madison, Wisconsin.

"All my travel expenses will be paid," she said. "That and my crown and banner were the prizes for winning the title."

Beth was chosen from a field of nine contestants. Other states represented included South Carolina, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, New York, Wisconsin, Maryland, and Virginia.

Beth's impromptu question in the national competition was, "If you were the National Guernsey Queen how would you inspire enthusiasm among today's youth for the dairy industry?"

Her answer: "I would try to implement more fun oriented youth events revolving around the dairy industry."

The queen titles are far from the only awards this young lady has received. Her room is brimming over with trophies from past fairs and cow competitions and, last year, she was named one of six national winners in the National 4-H Dairy Scholarship Blue Farm Competition.

Beth Ann Clark

Beth Ann Clark, daughter of Sherrill S. Clark of Bedford, reigns as the 1990 National Guernsey Queen. She was crowned during the National Guernsey Convention on June 17 in Evansville, Ind.

Clark, a student at Carlow College, is majoring in biology pre-med and secondary education. She has served as the secretary-treasurer, vice president and president of her local 4-H club. She also has held numerous offices for the Pennsylvania Junior Guernsey Breeders' Association.

In high school she was class president; a member of student council; junior yearbook editor; ski club; marching, concert and jazz bands, along with being a choir member.

An active participant in community activities, Clark is a junior hospital volunteer, a Sunday school superintendent and teacher and was president and vice president of the Bedford County Teen Club.

When not helping on the family dairy farm feeding calves and working with the show string, Clark has scholarships and was named the Outstanding County 4-H Girl and Pennsylvania Keystone Outstanding 4-H'er.

Elizabeth Zimmerman, daughter of Samuel and Evelyn Zimmerman of Frederick, Md., is one of the 1990 National Guernsey Princess. Zimmerman along with Pam Miller, daughter of Jerry and Linda Miller of Huntington, Ind., will assist Clark and with the American Guernsey Association (AGA) to promote the Guernsey breed. They will appear at dairy shows and other Guernsey events.

$15,500 Tops Sale National Guernsey Convention

EVANSVILLE, Ind. — The gavel descended here on top price of $15,500 and $13,000 on June 18 at the 1990 AGA National Convention and Heifer Sales.

A tall, fancy, beautiful rumped summer yearling heifer commanded the $15,500 top price. Leafy Lane V Jama sold for the highest price paid to date for a Guernsey animal in 1990 sales.

Kunz Receives National Junior Gold Star Breeders Award

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Jessica Kunz of Centerville, PA., was one of five recipients to receive a National Junior Gold Star Breeder award at the American Guernsey Association (AGA) national convention, June 17, in Evansville, Ind.

This award is presented to a junior member who has an animal that meets the required production and type specifications. The applicant must be the breeder and owner of each cow. Each entry must have a January 1990 Yield

Selling for the second highest price of $13,000 was a January 1990 bull calf, Askew Farms Pender Yes-Man-ET.

Another heifer, Penn Del Fayette Gail, sold for $12,200 earlier in the year at the Pennsylvania Blue Halter and Calf Sale. The $15,500 price is the second highest price ever paid for an open heifer. Shen-

Deviation (YD) of +1,000M or +50F or higher. The final score of the entry must also be one point above the breed average for the entry's age group.

Kunz, the daughter of John and Cindi Kunz, won the award with Dolly Run DRS Sherri (VG-81) who has a YD of +2,688M +111F +77P.

The contest is sponsored by the AGA and funded by the Youth Fund. The AGA was developed for the registration and promotion of the Guernsey breed.

mont Admiral Amber was purchased as a junior calf in 1983 for $30,000.

The sale, held in conjunction with the American Guernsey Association annual meetings, is the third highest averaging National Convention and Heifer Sale in the past decade. The $2,636 average ranks behind the 1980 sale average of $2,723 and the 1988 sale average of $2,712.

This year's sale featured 44 animals of impressive quality genetics. Ten offspring sold from dams in the top 300 for Cow Performance Index (CPI), seven were backed by Gold Star Dams, 11 had Gold Star granddams, 10 were from dams over 20,000 pounds of milk and 11 were backed by Excellent dams.

This year's top seller at $15,500 was a Bettswards Telestar Victory daughter born June 3, 1989. Jama's dam is a 91-point Wagners T H Emory with two records over 17,850M 914F and 611P. Consigned by Timothy Grove and family of Kokomo, Ind., "Jama" was purchased by Ralph Turley and Leroy Lindley of Mansfield and Oxford, Ohio.

The Yes-Man Syndicate and Noba Inc. jointly purchased the Kellogg E Choice Pender son of $13,000. Bred and consigned by Laurie Wittstruck Askew of Hilmar, Calif., "Yes-Man" is from an 85-point Maurana Wis Telestar, Gold Star Dam with records to 31,620M 1,525F and 1,152P. She is also ranked second on the high-CPI list. Yes-Man's full ET sister sold to Herby D. Lutz of Chester, S.C., for $4,000.

The top selling cow was a preview of things to come at the Elsieview Dispersal, July 2 in Scenery Hill, Pa. Elsieview Farms Fayette Joan sold for $6,200 to Doug Stanton of Greenville, N.Y. This four-year-old made a 3-01 record of 18,740M 843F 666P in 305 days. This long-bodied cow sold, due in September to Tag Lane Ad Senior-ET. She was bred by James Celestine of Scenery Hill, Pa.

Marfred Kings Nancy was purchased by Spring Walk Farm of Big Prairie, Ohio, for $6,000. This fancy junior yearling heifer was consigned by Marfred Farm of Saluda, S.C. Sired by Clearbranch Jeans N P King-ET, she was the first place junior yearling at the 1990 Clemson Spring Show. Her dam is a 90-point Dutch Mill Telestars Fayette with over 18,700M 900F and 630P. The next dam is Excellent-91, Gold Star and a bull mother with over 120,000M lifetime.

Highlights of the sale were the numerous embryo packages offered for sale. Embryo packages included first choice of females from a number of confirmed pregnancies or a number of frozen embryos from top cow families and top A.I. sires. The prices garnered for these unborn embryos ranged from $2,900 to $1,350.

The sale was sponsored by the Indiana Guernsey Breeders, hosts of the 1990 National Convention. Managed by the Guernsey Marketing Service of Reynoldsburg, Ohio, the sales force also included auctioneer Merv Leffler of Marion, Ind. and pedigree reader Blaine Crosser, of Marysville, Ohio.

Lancaster Dairy Manager Continues Quest For Cheese Promo Title

TOWSON, Md. — Since 1985, Harry Krushinsky has participated in the spring and fall cheese display contests sponsored by the American Dairy Association and the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association. He has been awarded a third or fourth place prize in every contest.

Krushinsky is not your average dairy manager. Then again, the store that he works at is not an average, run-of-the-mill supermarket. Krushinsky has headed the dairy department at the Oregon Dairy Farm Market in Lititz, for the past 11 years. Originally with Pantry Pride, Krushinsky has been selling dairy products since the late 1950s.

While the average supermarket in the U.S. averages weekly sales of approximately $160,000 weekly, Oregon Dairy's cash registers are bringing in close to twice that amount. This family-owned operation just north of Lancaster generates $15 million in sales each year.

A number of factors go into the success of the dairy department at this store.

One is the fresh milk produced on the family farm right next to the store. The milk from more than 100 Holstein cows literally goes right from the farm into the back of the store where it is homogenized, pasteurized, and packaged for sale.

Krushinsky's latest contest entry in conjunction with A.D.A.'s $15 million "Double Cheese Burger Days" promotion features a stage with the all-American Cheeseburger Band. The band members were fashioned from point-of-sale materials featured in the promotion.

Krushinsky's display features over a ton and a half of cheese, ranging from Kraft Velveeta to Borden's Individually Wrapped Slices, to County Line Cheddar Sticks. In addition, he has tied in all the various items that go into a cookout including ground beef, hamburger buns, Ore-Ida French Fries, and Heinz sauces.

Krushinsky is hoping for a first place prize from the "Double Cheese Burger Days" contest. The judging of all entries will be conducted this summer by an independent firm selected by American Dairy Association officials.

deducted this summer by an independent firm selected by American Dairy Association officials.

Krushinsky said, "For the two weeks that the 'Double Cheese Burger Days' display will be in place, our cheese sales will increase by 30 percent. That's good business for the store." He added, "By living in a farming community and working right next to the farm that supplies our store, I can see how hard the dairy farmers work to produce these products. This is my way of saying thanks and paying them back."

Production Medicine Is Profitable

R. Dean Elliott
DVM, Troy Veterinary Clinic
"Production Medicine" is the buzz word among dairy practitioners today.

The term, in a nutshell, is the use of records and observations to trigger management changes in order to maximize your client's profits.

Higher client profits has always been the goal of good dairy practitioners. Recent developments with computers have greatly enhanced our abilities. I have been asked to share, in a series of articles, some of what we are trying to do with this in our practice.

I have to start somewhere, so I have chosen to start with production. I did this because of a simple analytical concept presented by Dr. Arden Nelson in a workshop put on by his production medicine group. The concept is PURR. These letters stand for Production, Udder health, Replacements, and Reproduction. These are the four management areas we try to influence.

PURR places these in the order of decreasing potential profits. More money can be attained faster working on a production problem, if one exists.

To find this out, we need to look at production records. Lactation curves are a nice visual way to look at past production by lactation groups. Pennsylvania DHIA Aris access has made this much easier to accomplish.

Upon obtaining written permission from a client, I can access his DHIA records. I then download large blocks of data from DHIA computers over the telephone lines. This information is stored in our computer's hard disc memory. We then use a Database program to generate reports such as lactation curves.

Curves are generated for three production groups. First, second, and third, or greater lactations. Each graph has goal curves for production, milk fat, and milk protein. This allows you to quickly compare the client's herd to an "average" high performance herd. Many times deficiencies show up in one or more of the curves.

A number of my clients have done pretty well feeding their third and greater lactation cows, but have low peaks and poor persistency (production drops off too fast) in the first and second lactations.

This identifies a problem but does not tell you the cause.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's this week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania. Remember these are averages so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

heifers' fat tests were consistently above the goal fat line and the late lactation heifers were thin. Second calf heifers were thin, peaked poorly and began their lactations with low fat tests.

production can mean that you are under feeding grain. Heifer production in this herd jumped dramatically when grain levels were increased.

Jacy Clugston Lancaster's Dairy Princess

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor
LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)—An enthusiastic crowd of dairy princess program supporters greeted the contestants at the 1990

Dairy Princess Pageant in the Farm and Home Center last Saturday night.

After the judges made their decision, Jacy Clugston, daughter of Kenneth and Phyllis Clugston, Manheim, was named the new Lancaster County Dairy Princess and Tammy Wanner, daughter of David and Ruth Wanner, Narvon, was named the alternate Lancaster County Dairy Princess.

Jacy took the role of Peter Pan to extol the merits of milk products. "You remember your mother told you to drink your milk, and she was right," Clugston said. And in answer to the question about personal values, the new dairy princess said every person is special, and to accept yourself in that light would eliminate a lot of jealousy and anger.

Tammy sang her presentation of an interchange between a dairy farm family and their city neighbors. The city neighbors got enlightened by what the farmer told them. In fact, they started a new life by using dairy products. Wanner said the love and kindness a person can show is of the greatest importance. These characteristics in a person would change many things in the world.

A new feature at this pageant was the introduction of six "Dairy Darlings." These small dairy farmers' daughters, age eight to ten years old, may someday be in line for the dairy princess title. Their cute responses to Angela Spickler's interview questions won the hearts of the audience.

In the cow coloring contest, the following winners were named:

Age 5: 1. Christian Milick; 2. Janice Le; 3. Lara Fry.
Age 6: 1. Jarrod Ringer; 2. Rebecca Jenkins; 3. Ashley Kline.

Age 7: 1. Ida Kerr; 2. Adam Kerlin; 3. Anthony Le.
Age 8: 1. Shawn Kreider; 2. Kim Martin; 3. George McConnell.

Angela Spickler, the 1989 Lancaster County Dairy Princess and Alternate State Dairy Princess, crowned the new princess and gave her farewell address.

"It has truly been an exciting year," Spickler said. "I am especially honored to have been able to represent Lancaster County. Now that my year as dairy princess has officially come to an end, I find that parting is a sweet sorrow. In many ways, I am excited about putting my experiences to use in other areas. However part of me will always want to be the one to stand up when someone says, 'We will now hear a few words from our Lancaster County Dairy Princess.'"

Tammy Wanner was named the 1990 Lancaster County dairy princess alternate.

Consumer Markets Are Sending New Pricing Signals To Dairymen

KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent
(First Of Two Parts)

FREDERICK, MD. — Concerned about how dairymen should respond to new signals from the marketplace, Gary Sheppard recently did a simple thing. The Westmoreland County Extension agent calculated the returns you could expect from a cow producing 16,000 pounds of milk containing 3.7 percent butterfat (roughly the state average in Pennsylvania) and one producing 17,575 pounds of 3.1-percent-fat milk. His underlying assumption was that feed and other costs would be the same for these two lactations, which represent the same level of fat-corrected milk.

Despite the fact that milk containing less than 3.5-percent fat is subject to a discount -- the butterfat differential in reverse -- Sheppard found that the lower-fat, higher-volume lactation was worth about $50 more at a time when the average blend price statewide was $12.50 and the butterfat differential was 14 cents a point. Since then, the blend price has risen and the differential has fallen.

Sheppard acknowledges his exercise was a simple one. In relating it, he does not mean to suggest that farmers ought to be trying to produce 3.1-percent-fat milk. Among other things, he didn't look at feeding problems or health consequences, he said. He merely meant to present evidence to question what has long been dogma, if not practice, among dairymen: the higher the fat test, the higher the return.

"Let's not worry so much about fat test," Sheppard said. "It's pretty much common knowledge that when you get fat, you give up volume."

Of course, to a certain extent, dairymen have been giving up fat for volume for years, as a result of breeding decisions based on the old Predicted Difference for pounds of milk (PD milk) or on PD$. In all the major dairy breeds, the average fat test has declined in recent years as volume has increased.

But farmers are still accustomed to considering the total pounds of fat as a measure of a cow's profitability and of feeding to maximize fat production. Sheppard's little study is but one example of the questions people have begun to raise now that traditional pricing relationships are changing.

One aspect of this change has been the rapid, even precipitous, decline in the butterfat differential in recent months, a downturn that echoes the falling price of butter, which reflects, in turn, decreases in the federal government's support price. Just a year ago, the government's Commodity Credit Corporation was paying $1.32 a pound for surplus butter. Currently, it is paying $.9825 and industry analysts expect another drop before the end of the year.

Since the beginning of 1989, U.S. Department of Agriculture officials have been tinkering with the purchase prices for the three commodities bought under the dairy price support program, lowering the butter price with every support price adjustment. In April, USDA even took the unprecedented step of lowering the butter purchase price unilaterally, without any overall support price adjustment. (The department boosted the support price for non-fat dry milk to compensate; technically, USDA could claim the overall support level remained unchanged at $10.10 a hundred-weight for milk testing 3.67-percent fat.)

The government's re-ordering of the pricing relationship between butter and powder is driven by the desire to cut federal spending. Given the fact that the government is buying surplus butter while the market continues to soak up the complementary powder, "it doesn't take a genius to figure out that it saves money on the budget," said James Fraher, an economist for Atlantic Dairy Cooperative.

The fact that this government policy reflects market reality makes it hard to dispute, Fraher noted. For several years, butter has been the major product bought by the government. In the 1988-89 marketing year, which ended last September, the 420 million pounds of butter bought by the CCC accounted for virtually the entire cost of the price support program, according to USDA figures. To date, the level of butter purchases is down somewhat in the current marketing year, but butter still accounts for almost all program costs.

Because the government uses a controversial butterfat-based calculation of milk equivalent, the butter surplus has dragged down the support price. Under the USDA formula, it's as if the government is buying 100 pounds of milk every time it buys 3.67 pounds of butter, despite the fact that the other solids from that hundredweight are being used commercially, according to Ed Coughlin, a lobbyist with the National Milk Producers Federation. Coughlin is one of those analysts who predicts that a continuation of the butter surplus will result in further cuts in the government purchase price.

Nevertheless, farm prices for total milk in the federal order system reached record levels last fall and remained high this spring, a reflection of the strong demand in the marketplace for milk to make cheese and powder. The combination of high overall prices with a shrinking value for butterfat sharpens the question of how dairymen should respond.

For instance, given a butterfat differential of 11.4 cents a point in May, the average producer in Federal Order 4 derived just 30 percent of his milk check from the butterfat he shipped. According to Fraher, that's probably a record low.

It wasn't that many years ago when the average Mid-Atlantic dairyman derived about half of his return from butterfat, according to Bob Yonkers, a Penn State University economist.

Yonkers, like Sheppard, said that dairymen should re-evaluate their feeding strategy because of these new numbers.

The fat-volume trade-off is only part of the story, however. That's because it doesn't address how farmers should be paid for that portion of their milk that isn't butterfat. Under the butterfat-volume pricing basis still in effect in most federal orders, for instance, dairymen receive the same price for a pound of water as they do for a pound of fat, according to Scott Bentley, a marketing specialist with National All-Jersey Inc.

Bentley is one of a growing number of industry observers who argue that some form of multiple component pricing is needed to address the unbalanced demand for milk's components.

"Dairy farmers will produce and market what we pay them to market and right now what we're telling them to market is as much skim as they can get their hands on and butterfat as well," he said.

National All-Jersey, a wing of the American Jersey Cattle Club, is dedicated to the increasing use of payment schemes under which farmers would be paid for their milk based on components in addition to butterfat, whether they be proteins or solids-not-fat. Such multiple component pricing is critical for the industry to remain market oriented, according to Bentley.

Although they may quibble about the details of a particular plan or the timetable for implementation, other analysts tend to agree.

"I think if we go out there and we hang price tags on these components and make payments to our producers with above-average test, then we will create an incentive for them to change the composition of their milk," Fraher said. "I think the signal's out there now, but it's muted."

second lactation took longer because body condition had to be put on late lactation heifers in order for them to freshen the second time and peak more normally.

Reproductive performance also improved in both groups, probably because they were not having their energy needs met.

Some other possible discoveries are:

- Low fat tests on the first test day might indicate poor body condition at freshening.
- Sudden sharp drops in the production curve can indicate problems in changing from one production group ration to another.

- Low fat test in all groups can indicate over grain feeding, too much free fat in the ration or not enough energy in the ration.

- Poor production in all groups with high fat tests can indicate a poor feed program or poor quality forages.

First and second lactation animals consistently out performing older cows may mean the dairyman is not culling for production.

This typically happens in dairies that are trying to increase cow numbers.

As I said earlier, lactation curves help identify problems. They may suggest causes. Almost always, further investigation is required.

Such things as body scoring, forage and ration evaluation, checking feeding schedules, and simply weighing feeds often supply the answers. I have seen an automatic feeder wreak havoc on a feed program because it was not properly calibrated. The solution was to weigh what it feeds and adjust it correctly.

Once changes are made, we run monthly curves in order to evaluate response. This can also be done by reports that split the three production groups into 0-100, 100-200, and 200 plus days in milk, if these numbers are monitored on a monthly basis.

I hope I have been able to show you one of the benefits of new technology. Mining your production records can provide nuggets of information that can put milk in your bulk tank and money in your pocket. The concept is true even if the wording is a little corny!

Promoting Pork Helps

Rohrer honored

But it took more than that for Kevin Rohrer, this year's All-American winner. Rohrer was honored for his extensive involvement with the local council and for his time working with local producers in promoting what NPPC dubs "Pork: The Other White Meat."

Kevin Rohrer has been in farming partnership with his father, Jay, since 1980, "five years after I was out of school," said Kevin. "The year I graduated, I built a small farrowing house and a nursery for myself with a 60-70 sow operation." That operation grew into a successful business, with a newly converted chicken house, 300 feet long by 40 feet wide, that houses the chickens upstairs and the hogs below.

The Rohrers own approximately 140 acres and farm an additional 300 acres. Half of the farm is outside of Manheim, and the rest near Elizabethtown. Crops grown include corn, rotated with soybeans, barley, along with eight acres of tobacco and a balance of soybeans. The Rohrers plant one vegetable crop each year — last year it was squash, and this year it is green beans.

They raise about 270 sows, 200 beef cattle, and 50,000-60,000 broiler chickens per year. The hogs, a combination of York and York/Hampshire crosses, are contracted through Pennfield Corpo-

The broiler chicks are obtained at 10,000 per flock. The Rohrers raise five flocks a year.

"We're a continuous farrowing operation," said Rohrer. "We farrow usually between 11 and 14 pigs every week. So every week we wean some pigs, take them away from the sows, and move them to a different room. And we market pigs every week."

Rohrer's days are solidly routine. "I may be in the hog house an average of 4 or 5 hours a day," he said. "I'm in 3 or 4 hours in the morning, and then an hour in the afternoon. I do a lot of work on the hogs. That's my main job, and my dad takes care of a lot of the field work, except when we're really busy in the field — then I'm out there."

'Right now we're basically trying to see where the new gene-deleted vaccines are going to take us.'

Earn recognition

But working with the pigs wasn't enough to earn Rohrer the recognition as an All-American by the NPPC. It was a combination of hard work and dedication to the local industry that helped net him the award.

"We're a continuous farrowing operation," said Rohrer. "We farrow usually between 11 and 14 pigs every week." But working with the pigs wasn't enough to earn Rohrer the recognition as an All-American by the NPPC. It was a combination of hard work and dedication to the local industry that helped net him the honor.

Served as secretary

Rohrer has served as secretary of the local board to "promote interaction between pork producers on the local level here," he said.

Part of that interaction is discussing the latest health problems with the local herds. In this case, work has been revolving heavily around pseudorabies.

Pseudorabies is a herpes-like disease that affects the health and breeding capability of the hogs. The disease will kill baby pigs up us," said Rohrer, "and whether we're going to be able to work out pseudorabies reduction using the vaccine."

The local council is "trying to get people to use the vaccine and to get farmers to clean the herds up."

In the past, most hog farmers had to depopulate — destroy the herd — and thoroughly clean the house to get rid of the disease. This cost a great deal of money, and often farmers could not repopulate the operation until six months or a year later. Often, the disease was back within four years.

Had vaccines

"Up until this point, they had vaccines, but they couldn't tell the difference between a vaccinated pig and a pig that got the disease naturally," he said. "Any pig that tested positive, whether it was vaccinated or field-strain virus, was considered field-strain positive."

A test kit is included with the new gene-deleted vaccine. The kit indicates whether the disease is a vaccinated strain, the gene-deleted vaccinated strain, or field strain. According to Rohrer, after determining what kind of infection it was, the farmer could then pull all the field strains out of the herd.

The new gene-deleted vaccine test "looks fairly promising." Rohrer is concerned that more farmers should become aware of the test, especially hog operations in the northern and northeastern sections of Lancaster County.

Farmers may be faced with depopulation as a result of the disease. The vaccine may be one way to help rid the problem herd without the expense of total depopulation.

Lot of expense

"You're looking at a lot of expense and there's quite a few people I know that have depopulated and have gotten the disease back within anywhere from six months and four years later," he said.

Rohrer thinks that more research has to be done to prove whether the new tests will succeed. "I think we'll basically wait and see what the new vaccines are going to offer us, and see whether we can test out of it that way before we go the route of depopulation," he said. "It's a disease they need to do a little more research on and find out more things about before they can think about cleaning it up."

In the meantime, Rohrer enjoys working with the pigs and continuing his work with the NPPC.

'They don't just pick the biggest producers. They usually look at your production records and your activities in the local and state associations and also your activities in other organizations.'

"They're coming up with a new program promoting clean, residue-free pork," Rohrer said. "They're trying to keep us informed on how to get pork leaner so it doesn't carry quite as much fat and waste."

Many packers are demanding that producers raise a leaner pig.

"They send out information to each pork producer concerning withdrawal times and setting up different levels that you can be on by completing these pamphlets," he said. "(They ask) whether you clean out your mixer after mixing medicated feed. Also on how you keep your operation clean — to assure the public that they're getting a good supply of meat."

The chickens on the Rohrer farm are contracted through Charles Poultry, which sells the live birds to a New York specialty market. Here, Rohrer stands near a trough in the chicken house, located above the hog facility.

ration, and the chickens are contracted through Charles Poultry, which sells the live birds to a New York specialty market. Most of the feed is supplied by Pennfield, except for the beef cattle, which is about 1/4 feed from crops raised on the farm. The remainder is cash crop.

Beef cattle

The beef cattle consists of black and black/white face Angus, some Charolais, and a few Herefords. The beef cattle are obtained at 850-1,000 pounds and finished to market weight. They are sent to Moyer Company for slaughter.

Part of that work was being heavily involved in the local industries and the statewide promotion of pork products.

"The award was basically for production and involvement in activities with the local, state, and national boards," said Rohrer. "It's based on activities in NPPC plus the production records, to a point."

Rohrer said, "They don't just pick the biggest producers. They usually look at your production records and your activities in the local and state associations and also your activities in other organizations."

'There's quite a few people I know that have depopulated and have gotten the disease back within anywhere from six months and four years.'

to two weeks old, and other pigs will get sick.

Rohrer is involved on the state Swine Health Advisory Board. "Often we get an educational meeting together or get information out on pseudorabies — what's going on with the disease and what's new."

Local board

The local pork producers board, from Lancaster and Chester counties, meets at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center about five times a year. Right now the group is looking closely at the spread of pseudorabies and methods to stop the disease.

"Right now we're basically trying to see where the new gene-deleted vaccines are going to take

Ag Board Submits Program

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — The Cumberland County Agricultural Land Preservation Board has submitted its program to the State Board for review. The county board was created in November of 1989 by County Commissioners' resolution number 89-16.

Pursuant to Act 149, Board composition is one township supervisor, two farmers, one contractor, and one at-large appointment to serve as chairman. Filling the positions are Jacob Heisey, supervisor, from Monroe Township; Francis Mains, farmer from West Pennsboro Township; Lynn Wingert, farmer from Upper Allen Township; Donald Mowery, contractor/developer from Carlisle; and Robert Lisse, assessment and tax administrator, who serves as chairman of the board.

Chief feature of the program is the numerical ranking system which favors soil quality as the prime ingredient to be considered. Also taken into consideration are development pressures, conservation practices, size of site, tenure of ownership, and special conditions.

Under ACt 149, the county may purchase agricultural easements from those farmers in agricultural security areas who apply. Land purchased would remain as farm land in perpetuity. Agricultural security areas have been established in the county by North Newton Township, Monroe Township and Penn Township.

When the board receives final approval of its proposed program, public information meetings will be held in all municipalities which have established agricultural security areas by that time.

Mummert of Chambersburg, PA and Mark Calvin of Mt. Vernon MO were both recipients of honorable mention certificates. Other participants in the contest were Amy Church of Cresco, IA; Edward Monter of Alliance, OH; Tamara Sack from Baldwin, KS; Develyn Ann Sargent from Cynthia, KY; Tammy Tinsley, Pelzer, SC and Julie Zirk from Elroy, WI.

Crowned the 1990 National Guernsey Queen was Beth Ann Clark of Bedford, PA. She is the 18-year-old daughter of Sherill Clark. A biology pre-med and secondary education major at Carlow College, Clark has received many 4-H and scholarship awards.

Elizabeth Zimmerman of Frederick, MD and Pamela Miller of Huntington, IN were named the National Guernsey princesses.

The other contestants were Joann Boesche of DeKalb, IL;

Amy Eberhard, Mechanicsburg, OH; Angela Eisner, Chesapeake, VA; Kimberly Meyer, Hammond NY; Tammy Tinsley, Pelzer, SC and Colleen Voight of Reedsville, WI.

This year the awards for the first Guernsey Gold Production Contest were also presented. A group of open heifers were selected in 1987 to be offered for sale to junior members. These animals have now completed their first lactations and based on four percent, fat corrected milk (FCM), Marfred Fayette Helene was the recipient of the award. Herby D. Lutz of Chester, SC is the owner of this cow. At 2-02 on a 4% FCM she had 24,153M.

Second was Woodwind Ron Sophia with 2-01 21,117M owned by Bradley Wagoner of Bloomington, IL. Valley Veue F Lorna, owned by Carolin Josi of Tillamook, Oregon was third with 2-03 20,845M while Wincrest Volt Jola had 2-00 14,890M for owner Laurel Knight of Prosser, WA. Also recognized were Greg DeForest, Leslie, MI; Jennifer Lynn Mitoefer of Claypool IN and Jason Lapa, Hemlock MI.

This year's National Junior Gold Star Breeders were based on a January 1990 Yield Deviation (YD) of +1,000, +50F or over. The final score of the entry must also be one point above breed average for the entry's age group. This year's recipients were Dolly Run DRS Sherri, owned by Jessica Kunz of Pennsylvania; Berryman Farm TF Helen, owned by James Berryman of Kentucky; Family Hill Ron Trixie and Family Hill Big Tec Joan, both owned by Aaron Lancaster of Washington; Tag Lane Playboy Eden, owned by Karie Griswold of Wisconsin, and Wampanoag RH Sweet Lynn, owned by Develyn Ann Sargent.

A total of 57 entries were made in the 23rd annual junior production contest. Seven animals placed in the top five of each category.

The awards are given based on 305D-2X-ME records. Two juniors had more than one animal win awards.

Herby D. Lutz placed first for butterfat and third for milk with Marfred R Devine, 4-11 22,699M 1,103F. Marfred Fayette Helene ranked third for butterfat with 1,069F. John Madsen of Temecula, CA also had two winners with Olympic View F Bonnie-ET who was first for protein, second for milk and fourth for butterfat with 2-02 24,614M 1,060F 936P. Bay Meadow Elvis Daisy was third for protein and fifth for milk with 2-02 21,240M 788P.

Also winning a national junior award was Jerome Edwards of Oakville, WA, with Five Star Revenue Robin who was fourth for protein and fifth for butterfat at 2-00 1,014F 756P. Jason Edwards of Oakville, WA, had first milk, second butterfat and protein production awards with Rozelyn LTB Bessie who had 2-01 25,596M 1,076F 905P. Aaron Lancaster also received an award with Family Hill Big Tex Joan, fourth for milk and fifth for protein with 22,361M 750P.

In the production category for the best group of three cows, seven groups placed in the top five.

The junior member and the average follows: Develyn Ann Sargent, fifth milk, 18,113M 693F 603P; Herby D. Lutz, first milk and butterfat, third protein, 20,872M 1,003F 670P; Kari Wenger, Goshen, IN; third butterfat, 17,692M 884F 608P; Murray Weaver, Goshen, IN, third milk, fourth butterfat and protein, 19,114M 863F 636P; Daniel Ripley, fifth butterfat and protein, 17,307M 809F 619P; Jerome Edwards, first protein, second butterfat, fourth milk, 18,456M 924F 701P and Aaron Lancaster, second milk and protein, 20,636M 794F 681P.

Turning to dairy industry facts and figures in the Quiz Bowl contest which features AGA junior members in a double elimination competition. The Indiana team of Todd Riggs, Kent Wenger of Goshen, Becky Klingel of Portland, and Murray Weaver of Goshen won the national senior title. The second-place team was from Pennsylvania.

The Hoosiers also swept the junior division with team members Amanda Sparks of Greenfield, Steve Knox of Frankfort, Brian Witham of Lebanon and Brian Riggs of Evansville. They were coached by David Witham of Lebanon. The team from Pennsylvania also took second in the junior division.

District IV Jersey Cattle Show Set For Mid-August

COLUMBIA CROSS ROADS (Bradford Co.) — Those interested in showing their prize Jersey cattle at the fifth annual District IV Jersey Parrish Show held in Troy should start sending in their entry applications.

Officials with the show said that although the show isn't until August 15 at the Troy Fair Grounds, the deadline for entry is August 8, and potential competitors should start sending entries. All entries for the the 27-class show must be in the barns by 10 p.m., August 14, so that a veterinarian can check animals and health papers. Troy Fair Rules and State Health regulations govern entries.

Entrants must supply their own bedding and feed. A vacuum milking system is to be available.

The show officially kicks off at 9:30 a.m., August 15 and follows through class competitions. Those planning to compete in all group and fat classes must be pre-entered, which requires the previous year's DHIA lactation report for the fat class.

Pizza and soda will be available for all entrants during the evening August 14. Breakfast the next morning is available at a nominal cost, according to planners. The noon meal is to be a picnic in which those planning to eat need to bring a dish for the buffet and their own table service.

During previous years, there have been farms and farm families that have sponsored various classes for a usual donation of $25. Officials said however, that any amount affordable is appreciated.

For more information call Nellie Warner at (717) 549-4881 or Denise Kneller at (717) 297-4303.

the state Attorney General's office.

According to officials, the new regulations are basically what the board had been following to approve the easements already purchased.

The printed regulations, about a 1/4-inch thick, outline minimum standards for soil quality, crop standards and other agriculturally-oriented characteristics of proposed farms to ensure that counties are securing good farmland and not land better suited for other purposes.

Farmland preservation law was created last year, in response to public outcry over the need to preserve land for farming. Many traditional farms and high-quality cropland has been lost because skyrocketing real estate values make using land for agricultural production virtually an impossible profitable venture.

In order to keep land in farming, the law attempts to set up a groundwork for each county in which development easements can be purchased and retained by the local governments.

The goal of the law is two-fold: to compensate farmland owners who would otherwise stand to lose hundreds of thousands of dollars if they sold the land as is, only to be resold or used for non-agricultural purposes at significantly higher prices; and to maintain some control over loss of valuable farmland within a county.

Specifically, the law had authorized a temporary state preservation board with a one-year deadline to create a permanent set of regulations governing the purchase of easements, and the law also set a time table for counties' use of allocation of the $100 million bond.

Shelia Miller, aide to Sen. Edward Helfrick, R-Elysburg, is executive director of the Senate Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee, which Helfrick chairs.

According to Miller, the amendments were a bipartisan effort to get the program back on its feet and correct some apparent deficiencies.

A number of legislators, from both parties and both branches of the General Assembly co-sponsored the amendments.

"Covered (in the amendments) are three items that are in the law now, but the main thing is to allow the state board to meet Wednesday," Miller said early in the week.

In addition to extending the life of the board, those three other changes now in the amended law are: extending by a year the time counties can retain rights to their initial and second state allocations for development easement purchases; providing guidelines for members of a county farmland preservation board to sell easements to the county (a possible conflict of interest could have occurred without the guidelines); and spells out the participation of the Commonwealth and counties with regard to

Lori Hess Named Columbia/ Luzerne Dairy Princess

BLOOMSBURG, (Columbia Co.) — The Columbia-Luzerne Dairy Princess Coronation was held on June 19, 1990 at the Light-street Grange in Bloomsburg. A roast beef dinner was served at 7:30 p.m., followed by the crowning of the 1990 Dairy Princess Lori Hess by the 1989 Princess Maggie Manzoni.

Lori entertained the crowd with a presentation she called "Her Milk Family" with herself being dressed in a large milk carton as "Skim Milk." Lori is the 17-year-old daughter of Franklin and Nancy Hess and lives on the 410-acre farm that has been in the family for more than 80 years. Her father, mother and brother Neil all work in the family agri-business "DeLaval Dairy Equipment."

Lori attends the Benton Area High School and plays clarinet in the school band. She is active in many community affairs, playing piano and clarinet with "The Small World Club," Catawissa Military Band, Bloomsburg University Orchestra and the Lions Club Band. She has won county, regional and district competition and will be going to St. Louis in July to play in the 1990 all State Lions Band.

Lori is looking forward to attending Brigham Young where she will major in music. She hopes to teach music.

Lori enjoys working with people and will devote one full year promoting dairy products in Columbia and Luzerne counties.

Wayne County Youths Win State Shooting Tournament

ORANGEVILLE (Columbia Co.) — A team of junior-age competitors from Wayne County emerged as the top-scoring team at the "1990 Pennsylvania Youth Hunter Education Shooting Tournament" that was held here in early June at the Orangeville Sports-men's Club.

Members of this winning junior team (12-14 years of age) are: Joshua Racht, Waymart; George Waters Jr., Waymart; Nathan Gries, Milanville; Matthew Yerkes, Milanville; and Daniel Gustafson, Tyler Hill.

The tournament, which was sponsored by the Pennsylvania Game Commission, consisted of four events: Hunter Responsibility/Wildlife Identification Test, small caliber (.22 caliber) target shooting, hunter's clays and archery target shooting.

This team is now preparing for the "1990 Hunter Education Invitational" scheduled for July 23 to July 26, at Camp McCain, in Grenada, Miss. This team will be Pennsylvania's representative in the junior-age competition at this event.

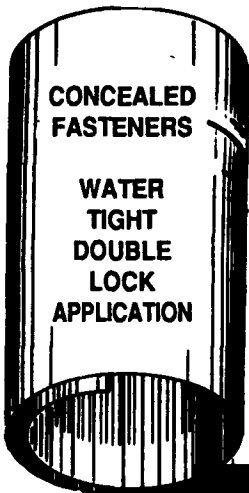

The junior team members also placed well as individuals. Racht placed first in small caliber riflery and was top overall junior-age shooter. Waters was third high individual in small caliber riflery and third high overall shooter. Gustafson and Yerkes tied for third place in the sporting (hunter's) clays competition.

Michael Mang, a member of the senior-age team from Wayne County, tied for first place high individual in the small caliber riflery competition.

The coaches of these two teams are Steve Reed and Leslie Mang, both of Honesdale.

Celebrate Dairy Month, High Milk Prices

Thomas Jurchak
Lackawanna Extension Agent
SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — What a way to celebrate June Dairy Month with product prices on the rise in the spring and bringing the promise of higher milk prices at the farm.

We should be used to dairy product price fluctuations by now, since they have been gyrating for over a year, but this time, coming in the spring without the help of government price supports, is a first for the records.

You may have gotten used to fluctuating cheese prices, but the end isn't in sight.

You knew they went down to $1.28 in April from a high of $1.50 in November, when the Minnesota Wisconsin Price Series nose dived $2.91 in three months from $14.93 to $12.02. It dropped your blend price in Order 2 from $15.47 to $12.75 in four months.

However, it wasn't only cheese prices that fed the M-W. Powder prices reached new highs in response to a strong export demand last year.

That dried up in 1990 and prices fell from $1.32 to $1.07, but are not responding to an increase in domestic demand and have advanced from three to five cents just in May.

And if that isn't enough good news, even butter, the only dairy product left for give away programs, has shown new strength this month with an increase of .0175 cents that at least brought the market price up to the support price and lowered Commodity Credit Corporation purchases to the lowest since mid December in what is supposed to be the spring flush.

If you want more, ask the market administrator in Federal Order 68, the Upper Midwest that includes Minnesota and parts of Wisconsin. America's dairyland is where a "call" order of 16.5 percent for fluid milk was issued for the first time ever in June indicating that some supply - demand problems still exist in that area in spite of slight increases in production over last year but still three percent below 1988.

Nationally milk production is on the rise and may catch up to demand sometime in the future but for the present let's enjoy the rising prices that seldom come with June Dairy Month.

Cheeses Again

So far we've only looked at dairy product price changes in June but it was what happened in May that will put the dollars in your milk check now and for the next two months.

I've already mentioned the nose dive of $2.91 in the M-W from January to March but in April, when normally it would have continued to drop, it increased 30 cents from $12.02 to $12.32 (mainly on cheese price increases).

Coming in April that was good news, but just when everyone thought it would level off for the season it jumped another 46 cents to $12.78 for May, setting a record high for the month.

That makes it $1.66 higher than last April and $2.90 above the support price.

On the average, 100 pounds of milk will yield 10 pounds of cheese so that 7.5-cent increase in cheese prices accounted for the 75-cent increase in the M-W from $12.02 in March to $12.78 in May.

Putting it another way, prices this year in April are at the same level they were last year in September.

That's not supposed to happen in the milk business without government tinkering in the market. But it is happening now and it's just one more abnormality to confound the price predictors.

So, enjoy the confusion in the market and take all you can while you can get it but don't forget to save some for the day when normalcy returns. One good growing season could do it and this may be the one.

Now Milk Prices

So much for the future.

What you want now are the numbers that will show up on your next milk check. Here the news is good also, mainly because of a 44-cent increase in the Class II price for May that countered a 20-cent drop in the Class I price and a 40-cent payment for the Louisville Plan.

Put them all together they spell $12.83 as the blend price for May in Order 2. That's eight cents better than last month but $1.41 better than a year ago.

Production is climbing seasonally and fluid sales will drop with the closing of schools but everything indicates that you have already passed the low point of prices for this year in April and that should help you celebrate June Dairy Month.

Important Changes

Perhaps you forgot all those hearings on federal orders for the New York - New Jersey, Middle Atlantic and New England marketing areas held back in 1988 in June and November and again in August 1989. Now you have a recommended decision issued by the USDA that, after exceptions are filed and considered will be voted on in a referendum for all producers shipping to handlers selling dairy products in those marketing areas.

It's all part of the requirements for amending federal orders that every producer should understand. Any changes in federal orders are important to producers, but this time, with three marketing areas and nearly 24,000 producers affected, the changes will have a wider impact especially for Order 2. That area accounts for 56 percent of the farmers and 50 percent of the milk in the three orders.

Many of the changes will bring more uniformity between the three orders and also with the 39 other federal orders in the country. Hopefully, the changes will also provide more equitable costs between handlers whether fluid and processing; close to consumption areas or further out and those competing in local as well as national markets.

That's really one of the pur-

State Dairy Youths Set Records

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State dairy youth are on a roll. 4-H and FFA members broke all the cattle records at the 1988 and 1989 Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show here each fall. And some 3,700 farm kids are gearing up this summer to do it again, predicted new show manager Dale Olver.

"We fully expect entries to go over the 1,000 mark," said the Penn State dairy extension specialist. The old record of 996 animals was set in 1989.

The 35th Pennsylvania Junior Show will be held September 24, opening day of the prestigious Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show at the Farm Show Complex.

Combined entries for the two shows could hit 2,500, making All-American Week the biggest dairy happening in the nation.

The giant Eastern show will feature six nationally sanctioned breed shows and four sales during its four-day run September 24 through 27. Sleek purebred cattle are expected from 30 states and Canadian provinces.

One reason for Olver's optimism is the growing popularity of 4-H dairy projects. He notes five percent more members than a year ago are setting their sights for the Harrisburg championships.

FFA participation has held about even, according to Larry Redding, state FFA advisor.

But to get there, 4-H members must first win at one of 40 local dairy shows across the state next month, and then score big at a regional show in August, Olver emphasizes. He says only about one fourth the 4-H cattle will qualify for the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show.

Future Farmers qualify their animals at six regional shows, Redding said.

"Everyone's a winner," Olver said. "Those participating learn something about leadership, teamwork and caring for animals."

The Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show is one of four events that are expected to draw 1,400 junior showman and judges to the 1990 All-American. Also scheduled are the Invitational Youth Dairy Cattle Judging Contest on Monday, Sept. 24, and the Junior Dairyman Contest and Pennsylvania Dairy Judging Forum, Tuesday, Sept. 25.

Additional information and entry blanks for junior events are available from Charles A. Idle, manager, Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show, Farm Show Complex, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408. Or by calling (717) 787-2905.

poses of federal orders — to provide a level playing field for handlers and producers so one doesn't have a built-in advantage over producers and handlers within the order and between orders or marketing areas.

One of the most important recommendations is for three classes of milk utilization.

Class I will be all fluid products; Class III will be butter, powder and all cheeses except cottage cheese and Class II will be all the soft products that are now included in Class II.

The new Class III price will be the same as the current Class II price and the new Class II price will be determined by a formula that will average 10 cents above the current Class II price.

Another change will be a lowering of the Class 1 differential in Order 2 from $2.55 to $2.42 along with some increases in transportation differentials both inside and beyond the 201-210 mile zone.

Order 2 will also have shipping requirements during the fall and winter months so all dealers will have to market five or ten percent of their milk for fluid use. This will reduce the need for call orders but they still can be used.

One of the proposals not included was a change in the seasonal incentive plans. New York and New England use the Louisville Plan and Middle Atlantic uses the base excess plan but no changes were made in the recommendation so these will remain the same.

NUMBER ONE IN RESEARCH

Big Yields On Lighter Soils.

This fast-growing Group III variety combines drought adaptability with very good Phytophthora tolerance. For maximum yield and stress tolerance. This high-performance variety does well with no-till practices, and we recommend planting at moderate populations in 30-inch rows AP-3023 has a very good resistance to shattering, protecting your yield when harvest is slightly delayed.

AP-4321

Short, Stout and Bred to Yield.

You can expect big yields when you plant this high profit early Group IV variety on your better soils. It adapts very well to narrow-row planting and responds strongly to fertility. AP-4321 produces excellent yields without lodging. It's an excellent companion to popular AP-350.

AP-350

The Soybean The Others Would Love to Beat!

This proven performer is the benchmark early Group IV variety.

Maturity is 4 days later than Williams 82, and 1 day later than AP-4321. It produces consistently high yields and has excellent resistance to Phytophthora root rot. AP-350 does well even on wider rows and adapts to a wide variety of soil conditions and management practices.

Dairy Bowl Team Loses Bid For National Title

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff
CHARLESTON, S.C. — The six-member dairy bowl team representing Pennsylvania lost its bid to take a national title this past week.

A team from the New England region captured the 1990 national win. The tournament was held during the 105th Annual Convention of the Holstein-Friesian Association in Charleston, S.C.

Junior members of the Holstein-Friesian Association meet during the convention, discuss business, compete for the dairy bowl title and spend some time taking in historic and educational tours.

There is also competition for the title of Junior Distinguished Member.

However, the team from Lebanon County, which had high expectations and showed lots of promise during earlier competitions, had lost its two, first-round competitions.

The quick elimination was surprising.

The four actual players consisted of two women - Rebecca Sonnen, the former state dairy princess, and Terry Hill, the current Lebanon County Dairy Princess - and two men who have earned numerous ribbons and trophies for their Holstein cattle - Duane Nolt and David Lentz.

All, including alternates Sherry Donmoyer and former Lebanon County princess Kynel Bomgardner, have deserved reputations for possessing a great amount of knowledge about the dairy industry.

But, according to team members, the loss was not due to a lack of dairy knowledge - rather the use of a wrong stratagem.

A written test given the night prior to the start of the double elimination tournament had Lebanon County seeded second to the team from New York. The New York team finished second in the quiz competition.

Dairy bowl competitions are similar to television quiz games. During the first phase, teams are isolated and teams accumulate points based on accuracy of answers to dairy industry questions. Incomplete answers receive no points.

The second phase of competitions vies both teams against each other in a test of speed to touch off a button. In this phase incorrect answers result in points deducted from the total score.

Terry Hill, Lebanon dairy bowl competitor, said Wednesday during a telephone interview from her hotel room after the finals, that the Lebanon team actually was winning both competitions going into the second phases of both games.

"In the final round, we knew most of the questions. They were extremely easy questions. We were making it harder than it was," Hill said.

"We thought they were going to be trick questions, because they sounded too easy at first, so we waited until the question was finished. But they weren't trick questions, they were easy. We were not buzzing quick enough.

"In both of the first phases we were beating both of them. We lost in the second phases, it was matter of who hit buzzer first," she said.

"I think state competition was harder than here," Hill said, referring to the types of questions posed during the national competitions.

During the state competitions, Hill said questions were trickier and more complicated. The Lebanon team also had a rougher time of it, losing its first state game, then coming back through the losers' bracket to eventually defeat the top winners' bracket team twice to take the title.

"I'm disappointed we didn't win the national title," Hill said. "But I'm happy we made it this far."

Hill also said that despite the loss to take the top title, the entire process the dairy bowl offers makes everyone a winner.

"Everybody grew a lot closer through the contest," she said.

In other business, Hill reported that Tammy Balthaser also lost in her bid to be one of six Distinguished Junior Members nationally.

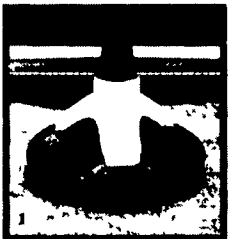

Those who did earn the title were Daniel Carroll, Minnesota, Jeffrey DeWall, Illinois, Jeffrey King, New York, Katherine McComb, Virginia, Marie Rindsig, Wisconsin, and Scott Ruby, from Oregon.

H2 Broiler Feeder With Flood Gates Open, Fills Pan With Overflow Onto The Paper For Quick Starts With Minimum Waste.

H2 Turkey Poult Feeder Has Feed Chutes To Fill Pan Without Any Spillage Onto Shavings.

Pan Hangs On Cone For Easy Cleaning.

- OUR 10-YEAR WARRANTY on the auger and 5-year warranty on the pan says it all - WE STAND BEHIND IT!

FEED WINDOW (when Feed Gate is open) automatically floods pan with feed to attract chicks from day one. Saves labor — no more hauling and scooping feed into feeder pans!

LARGE DOME discourages growing birds from getting into pan.

SELF-LEVELING PAN — a patented Chore-Time feature — cuts feed waste and bird bruising since pans can swing.

UNIQUE PAN SHAPE and low pan height is ideal for chicks, with no grill to obstruct eating. Pan has 13-inch diameter.

BUILT-IN HIGH CONE evenly distributes feed in pan, prevents stale feed buildup in feed level tube.

- ALL-PLASTIC FEEDER consists of 3 simple, rugged polypropylene parts for permanent corrosion-proofing. Pan easily removes for clean-out and hangs from feeder for drying and storage.

ROLL-FORMED TUBE is galvanized inside and out for rust-resistance.

MINIMAL FEED STORAGE within dome means fresh feed quickly to all birds.

EASY-TO-ADJUST FEED LEVEL lets you set feed opening to allow for different types of feed you might decide to use.

DOUBLE FEED-SAVER LIP on pan limits raking and billing and helps you save every bit of precious feed.

Local ABS Reps, Farmers Meet Company Heads

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — A number of local farmers and workers for American Breeders Service (ABS) recently were part of a "first" for the North East region in which the cattle genetics company serves, according to its district sale manager.

Wendell Mickelsen, district sales manager for this mid-Eastern coastal area, said that to knowledge district representatives of ABS for the first time shared their annual banquet, held at Willow Valley Conference Center, with seven top and two regional administrators of the large company, including its president.

Normally, one or two representatives from the Madison, Wisc.-based company is guest to the banquet of representatives and wives. However, this year since the company convention was held within a day of the banquet in Ocean City, N.J., company administrators were able to attend the district banquet.

Special guests from headquarters included: Dr. John Sullivan, president, who also was guest speaker; Dave Finlon, vice president of finance; Jake Walters, vice president of international sales; Steve Yaun, manager of marketing services; Russ Berna, director of domestic sales; Alice Langer, executive secretary to the vice president of marketing; and Mark Kautzky, accounting supervisor.

Mickelsen acted as master of ceremonies. With a business office in Ephrata, Mickelsen is responsible for sales in the district comprised of eastern Pennsylvania, south-eastern New York, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland.

Changes For the 1990s

As guest speaker, Sullivan talked about technology changes expected within the artificial insemination industry during the 1990s.

Sullivan outlined a number of changes ranging from selling semen already classed for offspring sex, selling of cloned embryos, genetic engineering of the gene responsible for production of the growth hormone, and identification of young sires who are homozygous for the kappa caesin gene.

Also speaking was director of domestic sales Berna who talked about changes in the marketing system and changes in responsibilities of ABS representatives. Such changes, he said will come about because of the decreasing number of cows.

According to Berna, the future for representatives will see a more specialized field and the selling of more of the more non-basic products. Instead of selling semen, the other futuristic products, that Sullivan predicted will come about, will be the wares of representatives in the 1990s.

On The Front Line

June 20, local farmers got to meet some of the company heads also, as local representatives arranged to take the business leaders on tours of clients farms.

Four of the administrators, including Sullivan, spent the day working with representatives and talking to local dairymen about their needs and future direction of ABS.

Sullivan was paired up with field representative Keith Campbell, from Akron.

Awards Presented

In other business, several awards were presented based on career achievements for genetic mating service cow (GMS) and units of semen sold, number of evaluations for GMS, and years of service.

Paul Martin, Schaefferstown was named 1989 representative of the year. Rob Fulper, Lambertville, N.J., was runnerup for the title.

Taking honors for doing at least 5,000 GMS was Paul Herr. Quarryville, Keith Campbell, Akron, and Rob Fulper.

In the 12,000 GMS class was Ira Boyer, of York. Boyer also received awards for more than 15 years service and selling more than 100,000 units of semen.

Honored for having more than 25,000 career GMS cows was James Charles, of Columbia. He was also recognized for selling more than 150,000 units of semen.

Howard Loomis, of Terre Hill, received an award for performing more than 75,000 cow evaluations for the GMS program.

Dr. John Sullivan, president of American Breeders Service, recently spent a day talking to Lancaster County farmers and sales representatives about ABS products and the future of genetics.

toxic wastes that may be illegally dumped on the land (governing bodies are now considered only easement holders and take on no additional liability interest in the land).

Miller said a York County commissioner had pushed for the extension because that county — still without an approved plan for purchasing easements, but granted state funding based on local funds raised — faced losing its state aid.

"It takes pressure off the counties, other than Lancaster County — which was the only one up and running — Lancaster County had a start and has been out front in leading this program statewide," Miller said.

The reactivated board approved a number of items Wednesday.

According to Barry Frantz, a soil conservationist and staff member on the state Bureau of Farmland Protection, Montgomery County became the sixth county to receive approval of its easement purchasing plan.

Other counties already set up to purchase such easements include Berks, Bucks, Chester, Lancaster and Lehigh counties.

Montgomery has put up local money in past two years and received allocations enabling the county officials to spend almost $4 million to secure farmland development rights.

Frantz said that in 1989, Montgomery put up $400,000 and received an additional $1,661,106 in state funds. In 1990, the southeastern county set aside $200,000 more of its own money and received an additional $1,310,417 in state matching and grant funds.

According to Frantz, the approved Montgomery County plan is unique, but that each county plan is different in some respects.

"None of the programs have been like the others," Frantz said. "I think it (Montgomery County's plan) follows a similar tact of Berks, Bucks and Lehigh in that it is targeting more rural areas."

He explained that the Lancaster County plan is targeted at getting development rights on farms at the edge of urban spread.

In other action, Frantz said the board on Wednesday approved some minor changes to the Berks County program.

"They changed some of the factors in farm evaluation systems, basically taking a five-mile radius, lowering it to two miles," he said. "Also in Berks County, in determining appraisal, they will not be considering zoning classification."

"The last one (change to Berks County program), when surveying a property that is to be in the program, if a survey is required by the county, but partially to the benefit of the landowner, the cost of doing the survey would be pro-rated, according to the ratio of benefits derived," Frantz said.

In Lancaster County, the board Wednesday approved spending additional funds toward additional costs for legal fees, recording fees and title insurance on four farms which already had closing down on the easements.

The additional funds amounted to less than $1,500 per farm, according to Frantz.

The board also approved the purchase of the 221-acre Harold Trimble family farm in Drumore Township for an approved easement price of $162,000.

Frantz said the farm was described as being a 161-herd dairy operation.

He said that although Lancasterians have previously undergone purchasing of development easements without state help, the Trimble farm has become the largest and sixth farm to have been purchased by the leading county with the help of state money.

The county has contributed $40,500 toward the purchase of the Trimble farm, Frantz said. The remainder comes from state funds.

In other action, the board set tentative dates for future meetings, most likely meeting at Ag Progress Days in mid-August.

Daniella Smith Is Adams Co. Princess

And GINGER MYERS

BIGLERVILLE (Adams Co.)—The Adams County dairy princess pageant was held recently on a muggy Saturday evening in June. An audience of nearly 200 people and four intelligent and attractive princess contestants made for an exciting, entertaining pageant. When the evening was concluded, Danielle Smith was crowned the new dairy princess.

Danielle is the 17-year-old daughter of Robert and Shirley Smith, York Springs. They reside at Buttonwood Farm and have a herd of registered Holsteins. Danielle, a senior at Bermudian Springs High School, is active in band, chorus, and two 4-H clubs. She wore a tea-length, cobalt blue gown of silk tafetta.

Danielle's promotion skit portrayed her as the coach of a winning team of dairy products. With a beautiful, bright smile, she answered the final question concisely and confidently. When asked, "How would you address a weight-watchers' group about the benefits of dairy products?" Danielle explained about the various low-fat dairy products.

Christine Todt is the new Adams County dairy princess alternate, and she will be working closely with Danielle at various promotions. Christine is the 20-year-old daughter of Donald and Clara Todt. They reside at Todtdale farm and have a herd of registered Holsteins.

Christine was active in the 4-H dairy club for 10 years and also with the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association. For her promotional skit, Christine played the part of BoPeep, a popular nursery rhyme character. She wore a tea-length, royal blue gown layered with lace and satin.

Other contestants included Jayne Hess, the 17-year-old daughter of John and Bonnie Hess, Gettysburg and Susan Murren, the 21-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Murren. Jayne wore a beautiful off-the-shoulder peach gown embellished with lace and her skit portrayed Goldilocks on her way to visit the three bears. Susan wore a black velvet and tafetta gown and told a fairytale bedtime story about the virtues of milk.

A new addition to the pageant was "The Little Dairy Miss Coronation." The seven contestants entertained the audience with three songs and by answering some amusing questions. Three finalists were named: Erin Debuty, Kimberly Johnston, and Tiffany Holtzinger.

Tiffany was crowned the Little Dairy Miss. She will make appearances in some promotions and received a $50 wardrobe certificate. Tiffany is the six-year-old daughter of Larry and Geneva Holtzinger, East Berlin. The additional Little Miss contestants included Susannah Moss, Amanda Leer, and Nicole and Megan Scott.

Entertainment was provided by Stanley Wolfe, who displayed 35 antique milk bottles and gave the history and origin of each one.

The master of ceremonies was Rick Allen, Holstein breeder from Fayette County in western Pennsylvania. The judges were Mrs. Shirley Trimmer, York County; Ms. Suzie Heath, Carroll County, Maryland; and Clarence Comman, Cumberland County.

The evening concluded with an ice cream social and many farmers visited until past midnight. The Adams County Dairy Promotion Committee wishes to thank everyone who supported this year's pageant.

The Adams County dairy princesses pose with all the Little Dairy Miss contestants.

Daniella Smith, center, is the new Adams County dairy princess. Tiffany Holtzinger is the Little Dairy Miss and Christine Todt is the Adams County dairy princess alternate.

30 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

-Five cows from one cow family are the foundation upon which a young dairyman at Quarryville R1 hopes to build his dairy herd.

Beginning almost nine years ago with one purebred Holstein heifer as a 4-H project, Donald Trimble, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Trimble, today is well on the way to becoming established in the dairy business.

"I still have that first heifer and all her heifer calves," Don says. "This year I expect her to produce 600 lbs. of fat. The way she is producing now, she will come very close to it if she doesn't go over six hundred.

-The nineteen registered and grade Holsteins in the herd of Titus M. Hurst, Lititz R2, posted the highest herd average in the Red Rose Dairy Herd Improvement Association for the month of May according to the monthly report released this week.

-Two Lancaster County men well-known in agricultural circles, left the county yesterday on the first leg of a journey scheduled to take them to Poland and several other European countries.

As participants in the Church of the Brethren exchange program, Henry Hackman, Manheim R2 and Bruce Boyd, Ephrata R1, will spend six weeks on a communist collective farm in Poland and two more weeks touring in Poland and other countries.

Hackman, a teacher at the Warwick School and past president of the Pennsylvania Soil Conservation District Directors, says, "I don't know just what will be in store for us, but I am anxious to try to get an idea of the feeling of the Polish for Americans.

Boyd, a 1960 graduate of the Pennsylvania State University where he majored in Animal Husbandry, was an active 4-H member before enrolling at the University. He continued his livestock show activity while in college, winning the "Little International" showmanship contest twice.

-The Future Farmers and their chaperone left Lancaster County this week on the first leg of a jaunt scheduled to take them some 12,000 miles through western United States, Canada and Mexico.

The trip is the reward for the success of a group farming project carried on as part of their FFA program last year.

All the boys are recent graduates in the vocational agriculture course at Manheim Central High School. During their last year in school, the boys carried on a farming program which included an acre of wheat, two acres of corn and seven acres of tobacco. All work on the crops was done on a schedule prepared by a committee. None of it was done during school hours.

Future Farmers making the trip are Wilbur Hossler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hosler; Carl Myers, son of Mrs. Nora Myers; Gerald Myers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Myers and Robert Lowe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Lowe, all of Manheim R2. Also Glenn Foreman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Foreman; Clair Hoffer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Hoffer; Ira Fahnestock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Fahnestock, all of Manheim R4.

Also making the trip are James Widders, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Widders; Elwood Heisey, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Z. Heisey and Gerald Brubaker, son of Mrs. Ver-na Brubaker, all of Manheim R2.

Center Helps Farmers Stop Johne's Disease

Editor's note: Last week in Lancaster Farming we introduced readers to a new avian health test facility newly constructed by the University of Pennsylvania's New Bolton Center. This week we'll explore the work being conducted by center scientists to test for Johne's disease and how that work may help farmers.

(This is the last of a series.)

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — Johne's disease is costing farmers a lot of money — millions of dollars per year — and they're not even aware that it's affecting their herds.

"Less than 25 percent of the farmers in the state are not aware that their cows are infected on their farm," said Dr. Robert H. Whitlock, of the University of Pennsylvania's New Bolton Center.

The center, in cooperation with Penn State and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, has been instrumental in providing the necessary research, tracking, and treatment of Johne's disease in this area. Breakthroughs in diagnostic testing capabilities allows the center to detect three times as many animals as the current test run by other laboratories.

Johne's disease affects all types of cattle. Of particular concern, especially in counties such as Lancaster and Lebanon (two of the highest dairy producing regions in the country), are the dairy cattle affected and how readily the disease can be passed on to calves.

No treatment

"There's no known practical treatment for Johne's disease," said Whitlock. "That's the bad thing."

The disease is spread through manure. The bacteria is ingested and attaches itself within the cattle's intestinal tract. As a result of the infection, cattle do not absorb feed. The nutrients, including energy and protein, are lost.

The animal's intestine thickens and they lose energy. Weight loss and diarrhea occurs. And the disease worsens, resulting in death.

There are tremendous economic losses associated with Johne's disease. The work the New Bolton Center has done in diagnosing and helping producers rid the disease from their herds may help save farmers millions of dollars.

Sent questionnaires

Previously, the research team sent questionnaires to more than 400 farmers in the state. The study followed cows to slaughter, and, as part of the study, the center examined fecal and tissue samples.

Many farmers filled out the questionnaire and returned it. The results were surprising.

Of the positive findings, many of the farmers did not even know they had Johne's disease on their farms, according to Whitlock.

"Cows with early Johne's dis-

Dr. Robert H. Whitlock, Marilyn M. Simpson professor of equine medicine at the New Bolton Center, examines a culture of Johne's bacteria in the lab. According to Whitlock, there is often a source of frustration for the farmer or veterinarian to quickly receive results of a test, because the bacteria take so long to grow. "The research on the disease has been aimed at trying to answer some of the questions about Johne's disease," said Whitlock.

ease don't show any clinical signs," said Whitlock. "They became infected when they were young calves, usually in the first few weeks of life, and they don't show any clinical signs."

Disease mistaken

The symptoms of Johne's disease, which include weight loss and diarrhea, don't appear until 2 to 10 years after the animal is born. The disease could have been mistaken for general lameness or failure to breed back, and could have been "silent" on the farm for a number of years.

The disease is transmitted through the manure, which contaminates the feed and the milk. The calves ingest the contaminated feces and the bacteria reside in the intestinal tract, where the organism slowly multiplies.

The bacteria takes 3 to 4 months to grow. According to Whitlock, there is often a source of frustration for the farmer or veterinarian to quickly receive results, because the bacteria take so long to grow.

"The research on the disease has been aimed at trying to answer some of the questions about Johne's disease," said Whitlock, including establishing the "gold standard," the fecal test, which is the most reliable way of finding out if an animal has been infected. (Blood tests report too many false positive results, according to Whitlock.)

Not as sensitive

"The problem with the fecal test," said Whitlock, "is that it is very specific but it's not as sensitive." Whitlock said the sedimentation test detects "perhaps 10-15 percent" of the cows that are actually infected.

"The test we currently have in place here will detect three times more cows that are infected, approximately 40 to 50 percent," he said. "Our research will continue to look at ways to improve the sensitivity of fecal culture or other tests to detect cows that are infected but that we currently cannot detect."

The highly sensitive test was developed from work pioneered by the Animal Disease Research Institute in Ottawa, Canada. They recommended to New Bolton Center that "we evaluate a centrifugation technique, which concentrates the organisms in the sample."

"So we did that," Whitlock said, "and found that it did increase the sensitivity three times. We're currently evaluating other ways to further increase the sensitivity of the culture test, up to 5 or 10 times compared to the standard sedimentation test available now."

'Farmers need to be encouraged to get the calves out of the barn, so that there's no contact with the adult cows, because it's the adult cows that are shedding the organism in the manure.'

Access to records

The center is working closely with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture in Summerdale, Pennsylvania. The lab provided the center with access to records on farms that were tested positive for the disease.

About 20 farms agreed to participate in a research project on Johne's disease using their herds as part of the research. The researchers use the information to make recommendations on how the farmers can reduce the prevalence of Johne's disease on their farms, said Whitlock.

"The goal is to come up with a set of recommendations that we can provide to farmers in the state if they have Johne's disease, so farmers can work toward a certified-free status," he said.

The major recommendations the center has found to date is for farmers to separate the newborn calf as quickly as possible from the dam.

Research indicates that the bacteria are present in the infected cow's milk.

Calves out of barn

Conditions Best For Newborns At Center

ANDY ANDREWS

Lancaster Farming Staff

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — Most doctors would agree that the best place to have a Cesarean section (C-section) on a birthing dam would be the hospital.

The difference is obvious: It is better for the mother and the newborn calf to undergo the trauma of birth at an animal hospital, which has the proper facilities and medical care, than at the farm.

Surgeons at the University of Pennsylvania's New Bolton Center agree.

"The difference is that the conditions are much better here," said Dr. William Donawick, professor of surgery at the George Widener Hospital For Large Animals at New Bolton Center. "We have the help, we have the cow restraints, and we have special equipment in case there's an emergency that arises."

A special emergency staff remains on-call at the hospital on a 24-hour basis. The hospital arranges for C-section delivery on cattle with the farmer.

Cesareans are grouped into two categories of need, according to Donawick. One category is difficult births, where the calf cannot pass through the dam's birth canal, or where a calf is stillborn and the dam cannot deliver the fetus on her own. The other is an elective C-section where the surgeons believe it is easier and safer for the newborn and the mother.

"At New Bolton Center, we have extra people. We have all these extra things so that the risks to the dam and calf are much less," he said.

The "hospital setting" is best for both dam and calf. The surgery is almost exactly the same as human C-sections.

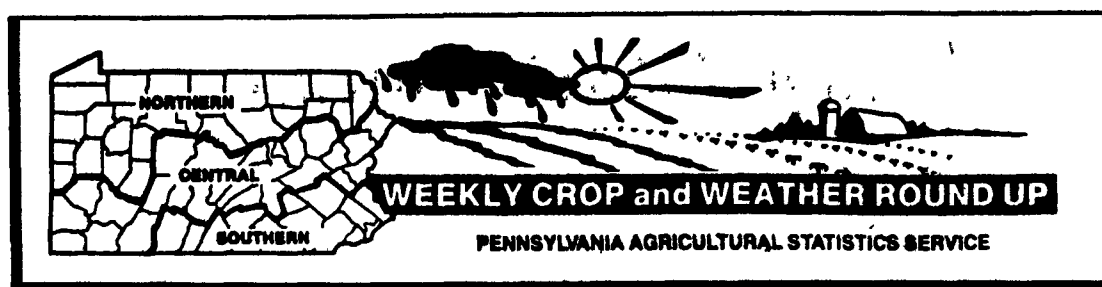

Overall, the center is performing fewer C-sections this year than any other. The reason they are doing less, according to Donawick, is because cattle prices are down "and that makes a difference as far as the potential value of the young animals."

Dr. William Donawick, professor of surgery at New Bolton, recently performed surgery on a Holstein calf at the center. It is better for the mother and the newborn calf to undergo the trauma of birth at an animal hospital, which has the proper facilities and medical care, than at the farm. "The difference is that the conditions are much better here," he said.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 24

Good Week For Fieldwork

The week was on the warm side with slightly below normal rainfall. Scattered showers and thunderstorms early in the week dumped some heavy amounts of rain in western and central areas. More showers and thunderstorms roamed the state late in the week dumping hit and miss rainfall statewide. Average temperature across the state was slightly above normal. Four days were suitable for fieldwork across the Commonwealth. Activities for the week included: planting corn, soybeans, potatoes and vegetables; transplanting tobacco; harvesting hay, haylage, barley, and strawberries; repairing fence; weed control; hauling manure; spreading fertilizer; maintaining machinery; and caring for livestock.

Soil Moisture

Across the state, soil moisture was rated short by 1 percent of our respondents, adequate by 85 percent and surplus by 14 percent. In the northern region, 4 percent rated soil moisture as short, 85 percent rated it as adequate, and 11 percent rated it as surplus. In the central region, 85 percent of our respondents rated soil moisture as adequate and 15 percent rated it as surplus. In the southern region, 85 percent of our respondents rated soil moisture as adequate and 15 percent rated soil moisture as surplus.

Corn

By the end of the week, 96 percent of the Commonwealth's corn was planted. Last year at this time, 86 percent was planted. The five-year average was 97 percent. Planting was 96 percent completed in the northern region, 97 percent completed in the central region, and 97 percent completed in the southern region. Corn condition was rated by our respondents as 18 percent excellent, 50 percent good, 24 percent fair, and 8 percent poor. Corn height averaged 11 inches across the state.

Soybeans

Pennsylvania soybean planting was 86 percent complete by the end of the week. As of this date last year, 58 percent was planted. The five-year average was 83 percent. Soybean condition across the state was rated 11 percent excellent, 54 percent good, 27 percent fair, 6 percent poor, and 2 percent very poor.

Oats

Ninety-eight percent of the Commonwealth's oats was in the heading stage and 2 percent was turning yellow by week's end. Last year at this time, 100 percent of the oats crop was in the heading or headed stage. The oats crop across the state was rated by our respondents as 28 percent excellent, 53 percent good, 17 percent fair, and 2 percent poor.

Wheat and Barley

Wheat in the state was reported as 69 percent heading and 31 percent turning yellow by week's end. Last

I started on the Fertrell Feeding Program just to prove it wouldn't work.

Kore J. Peachey, Milroy, PA

"That's right. But I soon had to change my mind.

You know, at first, people would tell me that if it worked, everybody would be using it. I think the time will come when they will.

For the past two years we've been on the Fertrell Feeding Program, and during that time we've earned Pennsylvania's 'Dairy of Distinction' Award, boosted our profit over feed costs to over $1900 per cow, and had one cow produce a 365-day record 29,000 lbs. of milk with 1,248 lbs.

in fat. We've seen less stress in the cows and we've also noticed less udder edema. Even the quality of our hay is better with Fertrell. The protein levels are higher than they were, even during the drought.

All I can say is, the Fertrell Program is the best I've tried."

Dairyalea Participates In Energy Loan Program

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — As part of Dairyalea Cooperative Inc.'s commitment to helping its members minimize costs and maximize profitability, the cooperative sought and received approval to participate in the New York State Energy Office's Energy Investment Loan Program (EILP).

The EILP (available to farmers with at least $20,000 in gross sales or who derive at least 50 percent of their income from farming) provides interest subsidies on loans made for qualified energy conservation improvements to non-residential farm buildings and processing equipment.

Among the improvements that qualify are: replacement or insulation of a hot water heater; improvements in milk cooler maintenance; and the purchasing of heat exchangers (heat recovery systems), well-water milk pre-coolers, and bio-digesters.

"There is a real financial benefit for farmers to explore ways of conserving energy on their operations. This energy loan program is an excellent avenue for farmers to save money," said Jamie Zimmerman, Dairyalea Cooperative's farm resource specialist.

"This program is one of the array of innovative services and programs that Dairyalea provides to its members," added Zimmerman, who works with Dairyalea members on farm management issues.

The simple payback period for making most of the energy-saving improvements is a little more than two years, resulting in more than a 40-percent return on the investment in the first year.

Johne's Disease

The calf should not be fed any milk or colostrum from the cow.

Whitlock said there is an artificial colostrum available that will provide immunoglobulin to calves so they don't become sick. "They should probably be fed milk replacer, rather than whole milk, so that they can reduce as much as possible any contamination," he said.

"If you can separate the calves from the adults, and you're raising the calves out here, and you don't track the manure out to them, then it's much more likely that they will be free of Johne's disease when they mature," said Whitlock.

Present in milk

Recently research by Raymond Sweeney, also at New Bolton Center, indicates that the bacteria are present in the infected cow's milk. This milk should not be fed to young calves. According to Whitlock, a test on the milk indicates how many cows in a herd are shedding the organism in the milk.

A study currently being conducted by the center, funded by the Guernsey Association, is the question of how environment affects Johne's disease.

Based on preliminary evidence, according to Whitlock, even though some cows have the disease, the organism will live in the environment a few months but "we don't think there's very much risk from manure contamination to the adult cow," he said. "The greatest risk is to the young calf."

Whitlock indicated there is an "age resistance." An older cow can resist infection from Johne's a lot easier than a calf.

Studying resistance

The center is also working on studying innate resistance to Johne's disease.

In the future, Whitlock and his associates hope to make the test for Johne's disease more accurate.

"Instead of detecting 30 percent of the cows, we might be able to detect 50 percent of the cows that have the disease," he said. "The ultimate goal, which is a number of years away, is to be able to detect an animal as soon as it's infected. But that is going to be an extremely difficult challenge."

Susan Isenberg Named Indiana Dairy Princess

INDIANA (Indiana Co.)—The 16th Indiana County Dairy Princess Pageant was held June 15, at Marion Center High School auditorium. The welcome was given by Jim Lydie, committee president. The Master of Ceremonies was John Varner.

Judges were Pat Campbell,

Mercer County; Elvira Shrock and Leroy Shrock, Armstrong County.

The new Indiana County Dairy Princess is Susan Isenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Isenberg, Indiana.

And two alternates were also selected this year. They are, Joyce Coleman, Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Coleman, Saltsburg and Jane Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thompson, Marion Center.

Penny Farmery, the 1989 princess gave her farwell talk about her promotions and thanked people for their support and help in her year as dairy princess.

The pageant was co-sponsored by the Marion Center FFA and Young Farmers Association, John Fyock, advisor. Everyone enjoyed an ice cream social following the pageant.

Royalty at the Indiana County Dairy Princess Pageant are, Joyce Coleman, alternate; Susan Isenberg, 1990 princess; and Jane Thompson, alternate.

year's wheat was 74 percent headed and 26 percent turning yellow at this time. The wheat crop was rated 23 percent excellent, 54 percent good, 20 percent fair, 1 percent poor, and 2 percent very poor by our respondents. Pennsylvania barley was 33 percent heading, 49 percent turning yellow, 15 percent ripe, and 3 percent had been harvested. At this time last year, the state's barley was 37 percent heading, 46 percent was turning yellow, 15 percent ripe, and 2 percent harvested.

Tobacco

Statewide, 83 percent of Pennsylvania tobacco had been transplanted by the end of the week, according to our respondents. Last year at this time, 70 percent of the state's tobacco had been transplanted. The five-year average was 86 percent.

Fruit

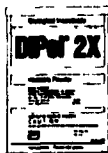

Pennsylvania peach crop condition was rated 63 percent average and 37 percent below average by our respondents. Apple crop condition was rated 84 percent average and 16 percent below average.

Hay and Pasture

Seventy-two percent of first cutting alfalfa and 4 percent of second cutting had been completed by week's end. Statewide, 49 percent of clover-timothy was cut by the end of the week. Quality of hay was rated as good by 24 percent, fair by 57 percent, and poor by 19 percent of our respondents. Nine percent of the respondents rated the amount of feed being obtained from pastures by week's end as above average, 90 percent rated it as average, and 1 percent indicated below average feed value.

NORTHUMBERLAND (Northumberland Co.)—The Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association is planning a tour of vegetable farms in the Yuma and Imperial Valleys in Arizona and California.

The trip is planned for the second week in February, 1991, so that the group can also take in the California Farm Equipment Show in Tulare.

The Yuma and Imperial Valleys should have carrot, broccoli, cauliflower, lettuce, and cabbage harvests going on at this time of year. Unfortunately, the Salinas and San Joaquin Valleys have little harvest activity at that time of year.

The tour will be about a week long. If you are interested in being a part of this tour, please call PVGA at (717) 473-8468.

Editor,

Enclosed is a copy of a letter I wrote to several members of congress. I would hope you could use this letter in your editorial page.

Dear Members of Congress,

According to information to me, I understand that both the Senate and House AG Committees have passed their version of the dairy provisions of the proposed 1990 Farm Bill.

A $10.10 per cwt. milk support price is totally inadequate to meet the needs of area dairy farmers.

I have been a dairy farmer all my life and for the past twenty years I have operated a large machinery business near Laceyville, Pa.

There was a time when I, as a dairy farmer could cover my expenses and make profit. However, those days are gone.

There is indeed, too much topsy turvy and uncertainty with the milk prices received by area dairy farmers.

As a machine dealer I continue to see accelerated costs that have to be charged to the farmers for all the goods they purchase.

I have also witnessed during the last ten years the demise of several machine and feed dealers because of the unfavorable agriculture economic climates.

Some may say that I as a Machine Dealer should be happy to see other dealers forced out of business, because this leaves less competition for me to compete with. Contrary to that theory, I am appalled at the fact that dealers are forced out of business. Their exodus only compounds my problems and places additional strain on my business.

It's time congress comes to grips with the true economic climate facing our agriculture producers.

I agree wholeheartedly with the farmers union position that we need less government payments to producers and more money should come from the market place for all products.

However, to accomplish this we must have a stable two tier pricing mechanism up front with a milk support price of at least 13.10 per cwt.

Arden Tewksbury, a staff member of the Pa. Farmers Union, and a dairy farmer has proven that a true two tier pricing program will work and would cost the government less money in comparison with proposed programs and-or existing programs.

The time for action is now. I urge you to help introduce and support key amendments to the farm bill that will revitalize and maintain a healthy agriculture climate in the United States.

Failure of congress to act favorably on a realistic farm bill will only mean more farmers and dealers will be forced out of business.

As I said, I'm on both sides of the issue and neither is healthy.

Thank you for your considerations.

Southern Dairy Situation Reflects N.E. Trends

LOUISVILLE, KY — Class I milk prices to dairy processors and Southeast consumers will be noticeably higher in July — the result of shrinking milk supplies, increased demand for the product and higher farm milk prices.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, milk production in the Southeast is continuing its long-term downward trend. For the first quarter of 1990, milk production declined 3.49 percent in 13 Southeast states compared to the same period in 1989. In turn, sales of fluid milk and other dairy products in the Southeast increased 2.87 percent in January and February 1990, and are continuing to grow, according to the Arlington, Va., based National Dairy Promotion and Research Board.

During the summer and fall of 1989, milk was so short in the Southeast that millions of pounds of supplemental milk were transported into the area from sources outside the region in order to meet customer demand. With less local milk production and increased sales, dairy industry analysts say the situation could be the same, if not worse, by the fall of 1990.

The decline in southeastern milk production is due to several factors including: (1) The hot, humid weather across the region which has curtailed milk supplies; (2) the increasing exodus of farmers from the dairy business due to the low prices they have received for their milk for several years; and (3) the high prices paid for cull dairy cows being sold for beef production.

An important factor impacting increased milk prices is the national supply-demand balance as reflected in the Minnesota-Wisconsin (M-W) Series price. The M-W Series price is the price paid for milk purchased in the Minnesota-Wisconsin area to produce dairy products such as cheese, butter and skim milk powder. Last fall, the M-W Series price set record-high prices for three consecutive months, reaching its highest level of $14.93 per hundredweight of milk in December. January, February and March 1990 saw a decline in the M-W Series price. But during April and May 1990, the M-W Series price had jumped 76 cents per hundredweight to $12.78. The May price was $1.66 above that of a year ago and is expected to continue to climb through the remainder of 1990.

The July 1990 Class I prices under Federal Orders, which are based on the May M-W Series price, will be 76 cents higher than that in May. These increases will be reflected in higher prices to dairy processors and consumers.

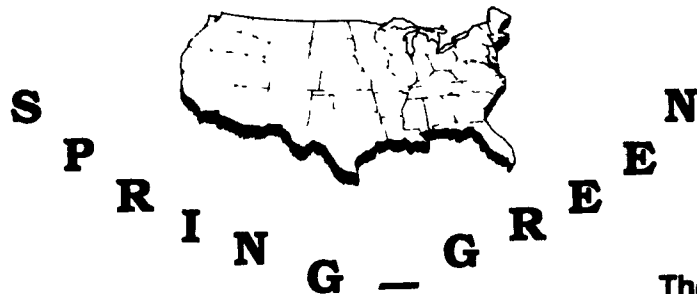

Dairymen, Inc., is one of several farmer-owned, milk-marketing cooperatives in the Southeast which supplies raw milk to customers in the region. The cooperative is owned by 5,000 member dairy farmers located in 17 Southeast, Mid-Atlantic and Midwest states. The cooperative is headquartered in Louisville, Ky.

THE MAJOR LEAGUE PLAYER FOR DOUBLE-CROP SOYBEANS

PURSUIT® herbicide won't slow you down when planting double-crop soybeans. Just a single "early postemergence" application of PURSUIT® herbicide combines contact and long-lasting residual activity to shut out over 40 of the toughest broadleaf weeds and grasses. With the highest degree of overall control. And you don't have to worry about carryover when you rotate to wheat or field corn. Its advanced chemistry and low rates of application also make PURSUIT an ideal choice for the environment. And for the applicator. For all the facts, see us soon — and discover a whole new league in soybean weed control.

How to use PURSUIT® herbicide: Application: "early post-emergence." Timing: majority of weeds 1" — 3" tall (approximately 14-25 days after planting). Rate: 4 oz./acre. Weed control: 44 broadleaves and grasses, including velvetleaf, foxtails, cocklebur and shattercane. Tank mix: 10+ gal. water/acre (20 for no-till), 4 oz./acre of PURSUIT, non-ionic surfactant (1 qt./100 gal. spray mixture) or Dash¹, 10-34-0, 28% or 32% fertilizer solution (1-2 qt./acre) or ammonium sulfate (17 lbs./100 gals. spray solution). Spray pressure: 20-40 psi. Tillage system: conventional, minimum or no-till.

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — Lynn Hoffman will be one of three Penn State Cooperative Extension specialists on the Northeast Regional Crops Field Day to be held from 10:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Friday, July 6 at the Bethel Methodist Church in Wyoming County, between Falls and Schultsville.

Demonstration fields have been planted with the cooperation of Eckel Farms and include both conventional and no-till methods for corn, oats, and forage crops. There will also be exhibits on weed identification and rotation pasture. Credits for private applicator certification provided by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture will be available for anyone completing the necessary forms before the program starts.

Other speakers on the program include Elwood Hatley, extension agronomist; Dennis Calvin, entomologist; and Doyle Thomas and Don Overdorff, extension county agents and representatives of the Wyoming and Lackawanna Soil Conservation Districts. Speakers will include the merits and problems of both systems; the pitfalls to avoid, and when to use conventional or no-till, and how to make the most of either method.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Senate Agriculture committee completed work recently on the dairy title of the 1990 farm bill.

NMPF Chief Executive Officer James C. Barr said, "The Committee package takes an important step by providing a price support floor for dairy farmers. However, the committee failed to define a specific supply management option or provide a more realistic price support floor, both which are necessary to protect producer income and stabilize dairy markets."

NMPF has strongly supported a support price floor throughout the process. While NMPF had advocated a floor of $10.60, the Committee chose to freeze the price floor at $10.10 through 1995. Senators pointed to tight budgets and mounting pressure to reduce spending for the inability to provide the support price increase.

Committee Works On Farm Bill

"Even though the level of support is below what we think is needed for market stability, the fact that milk cannot go below $10.10 per cwt. is important to the dairy farmer's future," Barr said.

NMPF's major concern is that the Committee's package gives the Secretary of Agriculture the authority to study and implement an unspecified inventory management program if dairy product removals are projected above seven billion pounds milk equivalent.

"We would have preferred specifying what form of supply management should be used if needed in the future," the NMPF chief said.

"Leaving this determination up to USDA does not provide farmers with the clear and concrete policy for the future they deserve. Grain farmers know they must set aside land in order to receive the support of government payments," Barr added. "I think dairy farmers merit at least the knowledge of how an imbalance in the industry would be handled during the next five years."

NMPF supported the Committee's decision to give USDA specific direction in developing a method to calculate milk equivalent on a total solids basis because it more accurately reflects market conditions. "The total solids milk equivalent in the Chairman's bill will more accurately account for federal dairy purchases and indicate whether program adjustments are needed," Barr said in a letter to the Committee.

Barr said NMPF is pleased with several other aspects of the bill, including provisions to facilitate adoption of component pricing in federal orders, improved flexibility in milk pricing between handlers and producers, a study of the M-W price series, and extension of the dairy indemnity and dairy export incentive programs.

The National Milk Producers Federation is the national trade organization representing dairy farmers and their milk marketing cooperatives. NMPF serves as a forum for the development of positions on national dairy policy and communicates the needs and concerns of its members to Congress and the Administration.

Report Littering

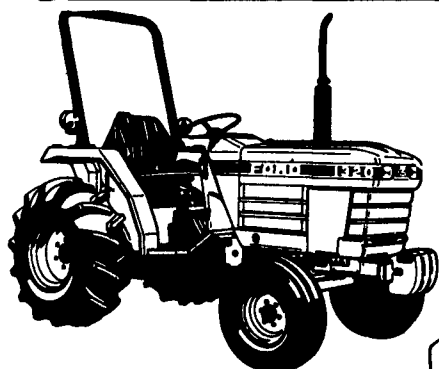

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — The Chester County Agricultural Development Council is concerned about the problem of littering and particularly its effect on agriculture in Chester County.

In researching this issue, the Agricultural Development Council contacted the Pennsylvania State Police for their input on enforcement of existing anti-littering laws. The state police stressed their willingness to assist and pointed out that it is important for landowners who observe litter being thrown from automobiles to get the vehicle license number; make of the car; and the time, date, and exact location of the violation.

It is also most important that the landowner be willing to follow through by testifying in court. The Agricultural Development Council urges all landowners who observe litter being discarded to follow these guidelines and report the matter to the police.

MANAGEMENT

EASEMENT

Alan W. Strock
Extension Agent/
Farm Management
Chester and Lancaster Counties

(Fifth in a series on farmland preservation.)

When contemplating selling your conservation easement, you have complex decisions and issues to face. The real estate, federal and state inheritance, and income tax implications are very important factors which you will have to wrestle with.

The sale of the conservation easement is a taxable event and the taxes must be planned for by setting funds aside to pay the taxes when due.

Federal income taxes?

Yes, federal income tax may take a substantial amount of your conservation easement payment — up to 33 percent of your profit! Landowners who sell their easement may elect to receive the proceeds in payments over a period of up to five years, including a lump sum distribution at settlement.

When calculating the gain from the easement sale, one has two options. One can calculate the gain like any other sale and subtract the basis, i.e., purchase price less accumulated depreciation of your property from the sale price and the difference is your taxable gain. The other option is to reduce the basis of your property, even down to zero, by the amount of the easement — then have a new basis upon which to calculate depreciation and gain for any future sales of real estate.

Remember, this lower basis will result in higher tax when the farm is sold. If the original adjusted basis is greater than the conservation easement payment, you would pay no federal tax. This option may be particularly advantageous to the young farmer whose property has a high tax basis and has no plans to sell any land, or to the older farmer who has a low tax basis but plans on passing the farm to the next generation through his estate, since the farm will realize a stepped-up basis at the time of death for estate evaluation purposes. Be sure you or your accountant calculates your income tax liability before you sign on the dotted line, especially if you gift a portion of the easement.

tax benefits?

You may consider donating a portion of your easement sale to lower your tax liability and allow the county and/or state to purchase more easements.

If a conservation easement is willfully sold by the landowner at an amount that is less than the appraised value (bargain sale) of the easement, the landowner may use the difference between the appraised value of the easement and the sale price of the easement as a federal income tax charitable contribution deduction.

The charitable contribution deduction is limited to 50 percent of a person's annual adjusted gross income, so plan carefully if you choose this option. It could, however, substantially lower your federal tax liability.

State income taxes?

State income tax at 2.1 percent is not overwhelming, but on a taxable income of $200,000, the state would still get $4,200 — not much compared to the federal tax bite of $52,864!

Because the sale involves intangible personal property, you would not be eligible to declare the income on an installment basis, as you could for federal taxes, even if you received the money over two to five years.

The good news is that if the property was acquired after May 31, 1971, taxable income would be calculated on a pro-rated basis, proportionate to the number of months owned after May 31, 1971, divided by total months owned.

Real estate taxes?

Presently, it is uncertain how the assessed value of the farm will be affected by the conservation easement.

The new assessment (if done) should be based solely on agricultural value, but this has not yet been tested in Pennsylvania courts. If it has been a long time since your farm has been assessed, it is conceivable that your assessed value could rise after the conservation easement is sold. Your total real estate taxes will still rise even if your assessment stays the same when and if your local millage rates increase. Before making a final decision to sell your conservation easement, try to get a ruling from your county tax assessment office on how your assessment will be affected by selling your conservation easement.

Reassessment is a hot topic in many Pennsylvania counties and selling your conservation easement may result in a lower assessed value, or preferential treatment, because the value should be based on agriculture value only. You may still want to look into the preferential assessed value provided for in Pennsylvania's Act 515 legislation, "The Pennsylvania Farmland and Forest Land Assessment Act of 1974," or in Pennsylvania's Act 319 legislation, "The Pennsylvania Clean and Green Act," even if you don't sell your easement.

Inheritance taxes?

When planning the transfer of the family farm, the conservation easement will limit the IRS valuation of the farm to "eased value."

That is the fair market value of the farm with the easement in place. Current IRS regulations limit the reduction in value of the property under the farmland special use valuation, used for federal estate value computation only, to not exceed $750,000.

The conservation easement may make this election easier for your heirs to exercise and result in significant federal estate tax savings. Pennsylvania has a different farmland use valuation that is easier to take advantage of than the federal program. Tax savings may be especially common in areas of high development pressure, as land values continue to rise and the difference between "eased value" and "fair market value" continues to grow.

Selling your conservation easement and then gifting cash or other assets may be an excellent tool in lowering your taxable estate. Don't forget that as long as the cash or other assets you bought stay in your control, you won't have lowered the value of your estate.

Summary

Be sure to thoroughly research all your options, especially their tax implications, before you sell your farm's conservation easement. Compare your total tax liability when taking the easement money in one year versus yearly payments over two, three, four, or five years. Factor in the interest you would earn by investing the after-tax dollars, if you take all the money at settlement. List the pros and cons and consult your tax advisor to make an informed decision which is right for you and your family.

The Air You Breathe May Be Dangerous

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, June 30, 1990-A47

LOU ANN GOOD

Lancaster Farming Staff
EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Every farmer dreads disabling accidents that rip off limbs, injure the spinal cord or cause head injuries. But there is another sinister hazard that faces those who work in agriculture. Although you won't read about it in the news headlines, the affects can be just as disabling as a tragic accident.

It's called respiratory disease. It can take many forms and results from breathing a variety of harmful dusts and gases from grain, animal wastes, manure pits, silos, hog confinement units, fumigants, and insecticides.

Some diseases are acute, the illness may last several hours or days, and the person recovers completely. But others are chronic and the worker is never free of the lung damage.

Causes for lung damage can be well-hidden from unsuspecting farmers. That's what happen to Don Ranck, a Paradise farmer.

For many years Ranck prepared his silage for winter by throwing a plastic cover on top to seal the silage. In the spring, he climbed up the silo to remove the cover.

An ordinary chore, Ranck thought, but one he didn't necessarily like because the silage on top of the plastic was moldy and dusty. As Ranck threw the discarded cover and silage to the ground, he breathed in the dust, not a pleasant smell, but not overpowering either.

Ironically every time after throwing away the discarded silage, Ranck suffered muscle aches and flu-like symptoms that became so severe that he was bedfast.

When the same thing happened to his hired man, Ranck became suspicious. He checked with his doctor who told him that inhaling the mold spores that grow on the surface of moldy silage causes a toxic reaction with a flu-like illness called toxic organic dust syndrome. It is accompanied by chills, fever, cough, and shortness of breath.

Whole gamut of diseases

Dr. Porter, a Lancaster pulmonary specialist, noted that a whole gamut of respiratory diseases result from inhaling dusts, gases, and chemicals on the farms. With proper medical treatment those who do show an allergic or toxic reaction will not suffer lasting side affects, but left untreated, permanent lung damage can result.

Farmer's lung is a serious respiratory disease caused by dusts from decayed plant material. It is most common among dairy farmers and causes a reaction that may permanently affect the ability of the lungs to transfer oxygen into the blood. Usually farmer's lung begins with short-term flu-like illness with cough, fever, chills, labored breathing, muscle pain and general discomfort. Repeated short-term illnesses can lead to permanent damage. Sometimes farmer's lung affects a person gradually but eventually the disease causes labored breathing, weight loss, and increasing fatigue.

Inhaling grain dust and pesticides without adequate ventilation or protection devices can cause asthma, chronic bronchitis, and grain fever.

Pesticides, herbicides and fungicides enter the body through breathing, swallowing or skin and eye absorption. It is not enough to wear protective clothing. A chemical respirator should be used.

Even then unfiltered air often leaks in around the edge of the mask and air-purifying devices can become clogged by dust and become useless. All respirators should be carefully cleaned after use and regularly checked or replaced.

Silo gases

Last year a 30-year-old farmer collapsed while climbing up a silo. For several hours he was semi-comatose. Tests showed pulmonary edema or more commonly called fluid on the lungs.

After taking medication, he returned home and for several weeks and resumed his daily chores. Then without warning, he developed breathing problems and was hospitalized for a relapse of the disease. He responded again to treatment and shows no permanent damage.

He was lucky. Inhalation of oxides of nitrogen, commonly called silo gas can kill within minutes. Even after recovery from exposure, scarring of the lungs may occur and can be fatal.

As silage ferments, it produces silage gas. If the concentration is high enough, you can detect silo gas by its bleach-like odor. You may be able to see it as a yellowish or reddish vapor hovering on top of the silage.

No one should enter the silo for at least 48 hours after filling. Before entering, silo blowers or ventilation fans should be turned on. Chute doors should be kept open to the level of the silage and the air should circulate for at least 30 minutes before entering.

Anyone who is overcome in a silo or chute and survives should be taken immediately to a doctor.

Contact your local American Lung Association or your extension office for additional information on lung hazards.

This is part of a series on farm safety.

"WE ELIMINATED NEARLY 14,000 POUNDS OF FLUID AND STILL GOT GREAT TRACTION."

Bob Kuehl
Glyndon, Minnesota

Bob Kuehl is a row crop farmer in Glyndon, Minnesota. In order to get enough traction from his tractor during plowing, Bob had to add nearly 14,000 pounds of fluid to his bias ply tires. He got better traction, but the added weight increased his fuel consumption, and the time Bob had to spend in the field.

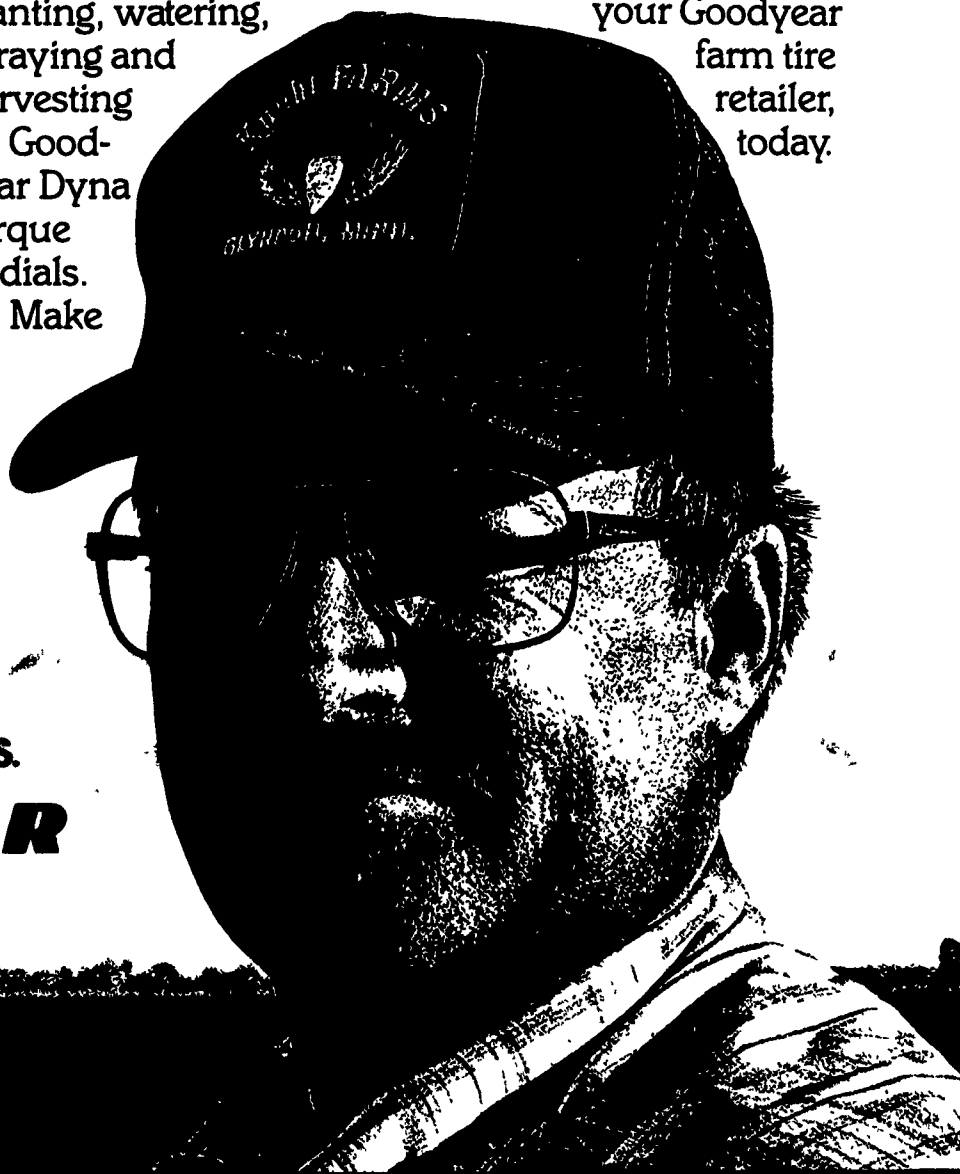

Luckily, his Goodyear retailer suggested that Bob switch one tractor from bias ply tires to Goodyear Dyna Torque farm radials.

That's all it took. Bob was able to eliminate excess fluid and get all of the traction he needed. He was so satisfied with the results, that all of his tractors now do tilling, planting, watering, spraying and harvesting on Goodyear Dyna Torque Radials.

Make

your move to Goodyear farm radials. You'll spend less time in the field at lower overall costs than on bias ply rears. Contact your Goodyear farm tire retailer, today.

Morrison Cove: Nesting Place For 30 Duck Species

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent
NEW ENTERPRISE (Bedford Co.)—Lon and Kathy Gates live on 200 tillable acres of farmland in picturesque Morrison's Cove.

The farm has been in the family for several generations and comes complete with an enviable farm pond which can be used for fishing, swimming, providing drinking water for cattle and, most recently for raising ducks.

"It wasn't something we started out to do," says Lon. "All I wanted was a pair of Canadian geese. Then, the more I studied and the more I learned, the more species of ducks I wanted."

Gates' flock now represents 30 different species including the European shell duck, wood ducks, cackling Canadas, mandarin, ring teal and several Emperan geese which are on the endangered specie list.

His present flock consists of 300 ducks. Last year, they produced more than 600 babies. There are 56 laying hens. Each hen will lay approximately eight eggs and it takes 21 to 30 days to hatch.

The ducks are marketed to large estates with ponds or streams, city parks, and zoos. A few go to taxidermists. "Some duck farmers won't sell to taxidermists," Gates admits. "But, I feel it's no different than selling a beef cow."

The ducks range in price from $40 to more than $300 a pair. "The hottest selling duck today is the green winged teal," Gates says.

Late spring is the hatching season for ducks. "Not always the most convenient time," admits Kathy. "Just when all the farm work has to be done, the ducks start hatching."

Lon often seeks the aid of bantam hens for hatching. "They're the best," he says of these so-called surrogate fowl mothers. The bantam will sit contentedly for days at a time, no matter how hot it gets.

Gates also hatches some of the duck eggs in an incubator. Once the ducks are hatched they are moved to brooders until they are old enough to move outside.

The ducks are housed in pens carefully constructed by Lon to keep out predators such as mink, coons, or dogs.

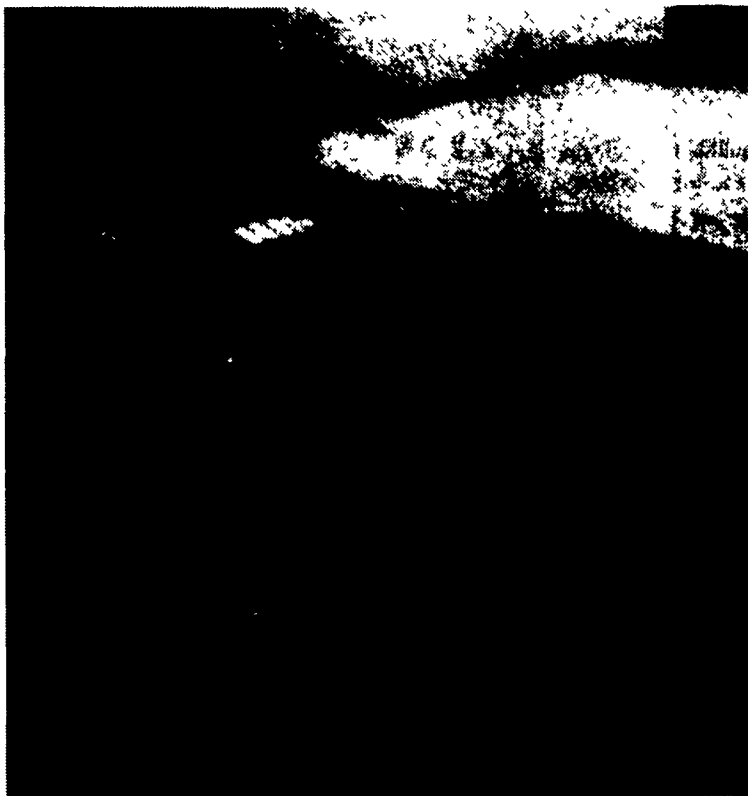

"Raising ducks is not without problems," the Gates couple is quick to say. "You lose a certain percentage out of every hatching. Some just seem to be born weak. You lose some to predators which manage to get into the pens no matter how well they are built." Not all ducks hatch each year.

Occasionally the ducks interbreed which causes a hybrid duck. "When that happens, we have to separate the breed," Lon explains.

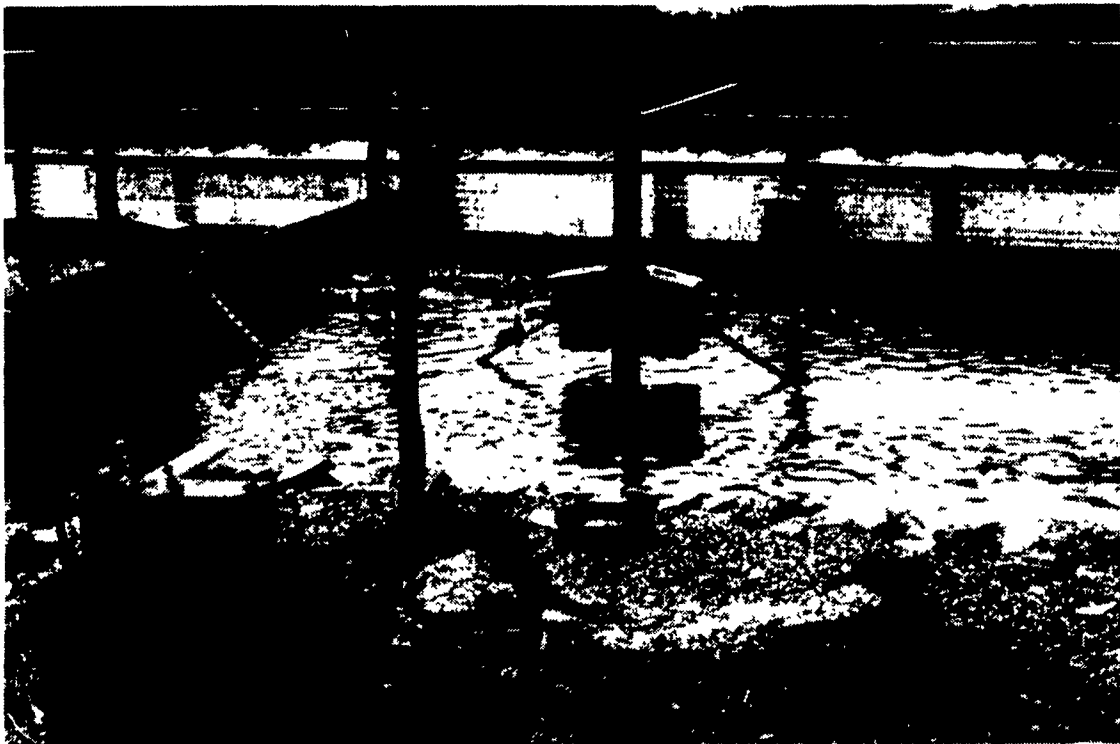

Once in a while a male duck will mate with another male duck,

Lon points to a nesting snow goose as the father demonstrates his anger at having his mate disturbed. Snow geese mate for life.

Baby ducklings in the hands of Lon Gates. The duck eggs were hatched by a bantam hen.

Homestead Notes

which does not help the duck population.

Each of the pens must include water. The farm pond provides the source. The water is aerated during the winter months to prevent freezing.

The Gates' lawn is fast disappearing as the number of ducks increases. New unoccupied pens await the next population increase.

Ducks are fed a special mixture by Purina as recommended by Farm Bureau. "Their diet is more expensive during the hatching season," Lon says.

Always a believer in preserving nature, Gates is the president of Ducks Unlimited. His farm pond and meadow have been returned to nature to serve as a nesting place for wild ducks and other small animals.

He says he also believes strongly in intensive grazing and the Gates' 60 milk cows are fed with this method.

The Gates family includes two children, Angie and Adam, and a black lab, Mollie.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Addressing members of Women Involved in Farm Economics (WIFE) at their Legislative Issues Breakfast in Washington, D.C., Representative Kika de la Garza, Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, compared America's safe and abundant food supply with recent media attention focusing on empty grocery shelves in the Soviet Union.

WIFE President Elaine Stuhr, Bradshaw, Nebraska, encouraged members and guests to continue efforts to include the Farm Spouse Fairness and Equity Act in the 1990 Farm Bill. Stuhr said, "Every farm spouse should be fairly recognized for the vital role that they contribute to a family farming operation. ASCS rules regarding person determination should be fair across the board."

Senator Robert Kerrey (D-NE) spoke to members attending the eighth annual Government Affairs Seminar. Kerrey expressed his wishes for a simplified farm bill that would be market oriented and within budget constraints. Also addressing seminar participants was Representative Pat Roberts (R-KS), co-sponsor of H.R. 2973 "The Farm Spouse Fairness and Equity Act".

WIFE members addressed several important agricultural issues including environmental concerns and the production of renewable fuels. Members voiced support for legislation creating tougher penalties for breaking into and damaging animal research facilities.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

It's summer the harvest season.

I know, I know, the harvest season isn't supposed to be until fall. But all around us a bounty of crops are already ripening in contoured strips of alfalfa green, golden grain, and the whitish haze which overlays fields of maturing oats. And as each planting develops in its own time, the gathering brings new appreciation for the productivity of this area and its harvest, at whatever season....

Haymaking rolls from first cutting right on into second cutting with nary a chance for a breathing space between. Drying windrows of leafy alfalfa send a sweet fragrance across the countryside and bales from the last of the timothy are neatly lined in a row in the meadow.

The dairy cows almost stampede into the barn at the scent of fresh haylage and new bales, some charging into the first handy stall they find to grab mouthfuls of tasty, fresh feed. Only with reluctance can they be convinced to relocate to their proper spot, where the same identical feed is waiting.

If the grass is greener on the other side of the fence, surely the silage is more tangy when swiped from the neighbor's stall.

Barley heads dried down almost overnight, it seemed, in fields undulating in the wind in golden waves. Our barley crop was planted in distant fields, not by any special intent but simply as it fit the rotation programs. But I miss seeing the combine header gobble its wide path through the ready stands of grain, and auger out binfuls of the dusty harvest into the trucks.

Behind the combine, weather permitting (which it hasn't much), go the tractor and square baler, packaging the shiny barley straw into tight, compact bundles for bedding for the calves and heifers.

A small percentage of the straw usually sees other uses around our rural residential neighborhood. A few bales are picked up by a family of backyard archery shooters, and at least one neighborhood dog snoozes his winter nights away on layers of our warm barley straw. A brother's new lawn will get a mulching with it, and occasionally someone stops to pick up a bale for a strawberry patch.

In the wake of the combine and baler passages through the barley, a replanting gets under way just as quickly as possible. Late soybeans go into the grain stubble, along with our hopes for a soaking rain to hasten their quick germination into late June's warmth.

And in snatches of time permitting between cows and the computer, the dog and I hurry to the garden. After weeks of planting and transplanting, seeding, weeding and mulching, the garden has begun to give back the fruits of my labors. While I pick and pull, Solomon supervises from his favorite spot in the green grass of the shade under the weeping willow.

Swiss chard is crinkly and green and the onions pungent and crisp. Sugar snap and garden peas hang thickly in a row propped on dried branches and old weed tops. Raspberries ripen fat and juicy, their sweetness worthy of the scratched hands and purple fingers from the picking. Beans are blossoming, baby zucchini's double in size daily, and cantaloupe infants cling tightly to their mother vines. With a shaker of lime I do daily battle with beetles on my 14 potato plants, already growing golf-ball-sized spuds at their roots. And the first ripe cherry tomato has already been enjoyed, besting my own record by many days.

The harvest and storing of the crops and picking the garden's fresh yields never fails to bring me an immense feeling of satisfaction and accomplishment.

Or, maybe gratitude would be a better description, especially as we celebrate our nation's birthday, for the freedom which permits us to seed and harvest as we choose, and the abundance with which we are blessed.

Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Extension
Home Economist

New Directions Available For Freezing Vegetables
The Food Science Department at Penn State has been conducting research related to freezing vegetables for the past couple of years, and has discovered some changes in methods that result in improved quality of vegetables; better color, texture and flavor. They recently released this information to extension home economists in Pennsylvania.

They have microwave-blanching and air-cooled spinach, sugar snap peas, green beans and brussels sprouts and found them to be superior to conventionally blanch-ed and water-cooled vegetables. However, they disliked microwave-blanching broccoli and cauliflower.

Air cooling of blanched vegetables was discouraged for years. Past directions emphasized that blanched vegetables should always be water cooled, even using ice in some references, for reasons of maximizing the nutrient content.

The facts are that properly heat-stabilized (blanched) vegetables lose both water-soluble vitamins and fresh flavors when water-cooled. If the bacterial quality permits vegetables to be eaten raw, as is the case except where fresh animal manures are used around growing plants, then air-cooling of blanched vegetables is an acceptable practice and results in a safe food with superior quality.

If you would like to receive a copy of Penn State's new recommendations for blanching vegetables, and you live in Pennsylvania, contact your county extension home economist. If you live outside of Pennsylvania, write to me at the Lancaster County Extension Office, 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster, PA 17601, and request a copy.

Bargain Shopping Know-How

Everyone loves a bargain. People will walk a mile for one or rise at dawn for one or go into debt for one. Just what is a bargain?

A bargain is something purchased cheaply. But what is important to remember is that a bargain is a bargain only if you need it and can afford it. Every home has its share of items bought as bargains but never used. Too often, a bargain ends up being something you cannot use at a price you cannot resist.

There are two kinds of bargains to shun. Impulse bargains - these can appear unexpectedly such as a bargain table or a clever window display, or can be prompted by the excitement of a crowd clamoring to buy something. And, almost before you know it, you have bought something you don't want! Never again bargains - advertised as low-priced, never to be sold at so low a price again. Maybe it is a bargain and the price really will never be so low again - but it can also be a severe blow to a limited budget.

A true bargain is an item that is less expensive today than it was yesterday. It is something that you have given some thought to. Finally, it is an item that you will use, that you really have a desire for, and that you can afford.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Both my strawberries and peas have done very well this year. But while I'm busy picking 20 boxes of berries a day and a bushel of hull peas, I am not getting little jobs done. Thus my houseplants need to be watered, my goldfish needs fresh water and the broccoli was not cut and frozen on time.

While I was peeling potatoes the other day, I began to wonder how many people do this job every day. I would guess that many folk don't eat potatoes every day or else they eat already prepared frozen or canned ones.

For many years in my youth, my grandmother lived with our family. She peeled potatoes for our large family. I'm afraid that we did not appreciate her work until we had to fill the white gallon crock with peeled potatoes by ourselves. This was the amount we used for two meals. If there were any leftovers they were fried for my father's breakfast.

My aunt told me that when she was a youngster her job was to peel potatoes every morning. And, no matter how hard she tried, she could not get the crock filled before the stage coach brought the mail. Therefore, she could never meet the driver as the work had to be done before she was allowed to go to the road and get the mail.

Years ago in one of my articles, I wrote that I had ten ways of preparing potatoes. Then I got a letter from an Amish lady asking me to give her recipes. I'm sure that she knew many variations also but just did not think of them. I'd better use some innovation myself as my husband has planted several long rows of various varieties this year.

'Udderly' Spectacular Recipes To Salute June Dairy Month

GOLDEN SQUASH BAKE

3 cups crookneck summer (yellow) squash
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup light cream or milk
1/4 pound process cheese spread, cubed
1/2 cup crushed butter-flavored crackers

Slice squash and cook in about 1/2 cup of water until tender. Melt butter in saucepan. Add flour and salt, stirring until smooth. Gradually blend in milk. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add cheese, stir until smooth. Combine drained squash and cheese sauce. Place in buttered casserole. Sprinkle with cracker crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until bubbling. Six servings.

Note: Squash - a versatile vegetable combines well with cheese. I enjoy HOME ON THE RANGE and I think there's a lot unspoken "thanks" for it. Thank you!

FRIED CORN

4 cups cut off fresh corn
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup milk

Put margarine or butter in kettle or frying pan. Let margarine or butter melt. When it's melted, add all ingredients except milk. Put on low heat with a tight lid on. Stir occasionally to keep corn from sticking.

This method draws the juice from the corn. When the juice is up as high as the corn it is done. This corn can also be frozen done like this for when you want to use it. When it's melted or thawed out (on low heat) then add the milk and seasonings. If you like corn, I think you will like this.

Both my husband and I grew up on farms. I'm from New Holland and he is from Clay. We wanted to buy a farm, but they were too expensive. We farmed in Lebanon and Lancaster counties until the farms we lived on were sold. Then we rented houses to live until we built our house on Keener Road. Now we have a big lot for a garden. We use what we need and sell the rest, sometimes we have to give some away because nobody wants it anymore. I hope we have a good year. Last year it was too wet for lima beans; we didn't get many. Paul helped to build close to 100 houses. He still helps his boss on the farm when called.

I had worked in a 5&10 in New Holland, a restaurant and Hollinger's grocery store for nearly 14 years. Now I've plenty to do at home tending the garden and the lot. I sew clothing and quilts a lot except in the summertime.

TORTILLA PINWHEEL APPETIZER

8 ounces dairy sour cream
1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
1 can (4 oz.) diced green chilies, drained
1 can (4 oz.) chopped black olives, drained
1 cup grated cheddar cheese
1/2 cup chopped green onion garlic powder to taste seasoned salt to taste
5 10-inch flour tortillas fresh parsley for garnish
salsa

Mix all of the filling ingredients together thoroughly. Divide the filling and spread evenly over the tortillas; roll up tortillas. Cover tightly with plastic wrap, twisting ends; refrigerate for several hours. Unwrap; cut in slices 1/2 to 3/4 inches thick (an electric knife works best). Discard ends. Lay pinwheels flat on glass serving plate; garnish with parsley. Leave space in center of plate for small bowl of salsa if desired. Yields about 50 pinwheels.

I live on a dairy farm with my husband, Gene, who farms with his five brothers and milks about 250 cows. We have one daughter, two sons and three grandchildren.

Princesses Pick Recipe Winners

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.)—The 1990 Lancaster Farming dairy recipe contest winners were selected recently by Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Anne Marie Mitchell and Alternate Princess Angie Sprickler.

The hundreds of entries reflected a wide variety of culinary creations possible with dairy products, which form the basis of a great number of daily meals. Recipes submitted continue to fill our pages in celebration of Dairy Month.

The contest is run so that each person who submitted a recipe was eligible for the drawing. All entries, corresponding to readers from many states, were placed inside a milk pail and randomly selected by the state dairy princesses.

Lancaster Farming staff writer Lou Ann Good said she would have liked to test-taste all the recipes submitted, but conducting a contest that way, with all different types of foods possible, would require a huge staff of cooks, an enormous kitchen, an insatiable appetite, and probably more than a year in order to decide on a winner.

Good said she appreciated the notes and photos that accompanied many of the recipes. She said such items add to her enjoyment of conducting the contest because it gives her a closer attachment to readers.

A list of the dairy recipe winners follows:

- Jean Zimmerman, Mercersburg, a dairy clock.
- Elaine Schroeder, Hamburg, a pillow with Holsteins embroidered.

- Shirley Horning, Stevens, a cow shelf.
- Sandy Mycek, Spring City, a cow on wheels.
- Martha Ann Aucker, Manheim, a cow napkin holder.
- Betty and Charles Biehl, Mertztown, a handmade dairy apron.
- Roxanne Coccio, Rural Valley, a cow bank.
- Kay Landis, Hamburg, a standing cow with a bell.
- Joanne Hensley, McGheysville, cow plaque.
- Pam and Rodney Martin, Shipensburg, cow door stop.
- Lloyd Zimmerman, Danville, cow-scene door mat.
- Alta Nolt, Williamsburg, a cow coffee cup.

BUTTERSCOTCH PUDDING

1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs beaten
3 tablespoons flour
5 cups milk
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 3 oz. box butterscotch pudding and pie filling

Melt butter in a skillet. Add sugar and mix well. Slowly add two cups milk. Heat to boiling point. Make a paste by adding remaining milk to flour and pudding. Add to mixture, stirring constantly until it is thickened. Beat eggs. Add 1/2 cup hot mixture to eggs and then add eggs to pudding. Cook for two minutes and remove from heat. Add flavoring. Chill and garnish with ground peanuts, whipped cream or crushed ed bananas as desired. Makes six to eight servings.

Hello! Kid Korner. My name is Kathy Martin. I am 12 and will be in seventh grade. My birthday is April 24, 1978. I would like a pen pal, with our birthdays the same day.

Here's my address: R1 Box 257, Landisburg, PA 17040.

We live on a farm. We have cows, cats, one dog and 49 chickens. I take care of the chickens.

My parents' names are Clarence and Lois Martin. I have three brothers, Keith 15, Daryl 7 and Jay 2, and two sisters, Crystal 14 and Lisa 4.

I love reading the Kids Korner. Bye.

BAKED MACARONI AND CHEESE

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
2½ cups milk
2 cups (8 oz.) shredded cheddar cheese

2 cups (8 oz.) elbow macaroni
¼ cup buttered bread crumbs
paprika

In saucepan, melt butter. Remove from heat; blend in flour, salt, and mustard. Add milk; heat, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens a little and is smooth. Add 1½ cups cheese; heat until melted; stirring occasionally. Meanwhile, cook macaroni as directed on package; drain. Combine with sauce in a two-quart casserole; top with remaining cheese, bread crumbs and paprika. Bake at 350° 30 to 35 minutes until nicely browned and bubbly.

I enjoy the recipe pages very much.

RIBBON SALAD

4 3 oz. packages gelatin, green, yellow, orange and red
1 pound sour cream or sweet cream

1 pint milk
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 packages Knox gelatin
½ cup cold water.

Gelatin: dissolve each flavor in one cup boiling water. Add ½ cup cold water to each. Pour first kind in pan and let set (in freezer for quick).

White layer: Add vanilla to sour cream. Dissolve Knox gelatin in cold water. Bring milk to a boil. Remove from heat, add sugar. Stir in gelatin and sour mixture. Mix well. Pour 1½ cups of this mix over first layer gelatin. Let set till firm; continue with colors as given with white mixture in between each time. Also very good if all grape gelatin is used or one color.

PEACHES 'N' CREAM PIE

¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
3½ oz. package vanilla pudding (not instant)
3 tablespoons butter
¼ cup milk
1 egg
1 can (15-20 oz.) sliced peaches with juice (3 tablespoons)
8 ounces cream cheese
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon sugar

Grease bottom and sides of 10-inch pie pan. Combine first seven ingredients, beat at medium speed and pour batter into pan.

Drain peaches; reserve three tablespoons juice. Spoon peaches on top of batter one inch from edge. Mix reserved juice, cheese and ½ cup sugar; beat at medium speed two minutes. Spoon on top of peaches one inch from edge of pie plate. Mix cinnamon and one tablespoon sugar and sprinkle over top. Bake at 350° for 30 to 35 minutes.

QUESTION — R. Stoltzfus, Narvon, would like a recipe for peanut butter melt aways. She would also like a recipe for chess pie.

QUESTION — Anna Cressman, Slatington, would like a recipe for rhubarb preserves using rhubarb, pineapple, and strawberry gelatin.

QUESTION — The Martins of Ephrata would like the recipe for soft ice cream that appeared in the March 16 issue. The ice cream was made in a ice cream freezer.

QUESTION — Sheila Hamersky, Manahawbin, N.J., would like a recipe for butter cake that is wet and buttery. It is eaten plain or with cherry, strawberry or blueberry topping.

QUESTION — Recipes are wanted for baked beans and for vegetables.

ANSWER — Erma Karchnak, New Oxford, requested a recipe for tomato pudding. Thanks to Grace Huber of Plumsteadville for sending one that she says is delicious.

Tomato Pudding

10 slices white bread, cubed
¼ cup butter
1 28-ounce can tomato puree
1 box brown sugar

Cube bread and put into 2½ quart casserole. Melt butter and pour over bread.

Combine tomato puree and brown sugar and boil for 5 minutes.

Pour mixture over buttered bread and bake at 325 degrees for 45 to 50 minutes.

ANSWER — V. Martin from Springfield, Va., and Carolyn Gutshall of Carlisle, requested recipes for Easter eggs. Thanks to Mrs. Jay Suter of New Paris, J. Gehman of New Holland, and Loretta Baver of Pennsburg for sending several.

Peanut Butter Eggs

2 pounds margarine
4 pounds peanut butter
4 pounds confectioners' sugar

Mix thoroughly. Mold in egg shape and chill in freezer. Dip in 2 pounds of dipping chocolate. (Take only a few eggs from freezer to dip so the peanut butter does not soften too much).

Easter Eggs

¼ pound butter
1 8-ounce package cream cheese
Soften and mix together butter and cream cheese.

Add:

½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups peanut butter or coconut
4 cups confectioners' sugar

Place in refrigerator to chill. Form into egg or ball shape. Dip in melted chocolate coating.

Peanut Butter Eggs

1 cup margarine
8 ounces cream cheese
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoon vanilla
2 pounds powdered sugar
2¼ cups peanut butter, chunky

Cream margarine and cream cheese; add remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly. Roll into small eggs or balls. Place on cookie sheet on waxed paper and freeze about 2 hours.

For chocolate, use chocolate chips and a small bar of paraffin or chocolate coating melted on top of double boiler.

After 2 hours remove peanut butter eggs from freezer and dip in melted chocolate. Place on wax paper to cool. Makes 12 dozen eggs.

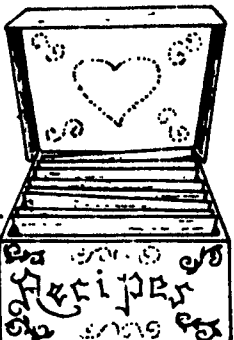

Rice Krispie Eggs

1 cup confectioners' sugar
1 cup crunchy peanut butter
2 cups Rice Krispies
2 tablespoons oil
¼ teaspoon vanilla

Mix together and mold into eggs. Place on cookie sheet and freeze about 2 hours.

Dip in chocolate coating to which a small amount of oil or butter may be added. Cool on waxed paper. "This is a crunchy, delicious candy," contributor writes.

Cook's Question Corner

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — Harry Drick, Allenwood, would like a recipe for an Easter egg that was printed in this paper several weeks before Easter. She said it takes crushed pineapple, maraschino cherries, and other ingredients.

QUESTION — Christine Jefferson, Gettysburg, would like a recipe for walnut ice cream sundae topping. She would also appreciate canning instructions for the topping if available.

QUESTION — Stanley Sitko, Pottstown, is looking for a recipe for fish cakes using a variety of fish.

QUESTION — Julie Brelsford, Flem, N.J., is looking for jams that call for half the amount of sugar or less than normally used in jams and jellies.

QUESTION — Ruth Rebert, Hanover, would like a pizza dough recipe that had been printed last year in this column.

QUESTION — Jenny Trostle, Stevens, would like an icing recipe that uses honey without any powdered sugar in it.

QUESTION — E. Lantz, Leola, would like a recipe for soft pretzels that taste similar to those sold in "Auntie Ann" shops. Please include hints and tips to make them.

QUESTION — Charlotte Smoyer, Johnstown, would like a recipe for homemade vinegar. She needs a source for crystals of bacteria culture to make mother liquor.

QUESTION — Earlene Burns, Glen Rock, would like a recipe for Kentucky Derby Pie.

QUESTION — Mrs. Elvin Zimmerman, Millmont, wants a recipe for Boston Cream Pie.

QUESTION — L. Weaver, Reinholds, would like a recipe for a homemade dressing that tastes like the store-bought Ranch dressing.

QUESTION — N.E. Koons, Lebanon, would like recipes for Serbian cookies and for Pita dough.

QUESTION — Jerome Klien from Holland, Michigan, would like a recipe for dill pickles made in a crock, not canned, and left set in the brine all winter. Usually stored in an outdoor shed.

QUESTION — June Berger, Annville, would like a recipe for crumb buns similar to those sold at markets.

QUESTION — Mrs. Gene Jennings, Fallston, Md., would like a recipe for potato filling like that served at Yoder's Steak House in New Holland. She already has three recipes, but none tastes like that.

QUESTION — Jim Barkelew, Frenchtown, N.J., would like to know if and where she can buy real butter-milk.

QUESTION — Janet Peachey, Elverson, would like a recipe for ice milk without eggs. She would like it to fit in an 5-quart ice cream freezer.

QUESTION — Sue Ambers, Duncannon, would like a recipe for candy sponge bars like those from Mantango's. She would also like a recipe for the cole slaw that

PEACHES AND CREAM CHEESECAKE

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease bottom and sides of 9-inch deep or 10-inch pie pan.

Mix together in large bowl for two minutes on medium speed:

- 1/4 cup flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons softened butter
- 1 small package vanilla pudding dry - not instant type
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup milk

Pour into pan. Place 1-15oz. can of drained peaches (reserve juice) on top of batter.

Combine:

- 1 8 oz. package softened cream cheese
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons of reserved peach juice.

Mix on medium speed two minutes. Place on top of peaches but within one inch of edge of batter.

Mix:

- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

Combine and sprinkle over cream cheese mixture. Bake 30 to 35 minutes until golden brown (filling will appear soft). Store in refrigerator.

My name is Alberta Reitz, but all my friends call me Berda - so please do since I consider Lancaster Farming a dear friend. I look forward for each Saturday's mail to bring the latest edition.

My husband, Dean, is a dairy farmer, employed by Andy Stoltzfus here in Morgantown. We are new to the area. We just moved in April, we are originally from Irish Valley, Shamokin. But are rapidly falling in love with this part of the state!

Well keep up the good work Home on the Range and keep up these great contests!

PINEAPPLE SALAD

- 1 tablespoon plain gelatine
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup pineapple juice
- 1 large can crushed pineapple, drained

1 cup grated cheese
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
Soften 1 tablespoon of plain gelatine in 1/2 cup cold water. Set aside.

Combine sugar, pineapple juice and bring to a boil. Add hot syrup to gelatine mixture. Cool until mixtures starts to gel.

Add grated cheese and pineapple to gelatine. Fold in whipped cream. Pour into mold and refrigerate until ready to use.

My husband and I live on a dairy farm. We milk more than 100 cows and raise a lot of heifers and farm over 400 acres.

GOURMET POTATOES

9-10 medium potatoes, unpeeled

- 1 1/2 cups grated cheese or Velveeta
- 1/2 cup butter or less
- 1 cup milk or 1 1/4 cups sour cream
- 1/2 cup chopped onion

- 1 teaspoon salt or to taste
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper (optional)
- paprika

Boil potatoes in skins. Cool. Peel and shred. Melt butter and cheese together and add milk or sour cream, onion, salt and pepper. Mix together with potatoes and put in well oiled baking dish. Bake at 350° for 30 to 45 minutes. May be prepared one day in advance and refrigerated or frozen for later use instead of baking immediately. Dot with butter and sprinkle with paprika before baking.

BUTTERSCOTCH SUPREME

First Layer:

- 1 cup flour
- 1 stick butter
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts

Mix first three ingredients and press into a 9x13-inch pan and bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. Cool.

Second layer:

- 1 8 oz. package cream cheese, softened
 - 1 cup powdered sugar
 - 1 cup whipped topping
- Beat together until well blended and spread over first layer.

Third layer:

- 2 packages instant butterscotch pudding
 - 3 cups milk
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Prepare as directed on package and pour over second layer. Cover third layer with whipped topping. Sprinkle with 1/2 cup chopped nuts, chill and serve.

HAM SOUFFLE

- 8 to 12 slices white bread
- 1/2 pound ground ham
- 8 oz. shredded sharp cheese
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- 6 eggs beaten
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 3 cups milk
- salt and pepper

Cut the crust off the bread. Butter half the bread. Place it buttered side down in 9x13 baking dish. Combine the ground ham, cheese, onion and spread over the bread.

Cover with the other half of the bread buttered side up. Mix the eggs, mustard, milk and salt and pepper and pour over the bread slices. Halfway through baking spread casserole with 2 cups crushed corn flakes mixed with one stick melted butter. Bake at 325° for 45 minutes to one hour.

CHOCOLATE VANILLA PUDDING

- 3 cups milk
- 1 cup sugar
- 3 eggs, separated
- 2 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch

- 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1 tablespoon butter
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Scald 2 1/2 cups milk (with egg yolks beat in) in double boiler.

Combine sugar, salt and cornstarch, add remaining milk to make a smooth paste. Add to hot milk and stir until thickened. Remove from heat and add butter and vanilla. Chill thoroughly and top with the following: beat egg whites until stiff. Add five tablespoons sugar and one ounce of unsweetened chocolate melted. Beat until meringue has a sheen. Spread chocolate meringue on pudding. Serves eight.

We like this pudding very much and hope your readers do also.

ANSWER — Carolyn Gutshall, Carlisle, wanted a recipe for peanut butter eggs or balls that are not dry inside. Thanks to Dorothy Lightner of Monterey, Va., who sent in her favorite recipe.

Peanut Butter Balls Or Eggs

- 1 pound margarine
- 2 cups peanut butter
- 2 1/2 -3 pounds confectioners' sugar
- 3 teaspoons vanilla
- 1 6-ounce package semi-sweet chocolate chips
- 1/4 pound paraffin wax

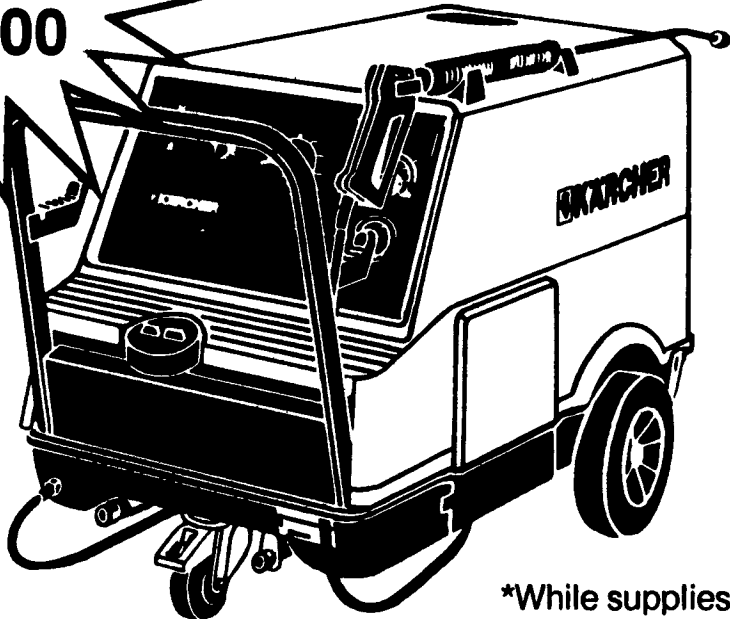

Cream margarine and peanut butter together. Add sugar and vanilla. Mix together and form desired shape. Place on cookie sheets lined with wax paper and place in the refrigerator for about 10 minutes.

Melt chocolate and paraffin wax over low heat. (Use less wax, if preferred). Put toothpick into balls and dip into chocolate. Put back on waxed paper and remove toothpick. You can also use a spoon to dip them.

What's It Like To Ride A Steam Engine?

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

CUMBERLAND, Md. — The shrill sound of the train whistle causes the visitors at the Allegany Central Railroad to turn in the direction of the black smoke rising above the bridge just as the old steam engine chugs into view.

It stops just long enough for the passengers to scamper aboard for the 30-minute trip to Frostburg, Maryland.

Many kids ride the railroad because school's out and summer vacations begins. Some are with their grandparents who remember traveling on similar trains when they were young.

Once everyone is seated, the train pulls out from the station. It begins to huff and puff its way up the mountain to the restaurant and shops located at the old C&P Station originally built in 1891.

As the train leaves Cumberland, it passes between the "Narrows." This is a gap between two mountains which began forming about 150 million years ago (when dinosaurs roamed the earth).

With the "Narrows" behind them, the passengers begin straining their eyes for a glimpse of Bone Cave. This cave was discovered in 1912. The Smithsonian Institution in Washington D.C. sent scientists to explore it. They found bones from a tapir and crocodile which are about a million years old.

Children on the train enjoy seeing the rolling green hills and the cows which populate the pastures like summer daisies and can be viewed from the train windows as the train chugs along.

There is some excitement in the air as the train nears the Brush Tunnel that cuts through Piney Mountain. It is so dark inside that no one can even see his hands.

The train rolls on past Mount Savage, where the first rolled iron rails were made. These rails looked like an upside-down U.

By the time everyone sees Buck's Horse Farm on the grassy slopes above the Frostburg station, the train is slowing to a stop.

The train stops in Frostburg and the engine turns around for the trip back down the mountain. The railroad tracks continue on and disappear into a dark tunnel, which once led the railroad under the city of Frostburg and into the Georges Creek Valley and the coal mines beyond.

Smells of charcoaled hamburgers greet the passengers as they leave the train. Some choose to go inside for a sit-down lunch of crisp chicken, golden fries, green salad, and milk. For dessert, there's a big selection of sweets, including piled-high ice cream cones or ice cream in a dish topped with chocolate sauce, whipped cream, and a cherry.

There's time for a walk to the gift shops to buy souvenirs of the train ride or to get post cards or small gifts to send to friends at home. A bright red caboose is filled with video games, and there are many miniature trains to enjoy. The tiny scenes show thumbnail-sized sets of parks and schools and little plastic people going about everyday life.

It isn't long until it is time to board the train for the return trip to Cumberland.

The train ride is a nice day trip located just below the Pennsylvania State line. It leaves Cumberland at 11:30 a.m. every day except Monday. It returns at 2:30 p.m., which gives farm families time to get home to the milking chores. It's even a good trip for a rainy day.

The train whistles loudly while Lancaster Farming correspondent Linda Williams' grandson, Cory, foreground, holds his hands to his ears. The steam engine is getting ready to depart Frostburg.

Workmen wash down the train before heading back for Cumberland.

Prize-Winning Chicken Cooks Span Nation

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Almost every cook has a favorite way to prepare chicken but no one section of the country has a monopoly on prize-winning chicken cooks.

That's the conclusion of the National Broiler Council, sponsor of the National Chicken Cooking Contest, when reviewing past winners of the competition.

Since 1971, when the first $10,000 prize was awarded for the best recipe in the Cook-off, only one state — Delaware — has produced two top winners. Other chicken cooking champions over the past two decades have come from California to Connecticut and from Georgia to Oregon as well as various other regions in between, including the District of Columbia. Two men have worn the national chicken cooking crown.

The winner of the 39th National Chicken Cooking Contest, to be held in May, 1991, in Little Rock, Arkansas, will be the first Cook-off winner to receive $25,000 for a chicken recipe. Second prize has been increased to $5,000 and three additional winning recipes will share another $6,000.

Fifty-one finalists — one from each state and the District of Columbia — will receive expense-paid trips to take part in the national Cook-Off. Deadline for entries is October 15, 1990.

Entry blanks are available, but are not required. Just write your name, address, and telephone number on front of each chicken recipe entered and mail before October 15 to Chicken Contest, Box 28158 Central Station, Washington, DC 20005.

The National Chicken Cooking Contest is one of the nation's oldest cooking competitions, dating back to 1949. It was held annually until 1983 when an alternate-year scheduled was adopted.

Chicken Giblets

In a Supermarket Shopper Survey conducted earlier this year by the Food Marketing Institute, consumers were asked: "What are you eating more or less of to ensure that your diet is healthy?" One-fifth replied that they are "eating more chicken." This is up from 16 percent in 1989, according to the National Broiler Council.

Consumers are shifting from the purchase of whole chicken to more cut-up broilers and parts, according to the National Broiler Council. Only about 30 percent of broilers in retail grocery stores are now sold as "whole chickens." In 1988, less than 60 percent of chicken was purchased cut-up or in parts. This compares to almost 70 percent in 1990.

In 1990, almost six billion broilers will be produced.

"Wizard Of Oz" Enters Dairy Land

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent
SOMERSET (Somerset Co.)—Karen Jenkins of Meyersdale, was crowned the new Somerset County Dairy Princess Saturday in a contest held at the Somerset High School. Presenting an original dairy commercial that swept the audience into the Land of Oz, poor, confused Dorothy was getting conflicting advice from the Wicked Witch, the Tin Man, the Scarecrow, and the Lion. However, when she arrived home the confusion cleared and she did the best thing of all, she drank a glass of good, cold milk.

Competing with the 18-year-old Meyersdale Area High School senior were Susan Christine Yoder, 16, daughter of Elwood and Sherry Yoder of Friedens, RD2, and Jennifer Ringler, 16, daughter of Jim and Bonnie Ringler, Berlin, RD1. Both girls are juniors at the Shanksville-Stoneycreek School District, active in the Future Homemakers of America, Students Against Drunk Driving, and many other school activities.

Outgoing dairy princess, Tracy Blair, spoke about new acquaintances made over the last year, the chaotic schedule of official appearances, and the importance of wearing that smile at all times during her reign. Candidly, she admitted to having asked herself, "Why did I do this?", when feeling overcome with weariness or denying herself fun times with friends.

Miss Jenkins is a veteran farm hand along with her four siblings, two brothers and two sisters. The daughter of Dave and Anne Jenkins, Karen says the kids and their parents alternate doing the chores of milking, feeding, and so forth. She says it's because they can't agree on the kind of music to play in the barn. So the cows get alternate rock-n-roll and country/western tempos depending on whose turn it is to do the milking.

Having a herd of Jersey cows surrounded by Holstein dairies, the Jenkins family takes a good deal of teasing from neighbors and friends. But the petite new Dairy Princess proudly states that the Jersey cows are "a lot of fun to work with and are just my size."

Involved Fathers

Dictator, captain of the ship, mediator, breadwinner — traditional roles for fathers. But the tradition is changing!

A father's role in the family has always been important, but this has not always been emphasized. One day each year, fathers are in the spotlight. That's not enough. Fathers need to (usually want to) be involved in DAILY family activities.

In this time of change, one thing is certain: Fathers are essential in the lives of their children if boys and girls are to become well-balanced adults. Even if a father is not present in the home, it is critical for some men to fill this role for children.

And let's be honest, we're asking men to take on this supportive, nurturing role with little training. Few places offer classes in how to be an encouraging father. How many times do fathers get together to discuss options for handling a rebellious teen-ager?

A mother may make or break a father's success as he attempts to become more involved. James Levine, director of the Fatherhood Project, describes it this way.

"Moms want dads to take responsibility. They don't want to have to ask them. On the other hand, when dads take responsibility, moms feel they've taken it in the wrong way which means that they're not helping."

Dads need encouragement, not judgement and criticism, as they try new parenting tasks.

Typically, the mother is labeled as the child's caregiver. Mothers and fathers fill different, yet equally important roles as parents. A dad's goal is not simply to become an "assistant mom."

Fathers serve as role models to all their children, not just the boys! They demonstrate appropriate behavior — and this can include crying when sad, laughing, hugging, and cooking. Often it is this impression that shapes a son's or daughter's future interactions with men.

It is also important for dads to share their skills and interests. I learned to play softball with my dad. My dad also nurtured by budding interest in politics and public policy. I appreciate my father's example of careful money management, too. These were interests unique to my father. It would have been unnatural for my mother to try to teach me those things. That's the beauty of having two adults (or more) who are committed to guiding a child.

I am always encouraged to see a dad carrying his child on his shoulders as they walk along a road, changing diapers, cheering for a daughter at her awards ceremony.

Children, and for that matter wives, should not expect fathers to be perfect. Fathers don't need to have all the answers. It's OK to say, "I don't know. Let's try to find out together." This does several things. This honesty helps dad avoid being caught in a bluff and disillusioning a trusting child. It shows the child that no one can know everything and that a lack of knowledge is not disgraceful. Finally, with an invitation to learn more, this dad encourages his child's curiosity.

Be patient with the dads that you know. Society doesn't always encourage men to express feelings openly even to children. Often they are schooled to be independent — needing no one. "I can take care of myself. I don't need any help."

And remember to encourage them as they try new, sometimes uncomfortable tasks. They may feel inadequate. Give them support.

I'll close with a couple reminders to dads. As you become more involved with your children, remember:

- Discipline should not be done in an arbitrary, spur-of-the-moment way. Be aware of your own size and strength in comparison to your child's both when you play and as you set limits.

- Good fathers make good husbands and vice versa. A father who neglects his child's mother is not helping the child prepare for his or her future home and adult life.

Parenting for moms and dads is a time-consuming commitment — a commitment that when done well will give a son or daughter the confidence to grow into a capable, likeable adult.

Karen's brother, David, took all the prizes in the 1989 Somerset County Fair Jr. Livestock competition with his entries in the Jersey category.

"I'm shy, but I fake it," says Karen, sliding a spoonful of luscious chocolate ice cream sundae into her mouth. She says she wants to do as many dairy commercials as possible during her reign. This young woman praises all farmers and says they do not receive enough recognition for all they do.

Ten little girls dressed in regal attire as Dairy Maids, and escorted by six well-mannered males, also

It was sponsored by the Somerset County Dairy Promotion Committee. Members are Evelyn Moyer, Melissa Fox, Jean Taylor, Brenda Slingluff, Charlene McWilliams, Charlene Courtney, Tomalee Will, Jane Zimmerman, Barbara Berkley, Gloria Kaufman, Dorothy Naugle, and Penny Reiman.

MODEL 4014 MODEL 3009
14 Gallon 9 Gallon

Can Send Both U.P.S. (Also 2-Hole 40 Gal. Available)

Proven to Work - Since 1984

- After marketing for 6 years our customers tell us it's still the best and unique drinker you can buy today.
- The simple (nothing mechanical) tipping of therm-cap has so little resistance even sheep can easy drink
- Units have non-siphoning all plastic 1/2" water valve
- Units have 1/2" PVC shut off-and-on ball valve right behind water valve
- The complete PVC valve assembly is threaded, no cutting - no glueing - easy hook-up and maintain.
- Drinker lid is designed w/no grooves on top that can encourage bacteria-germs that could seep inside unit.
- The Poly-Drinkers are high density urethane foam insulated with drain-plugs. Model #3009 has proven to work outside in our area with minimum - 2 horses - and maximum -50 head beef.

FORAGE BLEND

Route 2, Hampton, IA 50441

What it is...

Milage is a unique blend of specially selected milo and soybean varieties that complement one another to maximize forage yield, protein content and palatability.

What it does...

Milage is a versatile forage crop that offers many advantages:
HIGH YIELDS. Yields as high as 18 tons (50% moisture) can be obtained with high management techniques. Yields of 8 to 12-ton are easily achieved on soils with good water holding capacity and proper nutritional balance.

HIGH PROTEIN. Under the most ideal conditions, protein content can test as high as 18%. Generally, though, protein will most likely range between 12 and 16%.

TDN. Milage will consistently provide TDN levels of 60-65%.

LOWER COST. Compared to corn silage, Milage is a more economical crop to produce. No herbicide cost, no insecticide cost, much lower fertilizer costs and no cultivation add up to big savings on crop expenses.

CONSTRUCTED FOR YEARS OF MAINTENANCE-FREE SERVICE.

Look over these outstanding features.
• Less weight. Eby aluminum bodies weigh up to 30% less than comparable steel and wood construction.
• Less maintenance. Aluminum construction won't rust or rot - never needs painting.
• Long-life durability. Heavy-duty structural components and hollow-tube frame combine with aluminum floor and sides to stand up to years of hard work.

This 24' Ruffneck from M. H. Eby is an investment in quality

Your cows deserve the best

A new aluminum trailer, like this one from E.M. Eby, Inc., looks bright and clean when it comes from the factory. The surprising thing is it stays bright and clean for years — with very little maintenance.

Aluminum offers another big advantage over conventional wood and steel trailer construction. It's lighter — as much as 35% lighter.

Proof of durability for Eby trailers is their resale value. At five years old, many sell for as much as 90% of their original price.

Please call or write for more information and the name of the dealer nearest you.

Got Grain? Then get the trailer that is Timpco tough...the Super Hopper. It's not only built to take it...it's also built to cut fuel costs. The Super Hopper is lightweight and aerodynamically designed to reduce wing drag. When there's grain to be hauled, Timpco does the haulin' best and pulls a lot easier than the rest.

GEHL

Versatility Champ!

With a horsepower rating for maximum 200 hp, the Gehl 1060 features exclusive patented spinner delivery system that "jets" material from cylinder to blower in a continuous flow. Other features include overrunning clutch; in-head hydraulic knife sharpener that allows in-field knife sharpening and refacing of cutterbar, using tractor hydraulics; and single-station cutterbar adjustment. Auto-Max system, speed monitor, metal detector, haylage water tank optional! It's totally versatile! Make us prove it with a demonstration.

Solid. Reliable. Efficient.

Gehl's 860 forage harvester can be used with tractors from 60 to 150 hp. It features a patented single-station cutterbar adjustment. Options include metal-stop metal detector, an in-head hydraulic knife sharpener that allows in-field knife sharpening and refacing of cutterbar, using tractor hydraulics, overrunning clutch; bevel extenders for the cylinders, haylage water tank and tandem axles. The best buy on the market! Make us prove it with a demonstration.

HIGH EFFICIENCY FANS

■ 9 14 16 18 and 24 sizes to match your precise needs

■ Cast aluminum propellers won't rust or corrode

■ Aeroflow propeller tip reduces vortex turbulence to increase airflow efficiency

■ Large radius venturi smooths and speeds airflow through the fan for greater efficiency

■ High efficiency variable speed motors reduce operating costs

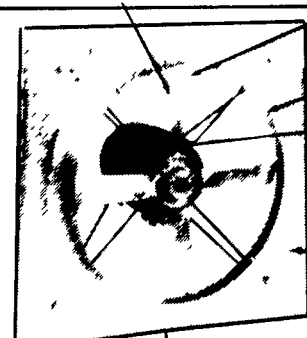

■ Galvanized steel panel for economical ventilation in non corrosive environments

■ Flat panel design permits easy do it yourself flush mounting for neat clean installations and easy weather stripping

■ Close tip clearance improves fan performance

■ Plastic-coated steel motor mount features full circle support and a spring suspension design to absorb starting torque and vibration for smooth quiet operation

■ A tough plastic coating provides corrosion protection in severe environments while dampening noise and vibration. Coating has UV blockers to prevent weathering

24" fan with plastic-coated, galvanized-steel panel

■ Pre drilled mounting holes speeds installation of fan and optional housings and cones

■ Propellers are individually balanced for smooth efficient operation

■ Airfoil design propeller moves

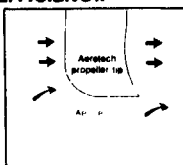

■ Clean white color looks great in any building more air per watt than old fashioned stamped blades

AEROTECH FAN EFFICIENCY.

Extra-deep Aerotech venturi extends past the propeller to reduce efficiency-robbing turbulence.

TYPICAL COMPETITOR'S FAN.

Shallow venturi produces power-robbing turbulence from excessive propeller overhang.

And with Case IH No. 1 you'll get the diesel engine oil that's API CE rated—so you know it will give you optimum performance in your hardworking farm machinery. Check out the ways No. 1 Oil works for you ■

Take advantage of these big rebate savings and get the No. 1 advantage—the oil that provides premium performance and protection for your diesel engines ■

Parts Payback

- High quality base stocks—with viscosity indexes ranging from 110-150. A rating above 95 indicates a quality base stock.
- Zinc content of 15". An important anti wear additive—most competitive products run only 10" - 13".
- Total Base Number (TBN) of 12-15. The higher the rating, the better the capability to neutralize acid. Competitive oils are rated as low as 6.
- Sulfated ash content of 1.5% —that's 50% more of this important diesel engine additive than typical competitive oils.

Axial-Flow Combines Are Simply More Productive

Over the past twelve years the Case IH axial-flow combines have proven themselves to be more productive than the combines previously owned by our customers. In tall crops, short crops or down crops; bumper crops or drought crops the axial-flow combines put more crop in the bin and, therefore, return more market dollars to you. The Case IH axial-flow is simply more productive in the field where the bragging stops.

HOOBER:

Axial-Flow production specialists

1. Every new combine Hooper sells is expertly predelivered and started in the field by a professional combine mechanic; experienced in setting and adjusting for all common crops.
2. Hooper's professional combine mechanics drive fully equipped combine service trucks, stocked with commonly used wearing parts. When called to service or repair an axial-flow combine, they carry with them the tools and equipment to do the job and get you back to the field fast.
3. Hooper's Parts Department has the largest combine parts inventory in the East. Daily pick-ups at the Case IH Parts depot help to provide fast emergency parts availability. Hooper's expert combine PARTS service provides you minimum downtime and maximum productivity.

Hey! Folks

If your cows are slipping and falling, it ain't my fault because I have a machine called a Scabblar that will fix that concrete so your cows won't keep slipping all the time.

We've got service all around this section of the country, and I have a fellow just jumping to do your job mighty fast.

And that ain't all, our prices are right reasonable, and if you're a tightwad we'll let you do the job yourself if you've got over 500 square feet. It can save you right smart a money.

So call me on my nickel at 800-692-0123. If I'm not by the phone, some real live person will take your number, and I'll try to get back to you real soon. Usually somebody is awake in this outfit, so you just call any time day or night. But, please mind the Lord, and don't call on Sunday.

Just one more thing. We fellows make our living doing this kind of work, and we've got children to feed and bills. That's our side of it, but you've got such things too. A lot of people tell us that this Scabbling saves a whole lot more than it costs. So go ahead and do it. It'll put shoes on everybody's feet.

Be looking to hear from you folks right soon.

Better Use Of Manure

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. — Seventy-four West Virginia farmers in counties that drain to the Potomac River are helping with the Chesapeake Bay cleanup by using newly built manure management systems.

Farmers are storing animal wastes from dairies, hogs, beef cattle, and poultry and making better use of manure, said state conservationist Rollin N. Swank of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service (SCS).

SCS has helped seven Jefferson County farms with manure systems, in the Potomac Headwaters Resource Conservation and Development Area's Shenandoah River Project, Swank said.

In the Opequon Creek Watershed Project, SCS has cost-shared and designed three animal waste systems under Public Law 566, the small watershed act. Thirty more West Virginia farms can be assisted in Berkeley and Jefferson counties.

Another USDA agency, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), funded $1.2 million in 1989-91 to improve water quality in eight eastern counties. In five of the counties, 49 farms have built manure facilities in the special Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) Project.

ASCS regularly funds ACP long-term agreements. In five counties — Grant, Hampshire, Hardy, Mineral and Pendleton — 15 farms used this cost-sharing to install manure systems.

Niederhauser Named World Food Prize Laureate

DES MOINES, IA -- Dr. John S. Niederhauser has been named the 1990 laureate of the World Food Prize.

The World Food Prize is the foremost international award to recognize, encourage, and reward outstanding individual achievement in improving the world food system.

According to Dr. Norman E. Borlaug, founder of the World Food Prize and 1970 recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize, this year's laureate is proof that one person can truly make a difference toward alleviating world hunger and malnutrition.

"Without a doubt, Dr. Niederhauser's discoveries have had a dramatic impact on the food-deficient regions of the world. His achievements toward developing a blight-resistant potato variety have affected countries from Mexico to Bangladesh. Today, we recognize a lifetime of dedication and decades of innovation," Borlaug said.

Because of Niederhauser's contributions toward the quantity, quality, and availability of the potato in developing countries, he has been affectionately deemed "Mr. Potato" by his friends, colleagues, and admirers all over the world.

In Mexico alone, Niederhauser's discoveries helped increase potato production from 134,000 metric tons between 1948 and 1952, to over 1 million metric tons between 1978 and 1982. The potato is now a major crop in Mexico.

An international crop scientist, Niederhauser has helped establish several organizations that assist third-world countries in creating and transferring production technology more efficiently. His leadership roles, strategic ideas, and outstanding production breakthroughs have made him a pioneer in world food production.

Niederhauser graduated in 1939 with what was the highest academic average ever recorded to that time in the Cornell University College of Agriculture. He received his doctorate and was appointed to the staff at Cornell as an assistant professor in the Department of Plant Pathology.

In 1948, he accepted a position with the newly formed Mexico-Rockefeller Foundation Agricultural Program, a project helping to alleviate hunger in food-deficient regions of the world. Before he departed for Mexico, a former administrator at Cornell warned him, "Nobody will ever hear of you again."

Indeed, they would hear of him again. Since that day, Niederhauser has made several important advancements toward the blight-resistant potato, a variety unharmed by the late blight disease which devastated the fields of Europe more than 100 years ago.

Chicken Is Top Value Meat

WASHINGTON, D.C.— At the same time that chicken is becoming the nation's number one meat choice, it's also being rated by consumers as offering the most value for the money.

Americans are more satisfied with the value they get from chicken than from 50 different products and services, according to a recent nationwide survey of 7,000 families conducted by National Family Opinion, Inc. for The Conference Board. Chicken tops the list with the highest level of consumer acceptance; videotape rentals, TV sets, fruits and vegetables, and appliances are also seen as good values.

So it's no coincidence that in 1990, for the first time, chicken consumption per capita is expected to surpass that of both beef and pork.

This year, Americans will spend about $20 billion for chicken while consuming an average of 73 pounds each, according to Albin Johnson, chairman of the National Broiler Council, which represents the nation's chicken producers.

"We attribute chicken's continuing growth in popularity to the fact that it is one of the best nutritional values available, being low in calories, fat and cholesterol while remaining extremely economical," said Johnson. "New cuts and products have also boosted both the convenience and versatility of chicken, adding to the value factor."

Chicken now accounts for almost one-third of total meat consumption. Johnson said that in 1934, the first year broiler production figures were recorded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, 34 million broilers per produced. "This year the industry will process that number in less than one working day."

Keystone Promotes O'Brien

SHOEMAKERSVILLE (Berks Co.) — William P. O'Brien has been promoted to the position of executive loan officer with the Lancaster branch of Keystone Farm Credit, ACA. He joined Keystone as a senior loan officer in June, 1989.

A northern Virginia native and a 1983 magna cum laude graduate of Virginia Polytechnic and State University, O'Brien earned his bachelor of science in agricultural economics.

Joining the Farm Credit Baltimore district immediately after college, O'Brien began with the Roanoke, Virginia Association, worked for a time in the St. Paul Farm Credit District, and came to Keystone from the York, PA., association. He has been serving and will continue to serve Keystone's accounts in the New Hol-

Pennsylvania/New York Beef Field Day Set

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The 17th annual Cattleman's Field Day will be held Saturday, July 28, at Jerald and Janet Ostrander's Stony Creek Farm, northeast of Troy, PA, in Bradford County.

The Field Day is sponsored by Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science, the Pennsylvania Cattleman's Association, the Pennsylvania Polled Hereford Association, the New York Empire Polled Hereford and Hereford Breeders Association, and the New York Beef Cattleman's Association.

Highlighting the many different demonstrations and discussions will be Glen Klippenstein, chairman of the Cattleman's Beef Promotion and Research Board, which is responsible for collecting and allocating the beef, dairy, and veal checkoff funds. Klippenstein is a Penn State animal science graduate and is co-owner of Glenkirk Farms, Maysville, Missouri. Klippenstein has successfully competed in the improvement of several different beef breeds, and is an internationally-renowned consultant and speaker. He will speak about "The Beef Board and You!"

Other featured demonstrations or speakers will be intensive grazing systems by Roger Wentling, Saylorsburg, PA, one of the foremost specialists in grazing and fencing systems; use of EPDs for herd management by Dr. Erskine H. Cash, department of dairy and animal science, Penn State; VISIONS 2000, a strategic-planning breed-improving plan sponsored by the American Polled Hereford Association by Joe Zupan, co-owner of Big T Ranches, Jeromesville, Ohio; the feeder calf tele-marketing program in New York by Peter Comerford, New York Department of Agriculture marketing specialist; and hoof trimming demonstrations by "Handy Hoofers" Tim Blakeley, Troy, PA.

Each of the above demonstrations will be conducted in the morning and in the afternoon. In addition, there will be a judging contest including cow/calf matching, and various cattle displays of Stony Creek's select Polled Hereford herd.

There will be several entertainers and educational events for youth and junior cattlemen, including a workshop entitled "The Udder Truth" and there will also be a special fund-raising bovine bingo.

More information about the Field Day can be obtained by calling or writing to The Pennsylvania Cattleman's Association, 9-B River Street, Elkland, PA (814) 258-7283 or 258-5407 or Bette Slayton, Schellsburg, PA (814) 733-2281.

Pennco Barley Resists Virus

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A winter barley cultivar developed by a Penn State agronomist is highly resistant to a virus that threatens cereal crops worldwide. The virus reduces yields of susceptible barley varieties up to 50 percent.

Healthy plants of each cultivar were infested with virus-carrying aphids, then tested several weeks later for virus content and effects on grain yield. Viral levels were lowest in leaf tissue of Pennco and highest in Barsoy, the most susceptible cultivar.

The virus had little effect on grain yield of Pennco, Venus, and Wysor but significantly reduced yields of Barsoy and Maury.

Symptoms of barley yellow dwarf virus are not easily recognized and are often attributed to nutritional disorders or poor growing conditions. Barley plants infected with the virus usually have yellowed leaves, which may become red or purple. The degree of dwarfing depends on the plant's growth stage when infected, as well as susceptibility of the variety.

Four distinct strains of barley yellow dwarf virus occur in Pennsylvania, each spread by a different species of aphid.

"Aphids are ideal vectors for the virus because they reproduce rapidly and can travel great distances," Gildow said. "They acquire the virus when feeding on infected plants, then transmit the virus to healthy plants with their piercing mouthparts."

potato producing country in the world. However, potato farmers in Poland have had little or no access to fertilizers or fungicides, thus leaving their crops exposed to blight attack when weather is favorable.

In 1982, Niederhauser began his collaboration of a Polish program to develop blight-tolerant varieties using resistant potato germplasm from Mexico. Yields in the test plots were 50-100 percent greater than the surrounding fields. The new technology is spreading rapidly from farm to farm.

Niederhauser helped develop a Mexican national potato program in 1948. Through this program, he worked in the fields with a small group of farmers, stressing applied technologies, such as adequate supplies of healthy seed at planting time; better adapted varieties; disease control; and practical, inexpensive storage to alleviate marketing problems.

Though self-evident today, this strategy of working in the fields with farmers was not well understood or coordinated in many agricultural development efforts. Niederhauser developed the program, taught others, and put it to work.

Niederhauser soon demonstrated the same approach in countries of Latin America, Asia, and Africa while still participating in the Mexican program. This led to the development of the Inter-American Potato Program in the late 1950s and the International Potato Program in 1965 with Niederhauser as director.

Following an interview with President Belaunde Terry of Peru in 1968, and using the international al potato program he had developed as a base, Niederhauser and his colleagues initiated steps to establish the new International Potato Center (CIP) in Lima, Peru in 1971. During the last 20 years this center has continued the rapid momentum established by Niederhauser. Today, the annual increase in world potato production is greater than that of any other crop.

In 1978, a new strategy for the international transfer of technology and for the simultaneous building of strength and continuity in national programs was designed by Niederhauser.

The national potato programs of 10 countries and the International Potato Center make up an 11-member team called PRECODEPA (Regional Cooperative Potato Program). These countries work together to create and transfer production technology and adapt to the changing problems affecting potato production.

In addition, Niederhauser works as a food production consultant for the Biosphere II project in Tucson, Arizona. Within the next year, eight people will enter this sealed environmental facility and live for two years on the food they produce, including the potato.

"The challenge is enormous," said Niederhauser. "By 2010, if there is a trip to Mars, the crew, using some of the technology developed in the Biosphere II, could produce their own food en route and eliminate one of the major limiting factors of such a trip. Perhaps they could leave such a capsule on Mars where human beings could sustain themselves while doing other studies there."

College Hill Hosts Meeting

FREDERICKSBURG (Lebanon Co.) — College Hill Poultry, Inc. hosted its growers and L&H Contracting, Inc. of Berrysburg to a broiler barbecue on Thursday evening, June 14, at the Fredericksburg Lions Club Park.

The meeting was moderated by Paul Steinmetz, College Hill vice president. Steinmetz introduced Dr. James Mitchell, consulting nutritionist to College Hill.

Mitchell reviewed the feeding program objectives and his role in the growout. Herbert Borchert of L&H Contracting, Inc. gave the growers information regarding the growout health program and reviewed improved growout statistics.

Highlighting the evening was the presentation of awards for 1989 to the growers by Richard Shenk, College Hill president, and Ronald Weaver, L&H Contracting field supervisor. Recipients of awards were Betty Weaver of Elizabethtown for highest livability and lowest condemnations; Milton Hurst of Mifflinburg, best feed conversion; and Luke Sensenig, highest weight as adjusted to 49 days.

There was a tie for the most improved grower. Recipients were Eugene Zimmerman and H. Earl Wolgemuth, both of Elizabethtown. Woodrow Deiter of Halifax was named 1989 College Hill Grower of the Year and was presented with a check for $1,000.00 for his achievement.

Following the presentations, Shenk told the growers that the outlook for broiler production continues to be favorable.

Feed Dry Matter On Pasture

Edward J. Woods
Country Agricultural Agent
Dry Matter

Pastures are growing very well, because of good soil moisture. This means that livestock can utilize some dry matter while on pasture. This can include hay or silage. With the dry matter present, they will consume a moderate amount along with the fresh grass.

The dry matter slows down the passage of the lush forage through the digestive system. Also it reduces the danger of bloating when there is clover or alfalfa in the forage mixture. If the animals are out all of the time, then a portable hay rack would be the way to feed hay. Dry matter intake is important when pastures are lush and high in water content.

Mow Weedy Pastures

If your pasture is weedy, get out the mower. There are two good reasons for this; one, it eliminates the production of weed seeds and two, it removes mature forage which lets plants send out new and tender growth.

But, before you mow, you should graze the pasture heavily as to utilize all the available food. The animals eat some weeds but they also eat some of the tall grasses that would be wasted by mowing. Remember, mow closely — 2 to 3 inches. And instead of trashing the clippings, use them. Many farmers recover enough hay from pasture mowing to winter feed some of their cattle.

How To Prune Rhododendrons

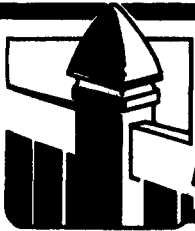

Does your rhododendron need some pruning? If you're pruning only to shape the plant, we suggest you prune a little at a time several times throughout the summer.

Remove dead branches and branches with wilted flowers promptly, whenever they occur. Do all other pruning after the flowers fade and pinch off the faded flowers. Carefully remove at its base the soft spur holding the flower to encourage the growth of the leaf buds around it. Flower buds for the next year form on new growth from these leaf buds.

In pruning branches to give a more pleasing shape to the plant, cut just as close as possible above a node or fork. Dormant buds are formed at the nodes. Do not leave a long bare stub.

If your rhododendron has long stems and a straggly appearance, you can cut the stems back to one to two feet but you'll have to wait until the end of next winter before growth starts. Do not cut stems any shorter than one to two feet. Even with the amount of stem, some bushes will not produce new growth.

To make sure that your rhododendron will bloom well the next year, it's a good idea to prune back no more than one-third of the total number of branches each season. Most varieties of rhododendron with a name are grafted. On these, cut off sprouts. Sprouts originating below the graft will not produce the right kind of flowers.

The Poultry Fan With DELUXE PERFORMANCE

POULTRYMEN...

Increase Your Profits By Reducing The Temperature In Your Poultry House.

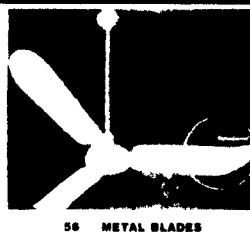

During hot summer months the worst enemy of a poultry grower is heat. High temperatures cause stress on his poultry, during prolonged periods of high temperatures he can lose many thousands of birds in a very short period of time. RC Fogger Nozzles are designed to produce a fine mist that acts as air conditioning in a poultry house. Cooling poultry in hot weather by fogging or misting is recognized as being the most effective means for reducing stress, thereby increasing the efficiency of feed conversion and reducing mortality. By far the most economical method to accomplish cooling in the poultry house is the use of fogger nozzles.

There is no comparison between the RC-4025-2 Fogger Nozzle and any other means of cooling. WE GUARANTEE THAT!

Hesston Introduces Heavy Duty Baler

CAROL STREAM, IL — For producers who put up a large number of small square bales, Hesston Corporation recently introduced the Model 4590 Center Line Baler.

The center line system moves the hay through the baler in a straight line from windrow to finished bale. This concept eliminates the high maintenance of the cross-conveyor systems used in conventional balers.

A wide, low-profile Maxi-Sweep pickup positioned squarely in front on the Model 4590 picks up the complete windrow. Gauge wheels on both sides allow the Maxi-Sweep's 112 tines on four tine bars to ride close to the ground, yet avoid damage.

A heavy, high-speed plunger is mounted on eight sealed ball bearing rollers. Running at 100 strokes per minute, a short stroke of 21.65 inches reduces plunger wear.

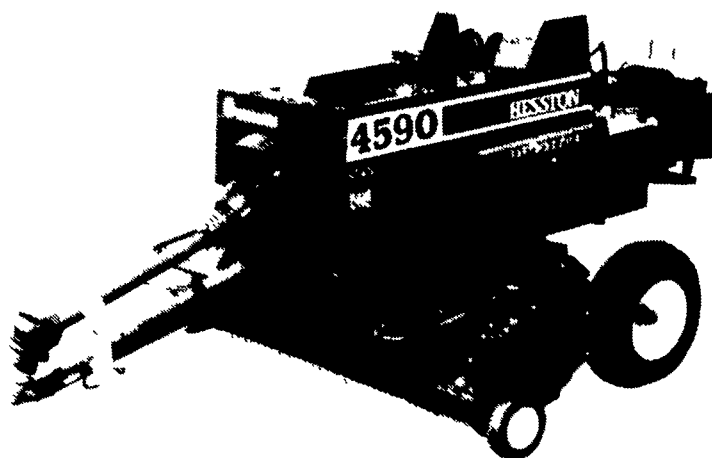

Extension spring bale tensioning assures consistent bale weight and density. Bale size can be set from 12 inches to 52 inches long. A positive bale length mechanism monitors length.

Knotters tie secure knots with either plastic or sisal twine. An optional wire twister is available. Excellent ground clearance protects needles.

The Model 4590 joins the line of Hesston Center Line Balers, including the Model 4550 and Model 4570.

More information on the Hesston Center Line Balers can be

New Barley Resists Virus

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A new winter barley cultivar developed by a Penn State researcher is highly resistant to a virus that threatens cereal crops worldwide. The virus reduces yields of susceptible barley varieties up to 50 percent.

"Barley yellow dwarf virus is probably the most widely distributed viral pathogen of small grains," said Dr. Marvin L. Risius, Penn State professor of agronomy. Pennco showed strong resistance to the virus in a recent study funded in part by the Pennsylvania Foundation Seed Cooperative.

Risius and Dr. Frederick E. Gildow, associate professor of plant pathology, conducted laboratory and field experiments, comparing viral resistance to Pennco to four other popular cultivars: Barsoy, Maury, Venus, and Wysor.

Healthy plants of each cultivar were infested with virus-carrying aphids, then tested several weeks later for virus content and effects on grain yield. Viral levels were lowest in leaf tissue of Pennco and highest in Barsoy, the most susceptible cultivar.

The virus had little effect on grain yield of Pennco, Venus, and Wysor but significantly reduced yields of Barsoy and Maury.

Symptoms of barley yellow dwarf virus are not easily recognized and are often attributed to nutritional disorders or poor growing conditions. Barley plants infected with the virus usually have yellowed leaves, which may become red or purple. The degree of dwarfing depends on the plant's growth stage when infected.

POULTRY INDUSTRY OUTLOOK

The general economic trends have changed little from last year. Economic growth has continued at a slightly slower rate. Gross national product growth for 1990 is projected to be 2 percent. The economy's slow growth will enter its eighth consecutive year.

During the first quarter of 1990, inflation has been high relative to last year. Much of this inflation has been the result of unusual items. Cold weather in December brought higher fuel oil, fruit, and vegetable prices, while higher apparel prices hit in March. Inflation for April 1990 was 0.2 percent and the average for the previous 12 months was 4.7 percent.

While this is slightly higher than the last two years, it is much more reasonable than rates seen in the early 1980s. An inflation rate very similar to the last two years is expected for 1990.

Feed costs were lower by 5 cents per dozen for layers, 3 cents per pound for broilers, and nearly 5 cents per pound for turkeys during the first quarter of 1990. Recent substantial increases in corn prices have brought costs near levels of last year.

While corn prices are projected to be slightly higher during the next few months, soybean prices are projected to weaken as Brazilian supplies become available to world markets. Lower corn storage levels have made feed prices increasingly sensitive to weather-related problems as this year's corn crop was being planted and starts to grow. Feed costs for the year will be slightly higher than last year because costs will not decline the last half of the year as much as they did last year.

Broilers

Broiler production through May has been 7 percent above 1989 levels. Hatch figures were up 7 percent for January through March and up 8 percent in April. Eggs in incubators May 1 were up 5 percent. Production will be up 7 percent from 1989; wholesale prices will be lower than 1989 at 55 cents per pound. With higher feed costs, profits will be 5 cents per pound, down from last year's 10 cents per pound.

Eggs

Production was unchanged in the first quarter but will be above last year's level for the rest of this year. The production flock was relatively old because of molting but flock replacements have been and will continue to be widespread.

The hatch in April was up 3 percent but was 16 percent higher in January through March. Production increases will lead to an egg price of 74 cents per dozen for 1990. This will give producers a 5 cent profit if corn and soybeans have a good growing season.

Hardy Introduces New Corn Variety

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Beachley-Hardy Seed Company has introduced Hardy Brand HB6270, a grain producing hybrid, according to Frank Welch, marketing director.

HB6270 is a full season hybrid for this region. Early trials have shown excellent yields for shelling or picking for this single cross, companion to Hardy's 797XS.

The new "Hardy Brand Corn Guide," which outlines all the varieties with specific information for every maturity range, is available through your local Hardy Brand dealer or by calling Beachley Hardy Seed Company at (717) 737-4529.

Latest Developments

- PREPARATION - High volume water blasting at 1,000 lb. pressure re-surfaces barn siding into a smooth (like new) appearance!
 - Performed by professionals quickly at reasonable cost.
 - By yourself with your own or rented equipment.
 - Or other more conventional methods.
- APPLICATION - To insure better adherence to this super prepared surface, use the best fine bristle brush in four directions to evenly distribute the recommended rail thickness of seal coat coverage.
- SPECIALIZATION - Every barn is different but generally it's best to use a high quality mildew resistant product, specially formulated to meet the requirements of this partially weathered wood that was and will be weather stressed.
- WARNING - The modified oil latex is less effective as a wood preserver and actually increases nail & metal deterioration. Deal with home people. At their rates, I could double mine. Estimates Evaluations Latest Equip.

Baltimore Farm Credit Reports Good Year

BALTIMORE, MD — The Farm Credit Bank of Baltimore and its 18 affiliated associations recorded 1st quarter net income of $5 million on a loan portfolio of $2.92 billion, according to recently released combined Bank and Association Combined Quarterly Financial Statements.

Bank officials reported loan volume increased 2.1% over the previous quarter, and 8.9% above first quarter 1989, marking the tenth consecutive quarter of continued loan volume growth.

Gene Swackhamer, president of the bank said, "The agricultural economy in the middle Atlantic region has recovered from its slump during 1985-88. This is clearly evidenced by our steady growth in volume that has occurred while loan portfolio quality has continued to improve."

He said the $2.92 billion in loan volume is nearing a record high, set in 1984, for combined bank and association mortgage and commercial loan activity.

Swackhamer attributed the growth to the development of more flexible and competitive loan products, an aggressive marketing effort, and continued economic expansion throughout the region.

Net interest income for the quarter was $19.1 million, an increase of $6 million or 45.8% over the same quarter of the previous year. The increase in net interest income occurred because of higher levels of interest earning assets and improved spreads due to lower funding costs.

Net income for the 1st quarter 1990 was $5 million which compares favorably with results for the 1st quarter of 1989 after the effect of a 1989 accounting change is excluded.

In the first quarter of 1989 the change to generally accepted accounting principles from regulatory guidelines for determination of the allowance for loan losses caused a $16.7 million favorable income effect. No similar item occurred in the first quarter

The Farm Credit Bank of Baltimore and its 18 associations are currently providing loans and financial services to more than 49,000 borrowers in Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

The bank and the affiliated associations, which form the Baltimore Farm Credit District, are part of the Farm Credit system.

Farm Couple Selected For National Awards

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A Perry County farm couple has been selected as Pennsylvania's nominee for the 1990 National Endowment for Soil and Water Conservation Farmer/Rancher Awards Program.

Charles and Virginia Beaver, of RD 2, Millerstown, won this year's honor because of their long-standing efforts to promote conservation, said Vernal "Corky" Miles, state coordinator for the awards program.

"We feel Charlie Beaver is typical of the type of farmer most deserving of this recognition," Miles said. "His own initiatives and desire to try new things and make them work are what has made him successful in soil and water conservation."

The Beavers began applying conservation practices in the 1960s. They have applied many practices since then, including stripcropping, grassed waterways, sub-surface drainage, spring developments, diversions, and terraces. The Beavers plant all of their crops using no-till methods. The couple grows crops on 732 acres and keep 30 brood cows and 28 calves.

"Our land should be given to the next person in better condition than the way it was when we received it," said Charles Beaver. "We must make up for past mistakes in managing the soil, especially in the East where our topsoil is not deep to begin with. It is our responsibility to protect our natural resources for the future."

Pennsylvania will recognize the Beavers as its state winner during the next several months. The Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts will present them with a plaque at their Executive Council meeting in October. In addition, State Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff will honor the Beavers during Secretary's Night at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in January.

Last year Charles Beaver won a top local honor in conservation. He was named Perry County's "Outstanding Conservation District Cooperator."

The Beavers now enter the National Endowment contest competition. The competition recognizes selected farmers and ranchers for their conservation achievements. Ten national finalists will be announced in September and the three top national winners will be announced in December.

Ten farmers entered this year's

Pennsylvania National Endowment for Soil and Water Conservation Award Program. Second-place honors went to Edward and Sherrill Kuckuck, RD 1, Box 700, Saltsburg, Indiana County. The Kuckucks operate a 180-acre grain farm.

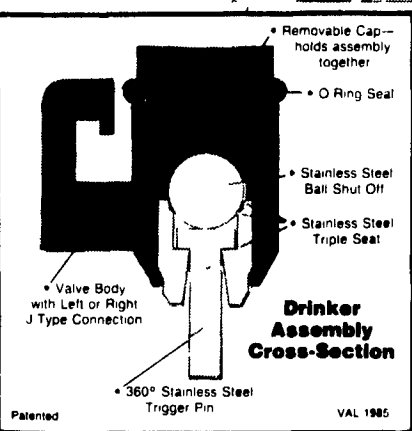

Judges for the state competition were William Hunt, Soil Conservation Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture; Richard Pennay, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture; William Adams, Pennsylvania Farmers Association; William Ringler, Pennsylvania State Grange; Allen Deiter, Pennsylvania Farmers Union; Chris Herr, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture; Richard Vannoy, Bureau of Soil and Water Conservation, Department of Environmental Resources (DER); Norman Lacasse, DER; Gene Gayman, Farmers Home Administration; Jack Bergstrom, Cooperative Extension Service; and Patricia Devlin, Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts.

Manheim FFA Involved

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — The 1989-90 school year is winding down and the FFA members at Manheim Central High School are putting the finishing touches on this year's community development project. The project is a part of the FFA's Building Our American Communities (BOAC) Program.

"Students in the Manheim FFA Chapter have been maintaining a hunters' safety trail at the Manheim Sportsmen's Club to inform community members of safe hunting practices. They have a recycling program for cans and glass. FFA members also visit elementary schools and teach them about agriculture in their 'Ag in the Classroom' program," said FFA Chapter BOAC Committee member Jacy Clugston. Fifty-eight members of the Manheim FFA Chapter began volunteering time to work on their project in April 1989.

Since 1971, more than 4,600 FFA Chapters across the country have conducted more than 22,000 valuable community development projects as a part of the BOAC program. The program is a special project of the National FFA Foundation, Inc. sponsored by the RJR Nabisco Foundation through funds from RJR Nabisco, Inc.

"These young people represent the essence of good leadership," said Burleigh Leonard, staff vice president of federal government relations for RJR Nabisco. Leonard is the RJR Nabisco liaison with the National FFA organization.

"These BOAC projects have provided and immediate benefit to their communities and the leadership skills they have developed will serve them well as they go on to become leaders and pursue careers in agribusiness," said Leonard.

Other members of the committee are Andy Allen, Karen Becker, Mark Brubaker, and Michelle Kerdeman.

NEW IDEA® UNI MODULAR HARVESTING SYSTEMS

839 HUSKER FOR HUSK-OFF HARVESTING OF SEED CORN OR FIELD CORN

The 839 is gentle, clean and efficient. It is equipped with an electronic monitoring system so the operator can maintain control at all times. You can monitor the suction fan, stalk ejector rolls, corn saver, rotary separator augers as well as the wagon elevator.

UNI "C" SERIES POWER UNIT Powered By Cummins!

The Uni is adaptable. And, it's advantageous, not only because of its excellent performance record, but because of its investment worthiness. With the Uni Modular Harvesting System you can stretch your investment dollar by changing only the harvesting components and the heads. There's simply no need to reinvest in another power unit. That's a tremendous advantage, but don't overlook the fact that the Uni adds flexibility to your operation. You can harvest ear corn with the husk on or with the husk off. And, with the Uni Modular Harvesting System, you can even chop hay and corn for silage. Three models available: 152, 177, 234 H.P.

Demo In Stock! Cash Discounts & Low A.P.R.!

868 FORAGE HARVESTER FOR HAY & CORN SILAGE NEEDS

The 868's conveyor design is the key to top performance. Crop pressure at the cutterhead is maintained resulting in a uniform length-of-cut and non-stop harvesting. From the cab, the operator has full control of the 295° rotational spout for loading every inch of the wagon.

New 2240 Hydraulic Swing 12'6" Cutting Width

READY TO DEMONSTRATE THIS QUALITY PERFORMER!

109 Inches of Quality Conditioning

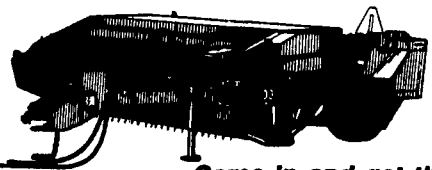

A Gehl center-pivot, swing frame mower conditioner gives you high capacity cutting and conditioning with outstanding maneuverability. Two models are available, the 2240 with 12'6" cutting width, and the 2270 with 14'6" cutting width. Both models feature wide, 109-inch rubber conditioning rolls with intermittent tread design to deliver thorough, uniform conditioning. These machines pivot at the center of the frame for easy header positioning, reducing cutting time and lowering fuel costs. And total hydraulic drive means smooth operation of low maintenance. Put a Gehl swing frame mower conditioner to work for you today!

You Won't Find A Better No-Till Drill Than GREAT PLAINS

IMMEDIATE DELIVERY:
7 Ft., 10 Ft.
★ RENTAL SPECIAL -
10 Ft. No-Till

Great Plains Solid Stand no-till drills have the planting accuracy drilled soybeans need;

(1) Depth-Gauging Press Wheels keep the opener from penetrating too deep; planting depth can be quickly changed with exclusive dial-a-depth adjustment system.

(2) The spring-loaded coulters offer up to 400 lbs. per row of down-pressure, ensuring that they open a groove in even the toughest residue and soil. Each coulter is integrated with its opener and press wheel arm so that coulters and openers are close enough for good tracking but separated to allow good trash flow.

(3) A spring steel mounting bar allows the entire planting system to flex with the terrain, for even more flexibility for the coulter and opener assembly.

(4) The double-disk openers and coulters flex independently to pass over stones easily. A sturdy down-pressure spring with 56 lbs. of pressure per inch holds the opener firmly in the groove.

THE NO-TILL DRILL THAT WORKS

Here's why:

The end wheel-opener alignment means that the openers neither gouge the soil nor leave the ground when traversing rolling ground; they simply follow the terrain right with the end wheels. The end wheels also act as stabilizers to hold the openers steady when seeding on slopes. By keeping the ground-working components well protected within the profile of the end wheels, the operating costs are low on our Solid Stand No-Till Drill.

Their versatility, their residue clearance, and their compact design make these drills a natural choice. Their narrow widths make them perfect for narrow roads and gates.

Even with all these outstanding no-till capabilities, these drills are well-suited to conventional seeding as well. And of course they have the same great opener and press wheel system offered by all Great Plains Solid Stand drills.

Compact and durable, HARDI's 3 point hitch sprayers are of the same design and quality as the larger field models.
 90% of the parts that go into all HARDI sprayers are manufactured in-house to the most demanding specifications in the industry.
 The BNL53 can handle your spraying jobs on smaller farms and nurseries, as well as larger estates where a tractor with 3 point hitch is available.

ATV MOUNT 10 and 20 U.S. gallon models to fit on the back of your ATV. (20 gallon fits only 4 wheel ATV's) Trigger type handgun and 25' of hose are standard on all models. Equipped with a 12 volt electric pump and a 6' telescoping

Case Uni-Loader* skid steers not only out dig out lift out carry and out load most others they also take a big load off your feet. That's because speed, direction and all loader functions are controlled by two hand levers. You can maneuver easier and work faster. There are other advantages too: self-leveling loaders, simple external chain-tension adjustment, separate hydraulic and chain/sprocket oil systems reduce maintenance and downtime. Let your hands do the working with a Case Uni-Loader skid steer the easy way to get a handle on tough chores

GET THE EXTRA EDGE

Put a Vicon three-bladed disc mower conditioner through wet, heavy, tangled crops. Then compare the difference.

With almost double the number of cuts per minute over two-bladed disc competitors, and six times the cuts per minute over sicklebar systems, it's easy to understand the clean, fast, NO PLUG performance of Vicon KM disc mower conditioners.

BUY NOW! special price

$10,495.00*

Add the extra suction created by Vicon's unique triangular discs, the full swivel hitch that lets you cut square corners on the move, and gentle, full width conditioning, and you're looking at a high capacity machine that puts productivity in a whole new dimension. Four models cut from 7' to 10' 6" widths.

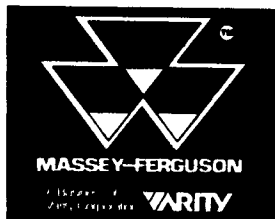

Vicon's got the edge. The extra edge.

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

Over the past 6 years, we have sold thousands of T.A.'s to satisfied customers across the U.S. Some of our best customers are I.H. Dealers. We do complete job or center housing while you wait or will sell you the parts.

Our prices on T.A.'s with the Dana Sprag, are now $645.00 with a 2 year warranty.

We also have units and parts available to rebuild old style T.A.'s, including Ramp & carrier sets for $300.00

Clutches, Pressure Plates PTO Drives & Water Pumps

We have clutches available for most all IH tractors; including many heavier than original. We also have clutches for many other brands.

- Compare Our Prices -
All clutches & T.A.'s will ship U.P.S. and are sold on an exchange basis. Core charges Apply.

QUALITY USED PARTS

We specialize in IH tractors but we also have Case, Oliver, White and Massey tractors in our inventory.

SILAGE?

FOR FAST BLOWING
1200 MULTI-FLO
SPREADER!

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

WARNING. ALL SILO OWNERS

Check Your Silo Now For Rotten Staves. If You Have Been Using Your Silo For 10 To 15 Years For Either Corn Silage Or Haylage, It Is Time To SHOTCRETE.

Check Your Silo For Deteriorated Concrete! If you have a 15 year old silo - get it fixed or insure it better! But don't wait until the last minute to have it repaired because we may not be able to fix it if you wait too long. REMEMBER your silo will not fall over when it's empty - it will fall over when it's full. It cannot stand on deteriorated concrete..

"Consider The Concrete Advantages"

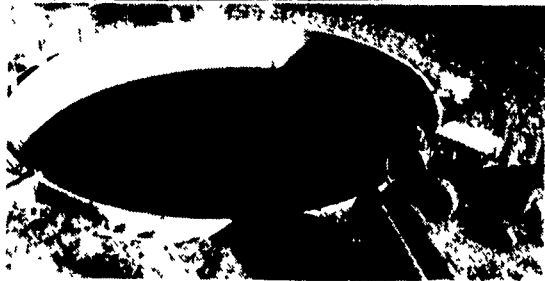

Poured concrete silos since 1908. Now in our 81st year and recognized as the leading silo manufacturer in the east. This quality storage system is available now. Top unloading - bottom unloading - and the unique Big Jim System.

Solid 6" concrete wall, heavily reinforced with hi grade steel, and equipped with concrete chute, fill pipe, ladder, safety cage and aluminized steel roof. Our conventional top unloading silo has a door system 2nd to none!

SLANT BACK J BUNK H-BUNK

Let Us Know Your Needs. We Can Deliver From Our Large Inventory And Set On Your Prepared Site. OR: We Can Load On Your Truck To Help Save On Freight Costs. We Have Several Sizes And Styles To Choose From, Plus Metal Posts, For Cable, Which Can Be Bolted To The Bunk To Keep Cattle Out.

MANURE STORAGE SYSTEMS

- Manure Storage Systems For The Small Herd - or The 400 Cow Herds And Larger.
- Systems Adaptable To Any Type Equipment
- SCS Approved
- Circular Tanks Poured-In-Place Above Ground - In Ground - Or Uneven Backfill.
- Pre-Cast Concrete panels Delivered And Set On Your Prepared Site.

NO USED SILOS! NO REBUILT SILOS NO PRE-OWNED SILOS!

The SOLLENBERGER Silo is all new, And is poured in place on your farm. Built for generations of use, With absolute minimum maintenance.

FACT: Our poured concrete wall has 780 times more heat-resisting ability than steel. Heat damage occurs when stored feed is heated above 95° F. Our silo protects your valuable feed quality

PRE-CAST BUNKER SILOS "THE ECONOMICAL CHOICE"

STORAGE FOR ANY FORAGE
Also Suitable For Grain Storage, And Practically Any Other Bulk Material.

The Sollenberger Pre-Cast Bunker Silo Panel Is Designed To Be Free-Standing. With The Tongue and Groove Edges. It Can Be Coated With Mastic & Bolted Together To Give An Air-Tight Smooth Wall That's Easy To Pack And "Keeps Feed Good." Delivered And Set On Your Prepared Gravel Base.

- THE ADVANTAGE OF A POLY LINER
- Spoilage is reduced around doors.
- Feed is exposed to less oxygen - better fermentation.
- Allows storage of high moisture grains or dry grains in a conventional silo.
- Delays repair or replacement of corroded silos.
- Prevents corrosive acids from contacting silo wall - extends silo life.
- Quick installation.
- Effectively seals silos from air and weather.

Ruff-Tuff Poly Silo Liners Come In Standard Lengths Of 40, 50, 60 and 70 Feet. The Liners Are Manufactured To Fit Most Standard Diameter Silos.
